Introduction

Within this book you should find all the main information about the Warrior Classes. They can vary greatly, and do. From mystical Monks to noble Cavaliers, just about every conceivable type of fighter is available in the Labyrinthe game. Warriors need as much background and flavour as any other class. They have a wide range of alignments available to them and a huge combination of weapons and tactics.

Of course, there are very few spells and verbals to remember, which gives you the chance to practise and define a 'combat' style for your character. Some classes lend themselves to a style, such as the carousing Duellist or an honourable Samurai. The differentiation between the similar classes like Kensai and Duellist should even be obvious.

The time you'd spend learning your vocals for a wizard, invest in designing a particular style of fighting for a warrior. The time spent on learning to read spiritual runes, spend on thinking about the character's background: Who taught him to fight? Why is a warrior a warrior? Of course we should think about such things for any character we play, but without the roleplay smokescreen of a church or wizard's tower, I feel it's so much more important for combat characters like warriors.

This builds on the previous versions of the book, expanding to include the Baronial Valdstayn and Ishmaic Wind-Dancers. It also opens new paths for warrior development, be it the armoured hero able to brush aside powerful blows, or the great weapon master skilled in all forms of weapons. It provides even the experienced player with new and varied options to make every warrior a little bit different.

So have fun, and happy parrying ☺

Son of

GSM

WARRIOR

"If it moves hit it, if it doesn't move push it over then hit it, if neither of these two works it is probably a wall".

Although the previous motto encompasses much of the technical information a new warrior needs to acquire, it is far from easy to play a warrior well, successfully and heroically.

Warriors come in all shapes and sizes; they can come from a virtually infinite range of backgrounds. Your warrior could be a noble but uncivilised barbarian warlord who normally adventures with a horde of equally ferocious tribesmen, or he could be of foreign parts with a strange accent and an even stranger taste in apparel and social etiquette. The warrior provides the main fighting arm of any party. Physical combat is his forte. He can wear the best armour, use the widest choice of weapons and is the most effective in combat.

A new warrior should quickly decide what weapon configuration suits him the best, and try to acquire a trustworthy sword brother, for the warrior who fights alone dies alone, whereas a partnered warrior is far more likely to enjoy a longer and more successful career.

Do not miss the opportunity to role-play this character class to the full. At times of stress you do not have a head full of spell or miracle verbals thus you are able to impress the opposition with your courage, determination and disdain for their powers.

Skills and Life Points

Level	Total Body	Per Location	Weapon Skills
1	30	10	O & U skills
2	36	12	E,H & MP skills
3	42	14	B skill
4	48	16
5	54	18
6	60	20	Specialist Skill
7	66	22	Specialist Skill
8	72	24	Specialist Skill

Maximum Armour Class is 9 for Warriors. Warriors may utilise any armour and any shield [U Skill]. The life track on the above table is for Human Warriors; refer to the appendix for details of other races.

At 6th, 7th and 8th levels Warriors may select a specialist skill from the below table.

Warrior Specialist Skills
1st Weapon Mastery	Unarmed Combat
Smithing	Enhanced Reflexes
+6/2 Stamina	Cold Rage
War Cry	Athletic Training

Post-8th Level Development

- Warriors may buy abilities as per Warrior.
- Warriors may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass.

RANGER

The Ranger is a warrior who has foregone the luxuries of civilisation in exchange for the hardships and pleasures of the wilderness. As such, his powers are designed to enable his survival in a natural setting.

Skills and Life Points

Level	Total Body	Per Location	Weapon Skills	Class Skills
1	28	9	O & U
2	33	11	E,H & MP	Tracking
3	38	13		Survival

5	48	16
6	53	18		Stop Bleeding
7	58	19	Specialist Skill
8	63	21	Specialist Skill

Maximum Armour Class is 9. Rangers may wear light and medium armour and may gain the ability to use heavy armour later, they may use any shield. Rangers may be of any alignment. The above life scale is for Humans. Alfar, ½ Wood Elves, Crol and Barbarians may be Rangers, their respective life scales are found in the appendix.

Class Skills

Tracking

The Ranger can determine what kind of creatures frequent an area by the tracks that they have left behind. In some circumstances, at referee's discretion, this skill can be used to provide further details, such as following a specific target's trail. Its use requires slow and careful inspection of surrounding terrain, and will only work in 'natural environments' – not towns and cities for example.

Survival

The Ranger can find food, water and shelter in the wilderness. In practical terms this means that on extended length adventures the player may supply their own provisions, which may be kept in an Out-Of-Character location until foraged for.

Perception

Due to the Ranger's heightened senses they can spot all forms of supernaturally hidden / chameleoned targets, including those using Invisibility and similar. This does not work on normally concealed creatures, such as those actually physically hidden from sight or using physical powers.

Stop Bleeding

The Ranger may treat a wounded location with a piece of flora, for which a real or realistic physical representation is needed, and by doing so prevent the wound from bleeding.

Ranger Specialist Skills
1st Weapon Mastery	Unarmed Combat
+6/2 Stamina	Enhanced Reflexes

Post-8th Level Development

- Rangers may buy abilities as per Rangers.
- Rangers may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass.

ARCHER

Playing an Archer is fun, you can hit the monsters without being hit yourself, which is always a good thing. It is also hard as you will have to learn to shoot a bow and arrow. Unlike hitting with a sword, which is easy to pick up, shooting a bow takes some learning. Members of your party will not think much of you if you miss the monsters and hit them.

All bows need to be checked by the referee and the desk staff, and either can refuse to permit its use. Bows are not usable in the caves or any indoor site for safety reasons.

Archers, unlike other character classes, are not limited to a maximum damage of Quad with their shots. Instead, they have a maximum damage of Quin when shooting at a target within 10', and no maximum damage at all when firing at targets at a greater distance. This represents the increased skill necessary to make such shots.

Skills and Life Points

Level	Total Body	Per Location	Weapon Skills
1	30	10	MP & O
2	33	11	H & E
3	36	12	Weapon Mastery (Bows) +1
4	39	13
5	42	14
6	45	15	Weapon Mastery (Bows) +2
7	48	16	Specialist Skill
8	51	17	Specialist Skill

Maximum Armour Class is 8. Archers may wear light and medium armour, they may not acquire the ability to wear heavy armour and they may not use a shield.

The above life scale is for Humans, ½ Elves, Barbarians, Dwarves and Elves may also be Archers and their life scales are detailed in the appendix.

Archer Specialist Skills
3rd Weapon Mastery (Bows)	Accuracy
+6/2 Stamina	Enhanced Reflexes

Archer Weapon Masteries (Bow)

Please note that for Archers Weapon Mastery Bow applies to all bow types (e.g. Crossbow, Long Bow, Short Bow). This is not the case for Warriors or other classes which must choose which bow type when acquiring Weapon Mastery Bow.

Post-8th Level Development

- Archers may buy abilities as per Archer.
- Archers may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass.

MONK

Monks are a sub-class of warrior dedicated to self-discipline and martial prowess. They are the equivalent of the Shaolin Chinese order in the middle ages. Although they have many class restrictions they can be one of the most powerful classes in the system at high level. A Monk disdains magic in general, and anywhere in his immediate surroundings. He is strong in spirit, mind, and body and he is able to resist many of the things that can affect him through those avenues. Being extremely agile as a result of his intense training and self-discipline, he can avoid all but the most powerful blows; and by being selective about the weapons he uses, he becomes a fearsome warrior. Monks lead extremely disciplined focused lives, with many severe self-imposed limitations and restrictions.

The Three Orders of Monk: The first few generations of Monks came to the Empire from the Eastern lands of Amles. The three Orders that represented the principle beliefs of those monks are named in brackets, since what they stood for has a wider following outside their own temples now. As is inevitable with time, native Imperial citizens have taken up the teachings but made their own interpretation of the philosophy and teachings, as such it is now possible to start a Western Monk, rather than an Amlesian one.

The Bright Path (The Order of the White Hand): These are an order of lawful good monks dedicated to the protection of all the good creatures of the world by the use of their skills and powers.

The Balanced Way (The Order of the Grey Mantis): These are an order of lawful neutral monks dedicated to seeing that we live in a neutral world and law is triumphant.

The Shadowed Trail (The Order of the Black Tiger): Monks of this Order believe in the spreading of evil, for only in an evil world can the powerful truly enjoy power.

Maximum Armour Class is 9.

The above life scale applies to Human Monks. Otherwise Crol may be Monks and are listed in the appendix.

Class Restrictions

- Monks may never wear armour, nor use a Shield.
- All Monks must be Lawful in alignment.
- Monks may not use any form of Item /Artefact of Power, note that this includes 'physical' as well as supernatural objects.
- Monks may not benefit from any form of potion, except normal 6pt curative potions. Furthermore Monks are restricted to drinking only one potion per level per day. Thus an 8th level Monk could successfully benefit from 8 x 6pt cure potions.
- Monks may not keep any money or treasure – spurning such trappings – they may donate any money they earn to any cause appropriate to their alignment, e.g. With the money being given away, back to the Desk etc. The only exception to this is that that may keep enough money to pay for their potion allowance.

- No Monk will aid any other Monk of a different order.
- Monks must not allow under any circumstances spells of a beneficent nature to be cast upon them, as this would contravene their rule of non-magical use. A Monk's reaction will differ based upon their alignment. The below is a guideline should such a situation arise:
 - A Goodly Monk will put all his efforts into getting the spell removed.
 - A Neutral Monk will not aid the party in any way until the spell is removed and he may threaten the spell caster to get the spell removed, he may even leave the party.
 - An Evil Monk will not aid the party until the spell is removed. He will also seek to injure or kill the wizard that cast it upon him.

- Monks may also buy abilities specific to their particular Order

DUELLIST

The Duellist is an extravagant warrior in the style of the three musketeers. He should at all times be seen in the floppy hat, silk shirt and breeches which were virtually their trademark, or other suitable and impressive costume. He must role-play his excessive lifestyle to the full and at all times must be obsessed with duelling, carousing and being loudly flamboyant, if not in manner then in his fighting prowess.

Skills and Life Points

Level	Total Body	Per Location	Dexterity AC	Weapon Skills
1	28	9		O (Sword and Dagger only)
2	33	11		E (Sword and Dagger combination only)

5	48	16	2	Weapon Mastery (Sword or Dagger only)
6	53	18	2
7	58	19	3	Specialist Skill
8	63	21	3	Specialist Skill

The maximum AC of a Duellist is 9. They may only wear light armour and may never acquire the ability to wear anything heavier. They may not use shields.

Only Humans may be Duellists and they may be of any alignment

Duellist Specialist Skills
+6/2 Stamina	Weapon Mastery

.The +2 Weapon Mastery must be taken in the weapon chosen at 5th level.

Post-8th Level Development

- Duellists may buy abilities as per Duellist.
- Duellists may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass.
- Duellists may buy abilities as per 2nd Class Monk up to Table 4 (275pts table) but may not buy Monk Order specialist skills.

CAVALIER

Cavaliers are the ultra-lawful followers of the chivalric code. As such they can be any lawful alignment and must be Human. Even an evil Cavalier follows the code to the letter and the spirit. They are a sub-class of the Warrior.

The Cavalier Code:

- Always wear your Family's coat of arms proudly displayed
- Always wear an impressive costume
- Never attack or hurt a defenceless Peon
- Never show fear (unless supernaturally feared)
- Never use a dagger or ranged attack
- Never attack from behind
- Always fight the most powerful enemy present
- Never advocate un-chivalrous behaviour in others
- Never let an insult go un-avenged
- Never break an oath
- Always be true to your word

Breaking this code irrevocably turns the Cavalier into a normal Warrior but retaining their lower life scale. The Cavalier also becomes permanently cursed losing 2 from his Dexterity AC. This is a curse of the conscience and is not removable. All Cavaliers should have a clear idea of their family, history, and similar, for role-play purposes - including the need for a coat of arms, above.

Skills and Life Points

Level	Total Body	Per Location	Weapon Skills	Abilities

6	53	18		Immunity to Beguile, Befriend, Spiritual Mastery
7	58	19	Specialist Skill	Immunity to all Domination Effects
8	63	21	Specialist Skill	Cold Rage 1/day

Cavalier's maximum armour class is 9. Cavaliers may only ever wear metal armour, which must be of master crafted quality. They may use any shield, with these often bearing their coat of arms! A Cavalier does not die as easily as other characters. At negative total body life points of up to twice his level, he is unconscious, not dead. This is commonly known as Live to Minus. Thus at 8th level the Cavalier has "Live to -16 tblep".

Post-8th Level Development:

- Cavaliers may buy abilities as per Cavalier.
- Cavaliers may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass

PALADIN

Paladins are Holy Warriors, Champions of the forces of Light, dedicated to the protection of the weak, the furthering of the ways of good and the eradication of evil. They are blessed with certain spiritual powers that often duplicate those available to Goodly Priests. The class of Paladin has many benefits however it also has severe restrictions.

Players intending to play a Paladin should realise that referees will be harsh on judging your actions, always watching for less-than-perfect behaviour. Should a Paladin ever perform a malicious, cowardly or just plain evil act and receive a 'Black Mark', then the Paladin will 'fall from grace' and lose his paladinhood. This means loss of all paladinic abilities, and a permanent irremovable -2 Curse of Conscience. Paladins can fall from grace very easily, as they are judged so harshly.

If in doubt a referee has the option of awarding a Grey Mark – this acts as a note to the next referee, that the morals of the Paladin may be in question. Fairly simply 2 Grey Marks equals a Black Mark. The next referee is entitled to instead cancel out the 1st Grey Mark – if the Paladin was beyond reproach in his actions.

In order to regain their paladinhood they will need to complete 3 further adventures without their paladinic abilities without falling from grace again.

Paladins may align to a church and it is the doctrines of this faith that will often moderate the paladin's behaviour. For example the Paladin of a caring and healing god will seek to protect the innocent and work to the furtherment of the goodly way of life. A Paladin of a goodly war god might seek to destroy all the evil he can find, smiting them and offering little in the way of leniency to those evil creatures he discovers. Both styles are valid, and it is recommended that you discuss your style with the referee, or at least make note of your faith and views on your battleboard.

Paladins have a maximum armour class of 9. They may wear any armour and use any shield.

They must be Human and Lawful Good in alignment.

RECOGNISE EVIL SPIRIT

Verbal: "Spirit art thou evil?"

Range: 12' range

This ability can identify whether the target has an evil spirit or not. There is a YES / NO answer.

IRREMOVABLE PALADINIC BLESS

- Unless the Paladin falls from grace he is always blessed no matter what, as per the Priest miracle.
- This Bless is irremovable for as long as the Paladin is a Paladin.
- If the Paladin becomes immune to Blesses (as per table 3 post 8th ability) then they remain blessed and retain the A/C benefit.

LAY ON HANDS

Verbal: "Spirits of light permit mine hands to staunch this wound."

Gesture: Touch via both hands

- By the use of this ability the paladin may cure a wounded location. They may cure a total of 3pts of damage for each level (i.e. has 24pts at 8th level). The damage cured is restored to the location and TBLP. Lay on Hands also has the effect of stopping any bleeding on the location touched provided at least one point of curing is administered. All curing from this is used in packages of 3pts per incantation of the verbal.

BLESS [OTHER]

Verbal: "Let the spirits of light watch over thee."

Gesture: Touch target on head

A paladin's Bless is similar to that of a priest except for the following:

- It offers no AC bonus.
- It has the effect of a "Remove Fear and Paralysis" miracle.
- If cast on a Spiritually Mastered creature, it will free that creature of the Spiritual Mastery.
- In all other ways it has a duration of only 5 minutes.

DETECT LIE

Verbal: "Spirits of Light, have lies been spoken?"

Gesture: Raise hands upwards in supplication

- This ability is useable at will.
- It will reveal if a previously heard statement was a lie in the eyes of the speaker.
- This must either be used straight after the statement has been heard or the statement needs repeating – as per the Priestly miracle.
- This is a spiritual informational effect.

CURE DISEASE

Verbal: "By the powers of light I bid this pestilence be gone."

Gesture: Touch target on head

- This ability works as the priestly miracle – i.e.: It will spiritually remove one disease on a target.

DISCERN SPIRITUAL AURA

Range: 1"

Gesture: Indicate Target Spirit

- This ability is the equivalent to all of the priestly discern abilities. It is not necessary to name each discern separately.

REPEL UNDEAD

Verbal: "Undead spirit I repel thee!"

Gesture: Indicate targets with weapon hand

- This power will work on any Undead creature with a spirit within 20'. An Undead so affected is instantly repelled away from the Paladin up to 20', or until a solid object is met.

RECOGNISE SPIRIT

Range: 1"

- This is the same as the priestly ability and will reveal the presence of a spirit within 1" of the paladin's hand.

REPEL EVIL

Verbal: "Spirits of Evil I repel thee!"

Gesture: Indicate targets with weapon hand

- This power will work on any Evil creature with a spirit within 20'. An Evil spirit so affected is instantly repelled away from the Paladin up to 20', or until a solid object is met.

PALADINIC RESTRICTIONS:

- 1 A paladin may only ever own three ‘items’ regardless of type and are expected to give all money beyond their basic needs (Normal Armour and standard potion allowance) away, either to NPC goodly causes (the desk, or via CC contract) or to church funds, though this should not be abused. Players whose paladins battle board with a sack full of potions ‘given to them by their High Priest’ will be judged harshly by their referee.
- 2 A Paladin should always be true to his word.
- 3 If a Paladin should gain a “holy weapon” he should forswear the use of all other supernatural weapon, except for when the use of those weapons is the only way to damage an evil or hostile enemy.
- 4 Please also note the paragraphs above on ‘falling from grace’.
- 5 Paladins must be Lawful Good in alignment.

Breaking any of the above will lead to the Paladin falling from grace as noted above.

Post-8th Level Development

- Paladins may buy abilities as per Paladin.
- Paladins may buy abilities as per Warrior Subclass

UNHOLY CHAMPION / ANTI-PALADIN

These warriors are the champions of the forces of darkness and are dedicated to the spread of religious evil. They are dedicated to the progress of whatever evil they serve, and to do this they are often aligned to a church. They will use any means available to further their church's/cause's power. As a result of their truly dark natures, evil spirits are drawn to them and they are able to innately call upon them to duplicate those powers available to Evil Priests. In battle they are capable warriors, able to fight for their own ends with as much fervour as is necessary to annihilate their opposition, but their preferred combat techniques involve treachery, betrayal, deception and poisoned blades in combination with their spiritual skills.

Unholy Champions may align to a church and it is the doctrines of this faith that will often moderate the Unholy Champion's behaviour. For example the Unholy Champion of a deceptive and beguiling god will seek to protect his identity and cause conflict through the lies and discord he is able to spread. An Unholy Champion of an evil war god might seek to destroy all the good he can find, murdering as he goes bringing blood and carnage with each stab of his sword. Both styles are valid, and it is recommended that you discuss your style with the referee, or at least make note of your faith and views on your battleboard. It should be noted that Unholy Champions are also subject to the Black Mark scheme listed under Paladins but they are punished should they perform any overly Goodly act or go against their chosen alignment.

Unholy Champions as a class are automatically outlawed.

In a change from previous rules Unholy Champions do suffer casting damage from their miracles as a priest does.

An Unholy Champion's maximum armour class is 9. They may wear any sort of armour and use any shields as desired. They must be Evil in alignment and Human. They are unrestricted between lawful, neutral and chaotic.

RECOGNISE GOOD SPIRIT

Verbal: "Spirit art thou Good?"

Range: 12'

- This power can identify whether the target has a goodly spirit or not. There is a YES/NO answer.

REPEL GOOD:

Verbal: "Spirits of Good I repel thee!"

Gesture: Indicate targets with weapon hand

- This power will work on any goodly creature with a spirit within 20'. A goodly spirit so affected is instantly repelled away from the Unholy Champion up to 20', or until a solid object is met.
- Any UC may sacrifice the Repel Good ability gained in order to gain a permanent beneficial Curse. This operates in the same manner as a Paladin's Permanent Bless being irremovable as long as the Unholy Champion is an Unholy Champion. If the Unholy Champion becomes immune to Handbook Curses (as per the table 3 post 8th ability), then he remains cursed and retains the A/C benefit. If however he becomes immune to non-handbook curses (for example via the table 10 immunity), then they lose the A/C benefit from their curse.

UNDEAD RETURNER:

- Unholy Champions upon their death may choose to release an evil spirit to seek vengeance upon their slayer. This standardly takes the form of an undead. The more potent the Unholy Champion the more potent the Undead Returner. For the statistics of these undead please refer to the Handbook or Word from Above publications. Their hits are now calculated as though the Unholy Champion had raised them and are thus dependent upon his level [this does included published increases such as Undead Master]. It is possible to choose an undead lower than your current level (e.g. a 6th level Unholy Champion could return as a Ghoul). An Unholy Champion's returner will seek to kill their slayer, anyone involved in their death, and may then act as it wishes until slain.

Level	Returner
1	Zombie
2	Zombie
3	Skeleton
4	Ghoul
5	Ghoul
6	Mummy
7	Wraith
8	Wight

CREATE EVIL STAIRWAY

- This skill allows the Unholy Champion to create a list of evil spiritual innates for his own use.
 - It will typically follow the ethos of the evil church to which he is aligned, thus an Unholy Champion aligned to a church that likes to raise Undead will have a list which facilitates that, whereas if in a church with a large amount of evil spiritual causing on its miracle list, the Unholy Champion will need to have a predominantly 'causing' based list.
1. The total number of innates cannot exceed 40 spirits. It is the spirit cost used, rather than miracle level.
 2. It is not possible to have a list with a greater number of higher level innates than lower level ones.
 3. It should build up like a pyramid.
 4. It is not possible to have a list which contains a particular innate if you do not have at least one innate of each miracle which precedes it on that list (i.e. you can't have an innate cause serious unless your stairway includes at least one innate Cause Wound).
 5. The innates should build up/follow a miracle tree [see Words from Above for further details].
 6. It is not possible to have a miracle of a higher level than the level it is gained at when constructing the Stairway.
 7. It is possible to have miracles that are traditionally neutral, as long as their purpose is for evil – much like the use of neutral miracles by pathed characters. Thus it would be possible to have 'protection from goodly spirits' on the list if used to summon a Wraith.
 8. It is only possible to have miracles on the list that are on the miracle list of the Church to which the Champion is aligned.
 9. Unaligned Champions do not have to follow rule 8 – they may instead have any standard evil miracle on their list.
 10. Aligned Champions may have advanced miracles on their list if they are on the Church's miracle list, however advanced miracles count as twice their normal spirit level to have on the UC's list. EG.: Soul's Hunger would cost 1 spirit x 2 = 2 against the 40 spirit total. Again it is necessary for this religious miracle to make sense to the rest of your list.
 11. It is not possible to have miracles running at 1/3 levels.
 12. A blank Stairway list is available from the check in desk for a nominal fee. A member of desk staff processes this list, and is at liberty to refer any list to the GSM for approval

GREY KNIGHT

Where there is Good and Evil there is Balance. The path of neutrality also has its exponents and followers. In a religious sense not all belief falls into the Good or Evil category; some faiths and teachings require the faithful to be outside of such things.

Perhaps these followers of balance seek to protect wisdom for the benefit of all; maybe they seek to balance out the universe; or possibly they just find themselves with an affinity for the spirit realm, acting as conduits between the real and the ethereal. The guardians and warriors of balance and neutrality are collectively known as Grey Knights [GK].

Grey Knights must be Neutral in alignment but this may be coupled with Lawful, Neutral, or Chaotic as desired.

KNIGHTLY VOWS

Grey Knights must take one of the following vows at 1st level.

- Vow of Poverty - Now has wealth restrictions as per Paladin.
- Vow of Selflessness - Now has max 3 items as Paladin.
- Vow of Truth - Should always be true to his word.
- Vow of Abstinence - Potions restrictions as per monk.
- Vow of Selfishness - May not be a member of any social guild.

A Grey Knight's maximum armour class is 9. They may wear any armour any use any shield. Grey Knights must be Human.

Grey Knights can come in many forms. Their variety of alignments allows for some variation in game play:

- Neutral Lawful: The Law Giver
- Neutral Neutral: The Pilgrim
- Neutral Chaotic: The Discordant

Grey Knights spiritual alignment needs to be watched very carefully – too many overly goodly or evil acts may result in Grey & Black Marks – as defined within the Paladin entry.

In a change from previous rules Grey Knights do suffer casting damage from their miracles as a priest does.

Grey Knights are able to design their own 'stairway of power' – as per Unholy Champion – but their stairway is made up of 40 spirits of Neutral miracles. Two examples are shown below.

BUDOKA / FIGHTER

Traditionally the Budoka are the less disciplined, although perhaps more heroic, warriors of the Eastern Lands. Their martial skills are not unlike those of the monk but, where monks contemplate Inner Strength and learn martial arts as a way to achieve better mind over body control, Budoka study martial arts for the sake of skill and fighting prowess, with little or no concern for the inner serenity sought by many from the East.

In more modern times the role of the Budoka has been developed into a style of street fighting called 'The Doka' in the west. The citizens of the Empire have their own fighters who partake in no-blows barred pit fighting. The styles are comparable and stats wise identical. As such it is now possible to play a western Budoka. The art has yet to reach the Baronies or Ishma thus only 'Empire' or Amlesian Humans may learn this class.

POWER MASTER

This class is cross between Wizard and Monk. These mystic monks are completely dedicated to their chosen element and the belief in self. They draw their magic from a focus know as 'The Power'. Originating from an alternate plane the followers of the Power quickly assimilated into everyday Labyrinthian life, with many of the followers soon settling down in the Jade Empire far to the East, finding a kinship in the martial styles the Easterners possessed.

The Power Master gains power by meditating on the power of an element. Thus, the Power Master is aligned to one of the prime elements of Air, Earth, Fire and Water. These are called the Orders of Cloud, Mountain, Flame, and Sea respectively.

All true Power Masters are Human, though the Crol are known to have very similar practitioners amongst their people. For further details on Crol Power Masters please see 'Evolution; Races'.

All Power Masters must be lawful, though they may choose to be Good, Evil or Neutral freely. Their alignment governs which order they belong to. Good Masters are of the "White", neutral "Grey" and evil masters of the "Black". They cannot voluntarily change alignment or all their powers will be lost.

Power Masters have no need for material wealth, and they will never keep any money beyond what they need to survive day to day. They may never use any form of "item", and may not drink any potions at all, they consider any "artificial" aid to their own ability as an affront. Knowingly using a potion of any type will prevent the Power Master from using any of his elemental powers for 24 hours. Any beneficial potion will simply not work.

A Power Master may only use one O class weapon type, chosen when started (recorded on their card). Additionally no armour of any kind may ever be worn, and no shield may ever be utilised.

For information on their magical skills and Spells in general please consult 'The Wizard's Grimoire' or the Basic Handbook.

SELF HEAL

This ability may only be used whilst in contact with the appropriate element, which means underground for earth, in a strong breeze for air, up to the waist in water for water, and within or near a bonfire-size blaze for fire. This effect magically heals all normal damage to tblp and locations, and negates diseases and potions or poisons on the master. The phrase "Let the power of [element] come onto me" must be repeatedly chanted for two minutes to achieve the effect. During this time the master cannot fight, cast spells, move etc or the process is interrupted and the innate is wasted. Diseases, potions and poisons do not progress further during this time.

RESISTANCE TO OWN ELEMENT:

This skill gained at 7th level, means that the Power-Master cannot be harmed by natural occurrences of his element, including lightning for air Power-Masters and rock-falls for earth. Additionally they take only half-effect from supernatural attacks of that element.

Power Masters gain mana and spell casting capabilities based on their chosen element. These spells are cast in much the same way as wizards, with full verbals required, gestures etc. However, Power-Masters may never cast a glyph of higher than their own casting level, they do not pay life points for casting a spell, and need not buy glyphs for grulls – the Master instinctively knows how to cast all standard spells of up to his casting level. They gain 3 mana of their own colour only per level, and may never learn to cast spells of any other colour, even grey. They may not read glyphs.

POWER WARRIOR

A Power Warrior is either a follower of the Gem: darkness and evil, or the Jewel: light and goodness.

The persuasion of the follower must be blatantly obvious. They wear either all black or all white, depending on alignment. This dress includes appropriate face-paint. A Power Warrior will never seek to hide his identity; if he does so all special abilities will be lost.

A warrior of the Jewel seeks the destruction of all darkness and evil, while Gem followers seek the destruction of all that is light and good. Power Warriors will normally attack and fight to the death anything to which they are opposed; failure to fulfil this condition will strip the warrior of all magical abilities. However as a lawful character class they will never attack a fellow adventurer except in self-defence, they will either ignore an opposed adventurer, or leave the adventure.

For information on their magical skills and spells in general please consult 'The Wizard's Grimoire' or the Basic Handbook.

KENSAI / BLADE MASTER

The Kensai once came from the East, mystical masters of the Blade who have dedicated themselves to the use of the sword. The style and excellence of the Kensai's arts has, over the last generation, filtered through to the West – Many of the Warrior Academies and Training Schools specialise in the harmony between man and blade. The schools and training only exist in the Empire at present thus only Humans from the Empire or Amlesians may take this class, e.g. not Humans from Ishma, or the Baronies.

Many proponents of this art keep the name of Kensai to honour the great art – others seeking to move with the times in the West call themselves Blade Masters. The stats are identical however.

A Kensai must choose one particular sword to be proficient with. This may be the No-Dachi (Two Handed), Katana (Bastard), or Wakizashi (Short). A Kensai may only use a sword in each hand if the chosen weapon is a Wakizashi. For game purposes, any one-handed sword is a Wakizashi.

A Kensai will only ever use this weapon, hands, a dagger or bo-sticks. The chosen weapon will always be used in preference.

VALDSTAYN

Bodyguards to the Circle, the Valdstayn are loyal guardians that have proved themselves willing to risk life and limb to protect those within the secretive order. As reward they are enchanted with powerful rites during their training, lacing their body with a deep vibrancy which deflects or 'earths' magic which assaults them. However the nature of these rites are that should the Valdstayn kill a member of the Circle or be deemed by the referee of the adventure to have been severely negligent in their protection of a Circle member then the elements which form their body instantaneously separate. The Valdstayn dies as a consequence of this, leaving no body for a restore to life to be cast upon and inflicting 12 tblp and 2 Loc. damage to all within 20 feet. Negligence in this case could include willingly leaving a Circle member alone in a place to wander off alone or with non-circle members or fleeing a combat location leaving a Circle member in the combat. Refusal to "shield" a master is also negligent (unless the master requested such).

The Circle member in question is always free to deny this negligence at the point the Valdstayn would explode and spare the bodyguard's life.

Hedge Valdstayn are possible, however do not gain the abilities of Defend the Master, Shield the Master or Stand by the Master. Such Hedge Valdstayn are deemed to serve some cult within one of the smaller baronies who do maintain the rites which create the magical shielding (armour class). A Hedge Valdstayn may spend 50 points post eight to name another Hedge character (not a Valdstayn) as their master, and thus gain the abilities lost for not being a member of the Circle. Obviously the disadvantages for the death of a Circle member above now apply to the death of the new Master.

For details on Hedge, the Circle, and Baronial Characters see Evolution: Races

I SHALL DEFEND THE MASTER

Negates one listed magical stopping effect and grants immunity to that effect for the following five minutes x 1/day. There must be another member of the Circle on the adventure for this to work.

I SHALL SHIELD THE MASTER

Should a Circle member lay a hand upon the shoulder of this Valdstayn, then all ranged magical spells and effects which target the Circle member, instead target this Valdstayn. While using this ability the Valdstayn gains 2 additional MAC. Note that it is possible for two Valdstayn to use this power on each other! In which case each takes attacks destined for the other, and both gain the additional magical AC.

I SHALL STAND BY THE MASTER:

Negates one listed magical domination effect and grants immunity to that effect for the following five minutes. There must be another member of the Circle on the adventure for this to work.

ROVFUGER

Rovfugr glory in the rush of conflict and are always seeking to prove themselves. Their name in their native tongue now left behind on the old world meant 'Hawk of War', and it is this light springing step style of combat which exhilarates them so. Always seeking challenge in combat, a Rovfugr will never back down from a fight (they must be able to affect the opponent - otherwise it is not considered a fight) unless supernaturally forced to do so, and should they willingly admit that another is better than them in combat or refuse to fight an opponent they can harm, then they suffer a -2 to their dexterity armour class in shame (as a 'curse of conscience') until the end of the adventure.

Rovfugr often live their lives as a shooting star, full of glory but ultimately leading to an early death. In game terms this means that if there is a fight in which a Rovfugr can usefully contribute, even if only blocking blows aimed at their colleagues, then they should always be involved. They should be amongst the last to leave a combat, and should always act as a rear guard if the party is fleeing an opponent or stand out on point if engaging a new enemy.

In case the above is not clear should a Rovfugr willingly leave any combat in which they can affect the opponent, they suffer a -2 DAC curse of conscience until the end of adventure.

Referees are expected to judge Rovfugr who do not enter every fight and stay until the finish very harshly - regardless of chances of survival.

Rovfugr will not use unarmed combat; to fight is to use weapons, brawling lacks grace and skill in their eyes. Only play a Rovfugr if you are willing to die. A lot.

WIND DANCER

The Wind Dancers are the skilled swordsmen of the Ishmaic Confederacy. They spend their lives training their bodies to move like the wind and fight in flowing forms that unite their blade with the supple movements of their bodies. The Wind Dancers are well regarded by their Hetyan and are used in disputes between such groups when all out conflict would be foolish and the involvement of the Rainfinders is not considered desirable by either of the Hetyan groups involved.

Wind Dancers are proud warriors and carry the honour of their Hetyan and Clan with them at all times. They will never back down from a challenge in which they have the capability to inflict damage against an opponent and should they do so they will lose the Innate DAC from their class (for the rest of the day) that comes from their confidence and pride. Only in a direct challenge of arms, not involving supernatural powers will this apply however and Wind Dancers are able to fight in or leave a combat as normal otherwise.

Wind Dancers are always lawful (though may be good, neutral or evil as normal) and take the Laws and Traditions of Ishmaic society extremely seriously. Should they be found guilty of breaking any of the Laws and traditions the power within them is sundered and they will become warriors, but with the lower life gained from this class. They will always seek to uphold the Laws and Traditions in others, especially members of their own Clan and Hetyan.

Warrior Sub-Classes Covered Elsewhere

Warlocks and Sorcerers are listed within the Wizard's Grimoire and are in the Warrior Bracket and thus eligible for Traditions.

Vochstelen are also listed in the Wizard's Grimoire and if they chose to be Militant Vochstelen are considered to be within the Warrior bracket and gain a Tradition.

Beggar subclasses are listed in At the Sharp End and details of how their Traditions work can be found there.

Slayers and Psi-Masters are detailed in the Oraculum Insight book and are warrior subclasses so gain a tradition slot.

Warrior Specialist Skills

Not all specialist skills are available to all warrior classes, check the individual class entry or the following table for details. These specialist skills (with the exception of Smithing) no longer cost grulls to learn. They are either self taught, picked up along the way, or learnt from the various training schools and guilds that support mercenaries.

Weapon Mastery

By means of training and practice the Warrior may become more skilled with one specific weapon e.g. Dagger, Broadsword, Hand Mace, Battle Axe, Bastard Sword, Spear etc. This Mastery means that one extra grade of damage is added to the normal base damage done by a weapon of this type. Any weapon usable by the Warrior may be chosen, including 'B' class weapons.

Unarmed Combat

This skill allows the Warrior to do damage with their hands (and not any other part of their body), as if they were O class weapons. It should be remembered that a blow from any weapon must be a minimum of 12" long to be effective. Martial art skills must NOT be used. It is only necessary to gently touch the opponent; anything stronger is unsafe and must be avoided. NOTE: Anyone abusing this skill will lose it.

Smithing

This skill allows the Warrior to manufacture weapons and armour. Unlike other specialist skills this one costs 1000 grulls to learn. The cost of armour made by the character is then only 10 grulls per point of AC per location (e.g. a suit of AC 1 all over is 70 grulls, a suit of AC 3, or a suit of AC 1+2, is 210 grulls). The cost of the skill mostly consists of the cost of wasted materials in getting used to the equipment and preparing the forge. Thus another individual could not benefit from the forge without similar expenditure. The amount of equipment the character with this skill may manufacture is limited to 700 grulls per weekly visit to Labyrinthe. All handbook manufacturing takes place at the Desk. It is assumed that a Smith will adjust and make running repairs to their own armour, preventing wear, and as such someone with this skill does not lose adventure 'uses' on their own armour. Standardly weapons in Labyrinthe are assumed to be free, but in cases where it may matter a Smith can manufacture a weapon at 1/3 of the 'bought price'. Advanced rules that build on the Smithing skill can be found in the "Manufacturers Guide" (Downloadable on the forums).

Enhanced Reflexes

By means of rigorous training, the warrior may learn greater agility in combat, thus giving him a bonus of +1 Dexterity Armour Class. This replaces the first point of dexterity armour class available post eighth on table one and may only be taken once. Note: If you are a class which naturally gains innate DAC this extra DAC will stack with the DAC that you already have. This skill is sometimes referred to as Dexterity Training.

+6/2 Stamina

By means of rigorous exercise and training the warrior may become extremely fit. This fitness has the effect of giving him an extra 6 total body life points, and an extra 2 life points per location, it does not however increase his level for resisting magic or spirits. This skill may only be taken once by a character.

Cold Rage

This ability allows the Warrior to enter a Rage – such that for the next 5 minutes, the Warrior takes 25% less from any damage suffered – bar that suffered from purely magic weapons and magical spells. In a Cold Rage the Warrior is able to distinguish friend from foe and as such is not required to attack them. In a Cold Rage you may use 'offensive powers' such as Knock Back, but not other powers like Monk Locational Healing or using your magical ring to Blink away. This ability is usable 1/day.

War Cry

This ability allows the Warrior to negate one listed stopping effect, and grants immunity to that effect for the following five minutes. It must be used within 2 seconds of the effect occurring and accompanied with a loud shout. This ability is usable 1/day.

Athletic Training

This skill grants the Warrior the ability to jump a large distance. Also found listed under the spell Jump, or Salmon Leap, the distance jumped cannot be more than 20' forwards, 10' backwards, or 15' upwards. Jumping past a person will enable that person to take one swing at the jumper; simple actions or other 'instant' abilities which need no verbal can be used (just one ability – not a string of Neuronic Penetrations!) instead of a weapon swing, including speaking a single word. This ability is usable 2/day.

Shadowing

This allows the user to follow the tracks of creatures in urban, built up environments or in tunnels or buildings. The user can determine what kind of creatures frequent an area by the tracks that they have left behind. In some circumstances, at referee's discretion, this skill can be used to provide further details, such as following a specific target's trail. Its use requires slow and careful inspection of surrounding area.

Accuracy

This skill allows the Archer to do all arrow damage regardless of the PAC possessed by the target (e.g. Triple becomes Triple Through) but it requires 5 seconds concentration to perform.

Mind Block

This ability allows the Monk to take only half damage from a Neuronic attack. It does not affect any non-damaging neuronic attacks.

Stop Bleeding

Through their knowledge of anatomy the Monk may stop a location bleeding by delivering a sharp (non-damaging) blow to that location. This will stop the bleeding for one hour.

Monk Locational Curing

This skill allows the Monk to cure a certain amount of locational damage on himself, or on others. The total curable in this way is 1/3rd of the Monk's tblp per day. Thus a Monk with 60 tblp could cure 20pts of locational damage. Monk locational curing and similar abilities require a certain amount of time to successfully apply. Not more than 2 points per second can be administered, and during this time both the giver and the recipient must be otherwise inactive (not in a fight, for example).

Forearm Parry

This skill allows the Monk to parry weapons with his hands and forearms taking no damage from the blow. It is not possible to parry a blow from a weapon without a Physical component. Effects attached to weapon blows are still taken – for example a Knock Back effect.

Note: That the Monk must be able to freely move his arms to use this skill. This skill cannot be used whilst using a 2 handed weapon, and may only be learnt at 8th level.

Forearm, Foreleg and Upper Arm Parries cannot ever be used in conjunction with a shield. A weapon that can be used as B-class, such as a bastard sword, or a spear, still prevents the use of Forearm/Foreleg/Upper Arm Parry even when held in one hand.

Relaxed Fall

This skill allows the Monk to fall up to 25' and take no damage. Should the fall be further than 25' he only takes 1/3rd of the normal falling damage.

Utilise Goodly Spirit Item

This skill allows the character to make full use of a goodly spirit item, as per the priest skill

Make Healing Balm

This skill allows the Paladin to manufacture a spiritual curative salve. When applied to a wounded character, 1 dose will stop any bleeding or cure 3 points to the location to which it is applied and cure 3 points of tblp. This balm costs 150 grulls per dose to produce. At 7th level the paladin can make 4 doses, at 8th level 6 doses per week. Only Paladins and Hospitallers can administer this balm. This balm is made at the Desk and a relevant card issued.

Read Spiritual Runes and Utilise Goodly Scrolls

This skill allows the Paladin to read spiritual runes with the proficiency of a priest. They may, via this skill, fully utilise goodly spiritual scrolls but not scrolls of any other alignment.

Utilise Evil Spirit Item

This skill allows the Unholy Champion to make full use of an evil spiritual item; as per the priest skill.

Make Poison

This skill allows the Unholy Champion to make Blade Venom and Ingestive Poisons. The poisons made can be either IV6 or BV6, chosen at the time of making them – For further information on these you should consult the Scout source book ‘At the Sharp End’. The Unholy Champion may make 2 doses of each per week at 7th level, or 3 doses of each if 8th level. They cost 400 grulls per dose. This skill does not allow the UC to recognise poisons.

Read Spiritual Runes and Utilise Evil Scrolls

This skill allows the Unholy Champion to read spiritual runes with the proficiency of a priest. They may fully utilise evil spiritual scrolls with this skill, but not scrolls of any other alignment.

Utilise Neutral Spirit Item

This skill allows the character to make full use of a neutral spirit item, as per the priest skill.

Read Spiritual Runes and Utilise Neutral Scrolls

This skill allows the Paladin to read spiritual runes with the proficiency of a priest. They may, via this skill, fully utilise neutral spiritual scrolls but not scrolls of any other alignment.

Chosen of the Faithful

This ability grants the Grey Knight +2 DAC, which will not stack with any other form of Bless, or Watching. If a Grey Knight falls from grace then this reverses in a similar manner to a Paladin’s Bless.

Empower Chosen Weapon

This skill allows the Power Master to inflict magic damage with their chosen weapon, at will.

Empower Armour

This skill imbues the armour worn with a magical essence, granting magical armour class equal to half the value of the armour’s physical armour class (round up), and half effect the warrior’s opposite element (light or dark). These benefits are only gained when wearing master crafted armour, which appears appropriate to the warrior’s colour (e.g. should have white or black designs etc.).

Warrior Traditions

Differing warrior types have a variety of skills available to them. However their role for the most part is as a trained fighter. Where they first learnt how to fight and their style of combat will depend on where they trained or who trained them.

The idea behind this selection of abilities is to offer background choices to the warrior bracket. Much like a priest will have their spheres and churches, and wizards have their elemental colour and towers. These traditions need not just be a background note either; they could form a whole history of why your character is the way he is and what he does when he is not out adventuring.

It is only possible to standardly purchase one of these “Traditions”. Existing characters may find that one of these abilities adds to their character or works alongside what they had already developed, in which case they should feel free to buy one. Below is a table showing which classes can have which “Tradition” and an associated cost. All are deemed to be on table 1.

If you are of a non-standard class/race you may not buy a tradition without first checking with the GSM and they will need to sign the ability on. The class of Samurai is now deemed a Tradition. Existing Samurai may continue as they were before but no new Samurai may be started.

Tradition Costs and Availability by Class

By cross-referencing the class and the tradition it can be seen whether a character of that class can buy a given tradition – if so, the figure recorded is the cost in points to do so. An ‘x’ means that tradition cannot be acquired.

The Samurai tradition may only be learnt by Amlesian Human Warriors and costs 40 points post 8th.

Some races are restricted in which traditions they may buy. There is a list of these restrictions at the end of the chapter.

Adventurer

The Adventurer is the classic hero type, their skills have been honed whilst rescuing princesses from towers, making daring escapes from the lairs of pirates, and just doing daring and often heroic deeds. However there is also the other side of the adventurer: A cad, a bounder and rascalion, with little thought to the future, careless and living for the now and the thrill of high adventure.

They often seem to have a secret motive or benefactor- and are well equipped with all manner of gumpf.

- Well Equipped with 400 grulls worth of immediately available or simple potions. Use the costs for perm potions for this calculation.
- Well Equipped with supernatural scrolls and may battle board up to 10 power of standard magical or spiritual scrolls. This can be a mixture of the two if desired.
- 1/day Recuperation: The Adventurer recovers well from a mortal danger with amazing powers of recuperation. As such, the first time per day where required they gain a fully cumulative live to minus 6 and, whilst unconscious due to damage, regenerate at a rate of 1pt of locational damage and 1pt of tblp per 5 minutes. They cannot 'bleed' to death.
- 1/day Well Prepared: Before time-in is called gains a 'lucky idea' with regards to the adventure he is about to undergo.
- This ability can only be used should the player be fully ready for his adventure – in full costume and make-up etc as required. The answer by the referee could be "remember the anti-venoms", "wrap up warm" or even "expect undead". Obviously it is necessary for this to be done with the referee for the adventure, and does legitimately allow the character to add further equipment to his battle board. {Think of this ability as James Bond getting his supplies from Q, not knowing what he is going to need – but always just happening to have the required object}.
- Due to their careless manner, or their need to give money to their contacts they automatically lose ½ of any payment they might receive from an adventure, including any monies gained from treasure, bounties and such. Any lost money is automatically returned to the referee.

Commoner

The Commoner is an unusual type of fighter, typically those that have 'fallen' into adventuring, perhaps seeking some personal goal or knowledge. Perhaps there was a retired mercenary who lived in their village whose stories awoke a primal instinct in them before leaving on their great quest training in the militant skills along him. Or maybe they were born and raised in one the cities of the Empire; every day being a struggle to survive and having to learn to fight in order to live.

- 1/day Instinct: After 30secs of melee versus an opponent [timed from the 1st blow struck] is able to get a gut-feeling about the opponent, in the manner of a lucky idea about the opponent but also granting a Study Opponent [as per table 10 ability].
- Commoners do not rely on excessive amounts of armour, preferring to be light on foot and ready for trouble at all times. As such for each 2 ranks of PAC that the character class could normally wear, but isn't, they gain +1 DAC (e.g. a character could wear up to AC 4, but chooses to only wear AC 2 gains an additional point of DAC).
- For this calculation use the armour listings in the Handbook – exclude Layering but include Master Crafted bonuses: Thus a warrior could normally wear PAC 6 [Plate] but by only wearing PAC 2 [Leathers] he would gain 2 DAC.
- Due to their upbringing poisons take twice as long to progress and take a minimum of 30secs to have any effect even if the poison is instant.
- Diseases also take twice as long to progress, and take a minimum of 5 minutes to kill even if the effect was meant to be instant.

Guard

Most cities, towns and villages have a group of ‘guards’ to defend and uphold the laws or local desires. Whether they are a member of the village watch, a city militiaman, or town guard, there is a certain skill to being able to put up with sitting around for hours looking like you’re busy.

Despite this common perception of the Labyrinthian guard, their sense of duty and resolve in the face of overwhelming odds often leads the guard to be known for their determined and ability to ‘stand their ground’. Those that become mercenaries often epitomise this stubborn resilience and keen eyed perception.

- 1/day “Standing Ground”: May be activated like a War Cry i.e. within 2 seconds of an event occurring. This ability allows the Guard to increase his resistance levels for the next 5 minutes- This force of will costs 3 tblp for each level he chooses to increase it by. There is no maximum level. Once it has been increased it cannot be raised further using this same ability.
- Guards may learn and buy any published “Distancing” style ability 1 table earlier e.g. Enhanced Distancing on Table 7 rather than 8.
- 1/day “On Guard” After 5 minutes of being within the same general location; in a tavern, at a cave entrance etc, gains 6th Sense [as per the tables ability but no DAC requirement], Traitor Shield [as tables], and ‘Guards’ Danger Sense – similar to the Tomb Robber ability but will provide a sense of imminent danger with regards to things occurring in that location, lasts as long as they remain in that location (e.g. an attack is about to happen, a ritual strike is about to target the area). Is broken if they leave that area

Legionnaire

A member of the Empire’s Legions dedicated to the cause. Unlike a common soldier, their first loyalty is to the Empire, rather than the grull. Legionnaires should select a legion to join. Details of legions can be found on the Laby Wiki, in the Almanac, or by asking on the forums. Some legions may have joining restrictions or other requirements.

- As long as a Legionnaire is not outlawed or ostracised they gain their standard imperial potion allowance for free and are provided with a suit of normal master crafted armour every dungeon. The minimum potion allowance they will be given is always five 6 points, regardless of system effects in place. A legionnaire is also well equipped with a trusty old weapon and shield, with no penalty for this loss.
- Legionnaires also gain + 1 level of resistance vs. Domination effects not from a superior within their legion.
- Finally, they gain an innate “For the Legion”. This acts as either a Discipline Innate (as per the post 8th ability), a War Cry, or grants immunity to repels for 5 minute.

Monastic

Some fighters are trained at monastic centres, often with specific religious or life-affirming tenets that guide and direct these fighters as they venture out in to the wider world. The reasons for leaving the monastery are left to the individual characters. It could be that they are sent out by the Elders to discover the meaning of existence, or that they were taken in as an orphan and now they seek out whatever happened to the rest of their family.

Monastic fighters are always principled, well disciplined and find little joy in material wealth. As such this “training” may only be taken by characters of a lawful alignment.

- May buy the ‘Ley Believer’ ability for ½ cost, and may buy True Believer as per Paladin.
- Gains Discipline 1/day – Which acts as per a war cry ability but against a listed domination effect, emotion effect or fear effect rather than a stopping effect.
- Chosen Weapon: Gains +1 cumulative weapon mastery in a weapon type of choice, noted on character card when bought.
- Due to the well-trained regime those trained from Monastic Orders automatically gain one additional specialist slot from their base class. Should their class not receive Specialist Skill abilities, e.g. Kensai, they may instead choose a specialist from the standard Warrior options.
- Those under Monastic training may never battleboard more than 3 items [Monks etc may still not benefit from any items]. They also have wealth restrictions as per Monk.

Privileged

Not all of the mercenary caste are from the same background, some are from more notable stock. The young nobles, children of rich merchants, and those that move in such circles, such as a Senator's family, or even the family of a noble retainer, can experience a very different style of training into the world of melee, and battle. Alternatively, the privileged character could be from a clan or oriental house, or even a tribe.

Their training would take a more organised form: Proper teachers and instructors holding small classes and individual tutoring for the up and coming generation.

The styles of this expertise would vary greatly- depending on the teacher and of course the wishes of those paying the fees. The pomp and ritual of the heavily armed and armoured court Knight, or the delicate and fanciful speed of the best duellists could be extremes of this training.

Those with this training hold the knowledge of 'battle tactics' and perhaps more importantly the expectation to win.

- 1/day "Battle Tactics" This skill allows the warrior to come up with a plan – it takes 1 minute concentration to formulate, though this can be spoken externally and involve others if desired. The 'plan' must be enacted within 15 minutes of its formulation, else is wasted.
- For the 1st 5 minutes of the plan or until its end [if sooner] the warrior gains: +6/2 temporary life, and one of a War Cry, Salmon Leap, Knockback or Cold Rage.
- 1/day "Know your Foe" This skill allows the user to gain knowledge about a particular target. It can work in one of two ways:
 - Based on passed on knowledge, remembered studies, and common lore it will reveal about a sentences worth of information about a particular creature type. e.g. The party hear tell of a Werebear rampaging in the local area. From using this ability the warrior is able to learn that Werebears are known for only being harmed by the supernatural or weapons made from Gold, typically goodly creatures and fond of honey. OR
 - Based on 10 seconds observation of a target would reveal the number and type of 'hits' a creature has and any strange requirements that may be necessary to injure it productively. e.g. The same Werebear from above is met in the woods, this ability reveals that it has 60hits, these need to be supernatural or 'golden' and that its fur is mystically enchanted such that weapon blows will have very little effect [e.g. rockskin style].
- At all times they gain +1 level of resistance against physical Domination and Stopping Effects.
- Those Privileged trained have slightly more Multi-class options open to them than previously.
- Thus non-human types with this training may multi-class to any [solely] warrior bracket class as long as it is a published option for their Class, e.g. A ½ Elf Warrior could MC/ to Cavalier at the published cost.
- Humans gain an additional MC slot at 8th+0pts.

Samurai

Samurai are the ultimate followers of the Jade Code. As such their personal honour code is very limiting indeed. If a Samurai breaks his code in any way he must commit Seppuku [ritual suicide] at once. He may delay Seppuku only to get his revenge on a person or group related to his failure, but must commit Seppuku by the end of the adventure on which he breaks his code. Under no circumstances may a Samurai be 'let off' from such a situation, and they cannot be restored to life. In fact, a Samurai committing Seppuku may choose to rebirth as the same character with the same memories.

A Samurai will commit Seppuku if:

- They show outward fear.
- They run from a fight.
- They contract to perform a task and fail (e.g. agree to rescue a princess, but she is already dead when the samurai gets there).

For more information on this please see the section in Evolution: Races or The World of Primus Book 3, The Jade Empire

- Samurai are Immune to all forms of Fear.
- They gain the following innate abilities:
- 8/day Damage Focus: Samurai can add +6pts of damage [+1 hit] to a single blow. The power can be used only once per blow and is used up even if the blow misses. If this would take the damage above the characters max damage then instead it cuts through PAC and ignores physical armour class.
- 4/day Yell of Fear: This will 'fear' all creatures of less than half the Samurai's level that are within 20'. This only lasts 1 minute. It affects creatures with no spirit but other than this works as per the "Cause Fear" miracle. It does not work on other Samurai, or 'mindless' creatures such as Undead or Elementals.
- 2/day Cold Rage: This ability allows the Samurai to enter a rage, such that for the next 5 minutes, the Samurai takes 25% less from any damage suffered, bar that suffered from purely magic weapons and magical spells. In a Cold Rage the Samurai is able to distinguish friend from foe and as such is not required to attack them. In a cold rage you may use 'offensive powers' such as Stunning Yell, but not other powers like monk locational healing or using your magical ring to Blink away.
- 2/ day Stunning Yell: This works in a similar manner to the Halt miracle, but works on all sentient creatures of a lower level than the Samurai within 20'. It does not work on mindless creatures.

Sell Sword

This type of fighter is a dedicated mercenary, perhaps a lone wolf, member of a mercenary group or war band but they learnt their trade in a 'hands on' fashion. As a professional mercenary they are intrinsically linked to the fate of Primus. Knowing that the mercenary caste is one of the strongest things Primus has been able to create to defend itself, these heroes are watched over by the Primal Spirit and the Empire.

- On any licensed adventure the Sell Sword is able to ensure that he is rewarded well to the extent that he will receive an additional 800 grulls if the mission is successful. The money is claimed from the office of whomever authorised the 'Mercenary Hiring License', and requested from the Desk by the Adventure Referee. No more than 800 grulls can be claimed in any one week by a Mercenary.
- In addition to this the Sell Sword has his healing potion allowance paid for, i.e. no money has to be given to the referee in order to claim your 6pt allowance.
- 1/day Primal Strike Through being able to call upon the power of Primus is able to empower a 'normal' [not otherwise supernatural] weapon such that whilst wielded by the Sell Sword it will inflict either magical or spiritual damage as required, even if the user could not usually use magical or spiritual artefacts.
- Should a Sell Sword need to be resurrected 'off-adventure' they are deemed to have the Fated Hero ability from the post 8th development system.
- Should a Sell Sword become outlawed then they lose the benefits of the additional payment and potion allowance until it is removed.

Skirmisher

While many warriors are used to forming shield walls and fighting in a line, the Skirmisher shuns shields, and works best operating separate from a shield wall.

- Skirmishers lose U skill, and can never regain the ability to use a shield. They are also limited to wearing light armour (up to A/C 2 before Master Crafted bonus).
- Skirmishers gain Forearm Parry (as per the Monk skill), and gain 2 points of class based DAC (does not stack with Duellist, Kensai or similar).
- Skirmishers gain an innate “Advantage in combat” 1/day which acts as either a Salmon Leap, a Force Majeure (as tables), or a Strike to Stun effecting 8 levels.
- Skirmishers are adept at sensing hidden dangers and are often aware of them before they occur, a gut feeling or a split second reaction. This grants them Danger Sense. When 20ft or more away from the party they will often suddenly become aware of a hidden danger or unseen problem (Ref’s discretion but it will only reveal unforeseen dangers). It can also function when near the party for truly unseen dangers (such as ritual strikes, or opponents about to teleport in to attack).

Soldier

The Soldier has been trained in a military organisation; this may be one of the Empire’s Legions, a Noble’s private army, or even a dark and evil army lead by a great evil god intent on invasion and conquering – But the Soldier’s life is similar the world over. They march, fight and die.

- A Soldier knows that his odds of survival are greatly increased the better the equipment he has, and how well he looks after what he’s got. As such, soldiers know how to look after and maintain their own equipment- to the extent that their armour loses no normal uses.
- They are automatically equipped with a ‘trusty old weapon’ and may buy additional trusty weapons at 25pts each. There is no penalty associated to the loss of such a weapon.
- They may buy any tables ability to do with armour as though a 1st class Warrior, if they can already buy the ability as a Warrior, then they may buy any published ability to do with armour 2 tables earlier than normal.
- For example, Armour Mastery is normally on table 8 [1000pts] but for a 1st class Warrior with the Soldier tradition it is on table 6 [600pts].
- 1/day Stand and Die: It is the duty of a Soldier to stand and die, but those charged with vitae are a different breed. This ability must be announced at the beginning of a combat and grants the Soldier Live-to-Minus 5 minutes. In this Live-to-Minus he may remain conscious and melee fight – but not use any other innate ability. He may continue to move and talk [not casting etc] but only at ½ speed [though still fight at normal speed]. The 5 minute duration starts when the Live-to-Minus is entered. Should it not be entered then the ability is wasted for that day. When the effect ends the additional live to minus disappears and if the Soldier has used the additional live to minus from this ability he dies – unavoidably. May not use this ability in conjunction with ‘Tempo of Battle’ or similar. It should be noted limbs can still stop working.
- Soldiers also know how to look after the cuts and scrapes that come from their daily toil. As such, they learn the ‘bandaging’ skill [See At the Sharp End], and count as knowing the recipe for when applying Treated and Medicated bandages.

Traditions: Racial Restrictions

Here are listed the adjustments to the traditions available according to your race.zxx.

- Rovfugar as per Budoka
- Silver Folk Slayer as per Silver Warden
- Vochstelen who have selected the Militant option gain Traditions as per a Warlock
- Beggars (Kallah and Hanot) eligible for a Tradition learn Commoner as per a Ranger.
- Alfar cannot be Adventurers
- Ancient Folk cannot be Commoners
- Crol cannot be Adventurers
- Crol cannot be Commoners
- Draves cannot be Commoners
- Dwarves can only be Guards, Privileged, Soldiers, or Legionnaires.
- Elves cannot be Commoners
- Faeries cannot be Commoners
- Farfolk cannot be Adventurers
- Goblins cannot be Soldiers or Legionnaires.
- Goblins pay double price for the Skirmisher Tradition.
- Ggrutuck can only be Guards, Soldiers, or Legionnaires.
- Orcs cannot be Monastic
- Ogres can only be Guards or Commoners
- Trolls can only be Guards or Commoners
- Ratfolk cannot be Adventurers
- Silver Folk cannot be Commoners

If a standard race is not listed above then you may assume that they may take any training as befits their Class.

Post 8th Abilities

All of the classes detailed above within this book, may learn “Warrior Subclass” abilities, plus as their own specific class, as mentioned in the post 8th development section within in class.

Some abilities are listed for 1st Class Warrior Subclass. In a change the restriction on dual-bracket characters has been removed. These abilities may now be purchased by 1st Class Warrior Subclasses that are automatically paired into another bracket.

Immunities to Bruising; there are several abilities which confer this immunity they all share a few common restrictions. No forms of Bruising Immunity can be applied in combination with any form of damage reduction. Immunity to Bruising does not confer immunity to associated effects from the blow so a blow would still deliver a paralysis or knock-back even if the damage was reduced to zero.

Table 1 (0pts)

Trained Warrior	Cost: 50pts	T: 1
Available To: 1st Class Warrior Subclass
May never multi-race or buy abilities outside of the warrior bracket but may buy as a 1st class warrior. May only multi-class within the warrior bracket.
Hardened Warrior (from Trained Warrior))	Cost: +100pts	T: 1
Available To: 1st Class Warrior Subclass
Loses Tradition slot, but may now multi-race to a published multi-race.
Sword Brother	Cost: 30pts	T: 1
Available To: 1st Class Warrior
Two warriors must buy this simultaneously, and the fellow warrior must be named on the character card. Grants Tell Wounds, as per the Druid ability, upon each other (only) and +1 DAC when together
Call Location Shot	Cost: 40pts	T: 1
Available To: Archer
If a target is struck by a bolt or an arrow then the Archer may nominate the location actually struck. An archer may not call a different location if a shield was struck.
Utilise Strength With Bow	Cost: 120pts	T: 1
Available To: Archer
May use strength with a bow.
Immunity to Bruising Using DAC	Cost: 20pts	T: 1
Available To: Monk
This ability allows the Monk to move so perfectly with a blow as he is struck that if he is able to apply his DAC to the blow, and it equals or exceed the amount of damage the blow would normally inflict then he is deemed not to take any ‘bruising damage’ from the blow. Thus a Monk in DAC 6 would not take any damage at all from a normal 6pt Single from a ghou – though the paralysis would still affect him.

Additional “Ki Strike”	Cost: 45pts* (Max 3)	T: 1
Available To: Kensai
As per their standard pre 8th ability.

Spiritual Innates Error! Bookmark not defined.	Cost: 10pts/Spirit Point*	T: 1
Available To: Paladin, Unholy Champion, Grey Knight
May select a single Spiritual Tree (See Words from Above) this must be relevant to their base stairway in the case of Unholy Champions and Grey Knights. May now purchase innates of standard miracles from this tree at 10 points per spirit point. A higher level innate can only be owned as many times of the miracles before it. e.g. to purchase two Total Heal innates they must first have purchased two of all previous miracles on the tree. Casting damage is suffered for casting these innates as per priest.

Discern Nature of Undead	Cost: 10pts	T: 1
Available To: Paladin, Unholy Champion, Grey Knight
As the Priest ability.

Enhanced Perception	Cost: 80pts	T: 1
Available To: Ranger
Grants immunity to an attack or an enemy’s defence which is based on sight, except for blindness (e.g. Bedazzle).

Utilise Strength With Bow	Cost: 140pts	T: 1
Available To: Ranger
May use strength with a bow.

Extra Damage Focus innates	Cost: 10pts* (Max 8)	T: 1
Available To: Samurai

Extra Yell of Fear innates	Cost: 45pts*(Max 4)	T: 1
Available To: Samurai

Embody Minor Angel	Cost: 225pts	T: 4
Available To: Paladin
This allows the Paladin to call a minor angel directly into him, transfiguring his form to become that of the angel. For 5 minutes, the user gains use of the angel's 12 goodly spirits (useable on any goodly miracle on the summoner's miracle list, or should they not belong to a priest guild, on any 'standard' goodly miracle). They shed spiritual light in a 10' radius around them, fear evil of up to 3rd level, and may walk through non-spiritual walls at will for the duration – with a 2 second disorientation period. They are incapable of performing anything the ref considers an evil act. They become purely spiritual, suffering from only spiritual damage and effects for this duration, and see with spirit sight. While so embodied, they are vulnerable to effects that specifically affect Angelkind, such as Hand of Putrefaction. This can be used 1/day for five minutes.

Repel Undead 1/day	Cost: 35pts*	T: 4
Available To: Paladin
Additional uses of the Paladinic standard ability

True Repulsion	Cost: 40pts	T: 4

Discern Own Remaining Spiritual Innates	Cost: 20pts	T: 4
Available To: Paladin, Unholy Champion, Grey Knight

Embody Abishai	Cost: 225pts	T: 4
Available To: Unholy Champion
This allows the Unholy Champion to call an Abishai directly into him, transfiguring his form to become that of the creature. Abishai are dark, demonic angels of evil faiths, shadowy figures with bat-wings. For 5 minutes, the user gains use of the Abishai's 12 evil spirits (useable on any evil miracle on the summoner's miracle list, or should they not belong to a priest guild, on any 'standard' evil miracle), fear goodly spirits of up to 3rd level, and may walk through non-spiritual walls at will for the duration – with a 2 second disorientation period. They may shadow shift once. They become purely spiritual, suffering from only spiritual damage and effects for this duration, and see with spirit sight. While so embodied, they are vulnerable to effects that would specifically affect demons. Usable 1/day for five minutes

Immunity to Bruising Using Master-Crafted Armour	Cost: 75pts	T: 4
Available To: Warrior Subclass
For this to work the character must be wearing master crafted armour on the location struck and that armour must apply to the blow. If so then the character may apply all AC owned on the location and if it equals or exceeds the damage inflicted then they may ignore the bruising damage.

Available To: 1st Class Budoka
As the Monk ability

Upper Arm Parry	Cost: 125pts	T: 8
Available To: 1st Class Budoka
As the Monk ability.

Chi Perfection	Cost: 200pts	T: 8
Available To: 1st Class Monk
From Rebirth. The Character becomes immune to effects and damage that are purely magical, purely spiritual or purely earthpower in nature (except for things created by these powers with a physical component e.g. Wall of Stone, Bind, and Undead). Additionally, this ability does not cover effects that target the Monk's possessions rather than them – for example they could still have their weapon shattered, or their potions boil away. They cannot be seen by elemental sight / spiritual sights etc. Magical, Spiritual and Earthpower effects that target the monk as an individual do not work – even if they inflict physical damage. The Monk is affected by effects that have a physical component that affect an area rather than an individual e.g. Entangle. The character may never upset his balance by being the first person to initiate any combat and thus may only attack in purest self-defence, they die instantly and permanently should they break this of their own choice. The character is still fully affected by a supernatural weapon with a physical component, though for example he would be immune to a sword of power. This character may never be restored to life by ANY means including physical, as his essence unravels far too swiftly as he dies passing onto its next life instantly (beginning the rebirth as soon as the character dies) A Monk with Chi Perfection cannot inflict supernatural damage.

Open Hand Master	Cost: 200pts	T: 8
Available To: 1st Class Monk, Budoka.
May use no weapons bar unarmed combat. Grants Immunity to Loss of Weapon Masteries, Immunity to Counter- and Contra-Masteries, +1 cumulative Mastery in unarmed combat, Disarm x1/day, Tanashiwara x1/day, opponents using Distancing Combat abilities have their damage reduction lessened by 3pts (Distancing only grants -3pt reduction, Enhanced Distancing a -6pt reduction, etc).

Strike the Heart	Cost: 400pts	T: 8
Available To: 1st Class Monk
The character now inflicts spiritual damage with their hands in unarmed combat. May never enter the Wizard bracket.

Spiritual Aptitude “Sphere”	Cost: 40pts	T: 8
Available To: (1st-class only) Paladin, Grey Knight, Unholy Champion
The character must have purchased at least 2 innates of every miracle on the chosen tree. They may now buy the Priests’ table 6 and table 8 Sphere specific abilities (See Words from Above for specific details) such as Reaching Force, Hopes Shield, or Depraved Cunning. This may not be purchased for the character’s “Secondary Sphere” if they should have one. If the character later enters the Priest bracket then this counts as their first Major Sphere.

[Un] Holy Fury	Cost: 80pts	T: 8
Available To: (1st Class Only) Paladin, Unholy Champion
Grants +1 strength (Above previous max), +1 maximum damage, +12/4 life and a 25% non-cumulative cold rage. Lasts 5 minutes 1/day but only versus creatures of opposite alignment.

Contra Mastery	Cost: 90pts	T: 8
Available To: 1st Class Warrior Subclass
As Counter Mastery but is one weapon versus one different weapon, e.g. warrior uses a bastard sword and their Contra Mastery is against daggers. In a change 1st Class Warriors, 1st Class Kensai/Blademasters, 1st Class Monks, and Battlemasters may buy Contra Mastery as many times as desired.

Weapon Master	Cost: 200pts	T: 8
Available To: (1st Class Only) Warrior, Monk, Kensai, Rovfugar, Budoka, Duellist, Wind Dancer
One weapon only, may not use any other weapon, may not use unarmed combat. Grants Immunity to Loss of Weapon Masteries, Immunity to Disarm, Immunity to Weapon Break, Immunity to Counter Mastery, Immunity to Contra Mastery, Quick Draw Weapon at will, +1 cumulative Mastery in chosen weapon, Disarm 1/day.

Tempo of Battle	Cost: 100pts	T: 9
Available To: Warrior Subclass
Physical 'power ups' now last length of combat [to a minimum of 5 minutes] if they previously lasted 5 minutes or greater. If combat ends 'power ups' go down. A 'power up' is defined in this case as an ability that is used in order to grant a combat advantage, and more specifically in this ability defined as a physical talent, e.g. Cold Rage, not a Plate [o] spell from the party wizard. This cannot enhance an ability's duration beyond 30 minutes by any means. NB: The end of a combat is at ref's discretion, while some leeway will be given for the setting of monsters, moving between encounters ends a tempo, as would receiving prepared healing.

Mystical Rages	Cost: 60 pts	T: 9
Available To: Warrior Subclass
Any form of Rage, e.g. Cold, Berserk etc, that offers a % reduction, now applies versus magic.

+6 DAC for Force Majeure	Cost: +40pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior Subclass
From +3 DAC above.

Enhanced Weapon Mastery Shield	Cost: +125pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior Subclass
From Weapon Mastery Shield and Distancing. As Enhanced Distancing Combat but requires use of an O class weapon and a large shield (25"+ in diameter). Max DAC=6, as with Weapon Mastery Shield. Now has max damage Quin unless a Battlemaster.

Strike Blows	Cost: 40pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior Subclass
Where each damage grade inflicted by a weapon called by the character becomes a separate blow. e.g. double is 2 blows, triple is three blows etc.

Keen Eye	Cost: +150pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior, Duellist
Accuracy through PAC at all times - one weapon type only. Must have 'Accuracy' from Table 7.

Keen Eye	Cost: +100pts	T: 10
Available To: Post Weapon Master Skill
Accuracy through P.A.C. at all times - one weapon type only. Must have 'Accuracy' from Table 7.

Breaking Blow	Cost: 40pts*	T: 10
Available To: Warrior, Duellist
Replaces the old ability of Weapon Break. This ability now works as per Table 7 ability Shattering Blow above.

Enhanced Counter Weapon Mastery	Cost: +100pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior, Monk, Duellist
From Counter Mastery above, reduction is now 9pts (from -6 pts). Does not work with an ability that was previously a Lesser Counter Mastery.

Defensive Combat	Cost: +250pts	T: 10
Available To: 1st Class Warrior Subclass
From Enhanced Distancing Combat, granting 12 points off unarmed combat damage, 6 points off O class weapons and 3 points off B class weapons. To use this ability the character must be using a B class weapon held in both hands.

Truly Determined	Cost: 50pts	T: 10
Available To: Warrior Subclass
Post ‘Determination’ ability. May now use war cry innates, immunities and appropriate temporary ‘power ups’ to override Determination damage as appropriate.
For example, a Warrior with Determination, could use a War Cry in a ghoul fight to make him immune to Paralysis and thus not suffer damage from each Paralysis for that time. Or the same warrior if he acquired Immunity to Paralysis permanently would not take damage from Determination versus the Ghoul’s Paralysis.

Contra Mastery vs. Weapons	Cost: 200pts	T: 10
Available To: (1st Class Only) Warrior, Monk, Kensai, Duellist, or Battlemaster
From Counter Mastery and Contra Mastery vs. 3 weapons, now gains Contra Mastery vs. all weapons.

Max Damage Quin in each hand with weapons fitting E-class Battlemaster restrictions.

Max Damage ‘Quin’

Cost: 150pts

T: 11

Available To: (1st Class) Warrior, Cavalier, Duellist

Max Damage Quin with one weapon – either ‘B’ Class or ‘O’ Class – NOT ‘E’ Class. If the ability of ‘B’ Class Quin is already possessed then this ability may be bought at ½ cost.

Final Stand

Cost: 50pts

T: 11

Available To: Warrior, Kensai, Cavalier

Usable ONCE EVER. The Warrior announces their Final Stand and they may then not move more than 20’ from that spot. They will not die until the fight is over, nor will their locations stop working and they cannot be severed. They cannot be stopped by stopping effects, fall unconscious due to damage, or be otherwise prevented from engaging in combat (e.g. by a ‘Haven’ etc.). However if they take enough damage to die then they cannot be cured afterwards regardless of all other abilities.

Enemies may leave, in which case they will permanently hold the Warrior in awe and will not attack them in any way ever again, and they may not pass him by.

- These abilities are [Un] Holy Words. Immunity to Baneful Holy / Unholy Words applies.
- In order to learn these Holy Words it is necessary for the practitioner must have purchased post 8th (base stairways do NOT count) at least one innate of all miracles on the base tree of the relevant sphere.
- When buying these abilities a specific word is assigned to the ability – that becomes the [Un] Holy Word.
- Thus a Paladin with the healing tree could learn their Holy Word as the following on their character card. Holy Word – Healing – “LIFE!”
- All of these words must be shouted to have any affect. They all cost 75pts each to learn, and can be learnt at most 1/3 tables post 8th; e.g. 2nd on T6, a 3rd on t9 and 4th on T12. This is the cap even if buying Words from different spheres.
- In addition, no same Un / Holy Word may be used within 15 minutes of each other by the same shouter.

Healing

By shouting this Holy Word the Paladin is instantly cured 60 tblep & 60pts of locational damage by a goodly spiritual source, as per Cure Critical Wounds.

Benediction

By shouting this Holy Word the Paladin is able to negate/destroy/end one ongoing evil spiritual effect affecting a goodly spirit. Thus this could be used to remove a Spiritual Mastery, get rid of a Curse, negate a Suspend Life etc.

Dismissal

By shouting this Holy Word the Paladin is able to destroy all Undead of up to 3rd level within shouting distance [or 60', whichever less]. Immunity to Holy Words or Dismissal miracles grants immunity.

Force

By shouting this word all spirits within 20' are repelled, take a knockback, knockdown and a 10 second Halt effecting 8 levels and below. Immunities apply separately to each individual facet, with Immunity to Holy/Unholy Word granting full immunity. This does not affect the shouter.

Warding

This Word causes one target with a spirit who hears it to be unable to approach within 20' of the shouter; moving that far away should they move / be closer. Should the shouter move faster than a slow walk, fight or cast then the effect is broken. It otherwise lasts at most 15 minutes.

Communication

The Word grants the shouter a Spiritual Know Foe against the target of the Word. This has the effect of deducing all spiritual information from the target. The target cannot effectively use any activated spiritual powers or abilities directly against the shouter. For instance, a target Priest could continue to use their spiritual mace, but they could not cast a Spirit Bolt, nor could they use the Cause Grievous miracle that their mace could otherwise use once per day. Immunity to Un/Holy Words or Spiritual Informational Effects grants immunity to this effect. In any event this effect lasts no longer than 15 minutes.

NECROMANCY

The shouting of this Unholy Word causes all those within hearing [up to 60' the lesser] to take a standard Undead Touch effect, i.e. one of Paralysis, Freeze, Fear, Disease or Level Drain. It is the shouter's choice and is declared at the time of use, does not affect the shouter. Immunity to Unholy Word or the respective effect grants immunity.

DOMINION

The shouting of this Unholy Word causes all within hearing [up to 60' the lesser] to be affected by a non-level based Beguile Spirit effect, lasting at most 60seconds. Does not affect the shouter. Immunity to Beguile or Unholy Words grants full immunity.

CAUSING

The shouting of this Unholy Word causes all within hearing [up to 60' if the lesser] to take a Cause Serious miracle to the head. Does not harm the shouter-rather they are cured 24/24 in spiritually evil curing, providing at least one individual is harmed. Resistances / SAC apply as normal, and Immunity to Unholy Words grants full immunity.

Warrior Status

Those Warriors that take to the adventuring trail come from many backgrounds. Anyone is able to pick up a weapon and learn how to use it, they don't need mystical training or faith in a God, they just need the will to learn and get hit. The Status listed below represent some of these upbringings. They are only available to those characters that start as Warrior Subclasses, this includes Psi-Masters and other classes in two brackets. If a Vochstelen has chosen to be a Martial Vochstelen then they can purchase a status.

A character can only buy one of these Status, and life gained from them does not stack with life from another Status.

Bildteve Pit Fighter

Involved in the underground fights that take place in the Bildteve Docks, Ware houses, and other places. Brutal, bloody and often fatal.

Stage One - Slugger, Table: 1 Cost: 50

Loses the Ability to utilise a shield and may never regain it.

May never wear above light armour

Gains Forearm Parry (as Monk Skill)

Stage Two - Brawler, Table: 5 Cost: + 60

Gains Live to Minus 3 (does not stack with Live to Minus from another status)

Low Blow 1/day – Acts as a Physical flesh and blood Halt effecting 8 levels and below.

Stage Three - Pugilist, Table: 7 Cost: + 70

Now gains Live to Minus 6 total.

Second Wind 1/day – Can only be used at the point the character enters their live to minus (within 2 seconds), they are instantly cured 12 tblp. If multiple innates are owned then multiple innates can be used, but only enough to bring them out of their live to minus and into positive life.

May buy extra Low Blow at 40 points, max 3, and extra Second Winds at 20 points, max 2.

Caravan Guard

A life travelling from city to city, and town to town, keeping an eye out for Bandits, Raiders, or great beasts to ensure the Trade Caravans reach their destination intact. They are particularly adept at using the secret paths of the Mittlenacht to avoid the worst dangers, and to increase the caravans speed.

Stage One - Lookout, Table: 1 Cost: 50

Gain Perception. If this is already owned then this is upgraded to Supernatural Perception.

If the character is travelling through the Mittlenacht they have a rough idea of which way to go to reach their destination.

Stage Two – Picket, Table: 5 Cost: + 70

The character gains Danger Sense as per the Guard Tradition.

Upon entering the Mittlenacht/similar places gains a 7 word Lucky Idea about the general area/dangers of this specific part of the mittlenacht. This is gained once per “area” they enter.

Stage Three – Sentry, Table: 7 Cost: + 40

Bandit Knowledge – Gains a Pre-Dungeon Lucky idea about Bandits/Raiders in the general area that the brief (or other relevant location) is happening.

The Caravan Guard is unaffected by effects from the Mittlenacht that would cause them to become lost.

Sailor

The character learnt their trade on the ships that sail the Oceans of Primus. Be it the trade routes from Bildteve to Ishma or the Baronies, or between Scarlene and Keys. They spent their time fighting Pirates, Sea beasts and other dangers.

Stage One – Deckhand, Table: 1 Cost: 100

Gains Stability (as per table 3).

Gain Tell Direction if able to see the Sky.

Gains Large Lung Capacity (as table 1), if already owned then gains Immunity to Drown/similar effects.

Stage Two – Seaman, Table: 5 Cost: + 60

Repel Boarders 1/day – As per Knockback

Gains a physical Walk through Water 1/day.

Stage Three – Mariner, Table: 7 Cost: + 40

Boarding Action 1/day – Acts as per a Salmon Leap but allows the Character to deliver a non-damaging blow to one person at the end of it causing them to suffer a Knock Down.

May buy extra Walk through Waters at 40 points each, max 2, Repel Boarders at 30 points each max 3, and Boarding Action at 50 points max 1.

City Militia

A life protecting the rural lands from attack, patrolling between the villagers, and keeping the roads safe. Rarely called upon but there to respond should danger arise. As the legions of the Empire dwindle in size and number their role is becoming more important however.

Stage One – Cadet, Table: 1 Cost: 40

Is Well Equipped with a suit of normal master crafted armour, and an Apprentice Crafted Shield.

Stage Two – Militiaman, Table: 5 Cost: + 40

The Militiaman's armour is now considered Apprentice Crafted.

Is also equipped with a single Apprentice Crafted Weapon.

Stage Three – Militia Sergeant Table: 7 Cost: + 70

The Militiaman's armour, shield and weapon is now considered Journeyman status.

May upgrade their armour, shield and weapon to Master Status for 50 points each on table 8.

Noble Guard

A Member of the Nobility's Personal Guard, loyal to a chosen house rather than the Empire. The duty is to serve and protect their Lords and Ladies.

The character should choose a Noble House to align to when they start. For Houses controlled by player characters they should seek the Head of the Houses permission to be part of their guard.

Stage One – Guardsman, Table: 1 Cost: 60

Blood Infused Armour 1/day – While wearing Master Crafted Armour gains + 1 MAC/SAC for 5 minutes.

Gains + 1 Level of Resistance vs. Domination effects not from a member of their own House (does not stack with Retainer).

May buy Retainer to the House they are a guard of at half cost.

Stage Two – Warden, Table: 5 Cost: + 70

Gains Danger Sense (as per Guard Tradition).

Gains Primal Strike 1/day

Stage Three – Sentinel, Table: 7 Cost: + 70

Gains a Second innate of Blood Infused Armour.

Can stack 2 Blood Infused Armour innates to gain + 2 MAC and + 2 SAC for 5 minutes.

May buy extra Blood Infused Armour innates at 25 points each, max 2, and extra Primal Strikes at 40 points, max 2.

Mercenary

The Warrior trained as they worked, a true professional mercenary. Be it necessity, a desire for revenge, or because orcs killed their family, they picked up a weapon, and travelled out to seek fame and glory.

Stage One – Goblin Killer Table: 1 Cost: 40

The character is well equipped with a suit of master crafted armour, and their standard potion allowance for free.

Stage Two – Orc Smasher Table: 5 Cost: + 50

Dodgy Contacts – As a mercenary the character finds the best places to sell the treasure they often find on their adventures, gaining 25% extra value from any treasure they sell to a maximum of 3000 grulls extra.

Prepared – The Mercenary is always prepared for the life of an adventurer. As such is well equipped with a single batch of dungeon temp immediately available Potion (of any type).

Stage Three – Troll Slayer Table: 7 Cost: + 75

Dodgy Contacts can now provide a maximum of 5000 grulls of extra value to any treasure sold.

Part Time Work – Rather than using a weekly make the character can instead take private work gaining 250 grulls.

Prepared may now provide Simple Recipe potion types.

May buy extra batches of “Prepared” potions at 50 points each, max 3.

Pledged to the Angels

Possibly the result of growing up in a goodly monastery, or maybe from an earlier age, whatever the reason the warrior is pledged to the service of the Angels and the Spirits of Light, and fights in their name.

Stage One – Virtuous One Table: 1 Cost: 60

Must be Goodly in alignment. Is ever suffers a black mark then loses all benefits until it is removed.

Gains +3/1 life (not-stacking with life from another status).

Angel Blade 1/day – Allows the character to inflict Goodly Spirit damage for 5 minute in a similar manner to Primal Strike.

Stage Two – Vessel of the Angels Table: 5 Cost: + 70

Now gains +6/2 life (total).

Angel's Shield 1/day – Acts as a self only Spirit Shield that only applies vs. Evil Spirits.

Stage Three - Paragon of the Angels Table: 7 Cost: + 110

Gains +9/3 life (total).

Angelic Belief 1/day – With 30 seconds prayer can cast a single standard goodly miracle up to 4th level.

May buy extra Angels Blades at 40 points each, max 2, Extra Angel's Shields at 30 points, max 4, and an extra Angelic Belief at 70 points max 1.

The Demons Called

Perhaps the character's parents sold their soul to a demon, or the character struck a bargain with a demon at a cross roads. The reason matters less than the fact the warrior's soul is bound in service to the Hells.

Stage One – Condemned Soul, Table: 1 Cost: 100

Gains +3/1 life not stacking with life from another status.

At the start of the day may choose 6 mana worth of red or black standard spells as innates

Must be evil in alignment. If ever ceases to be evil dies instantly and this Status is lost and the points wasted.

Stage Two – Unhallowed Soul Table: 5 Cost: + 100

Now gains +6/2 life (total).

Now gains 12 mana worth of innates.

Stage Three – Hells Reaver Table: 7 Cost: + 200

+9/3 life (total).

All Rages are increased one stage vs. the Goodly, as follows: 25% goes to 33% goes to 50% goes to 66% goes to 75%.

Innates gained from stage one and two are now mantic (evil spirit).

Appendix Two: Life Caps

The maximum permanent or ‘at-will’ tblp value a character may have, including all bonuses from items, guilds, or similar, is determined as below:

Below Table 8: $3/2 \times$ character’s base life.

Below Table 10: $5/3 \times$ character’s base life.

Below Table 11: $2 \times$ character’s base life.

Below Table 12: $7/3 \times$ character’s base life.

Always round down to the nearest whole point.

First Class Warrior Subclasses whose base life at 8th is less than 51 may consider it to be 51 for these calculations. Life gained from another player’s ability, such as a Blessing that grants life, or the Warhaft of the Host ability, can exceed a player’s life cap. Items and guild life however, which are effectively permanent whilst they exist, cannot.

For convenience, below is a table giving maximum tblp values for a range of normal base life values - other values can be calculated as above.

Base TBLP	Pre Tb 8	Pre Tb 10	Pre Tb 11	Pre Tb 12
82	123	136	164	191
72	108	120	144	168
68	102	113	136	158
63	94	105	126	147
60	90	100	120	140
51	76	85	102	119
47	70	78	94	109
39	58	65	78	91
32	48	53	64	74
29	44	49	58	68

Characters who are above Table 12 can exceed the fixed limit by 6 tblp per 1000pts above 7500 if their 1st class is a Warrior class, by 4 if a 1st-class Priest, Scout, Druid or Warlock, and by 3 if a 1st-class neuronicist or Wizard.

For these purposes Sorcerors are considered a Wizard class, since Ancient Folk have difficulty acquiring physical toughness.

Power-Mongers and other warrior multi-classes that give no increase in base life are considered for capping to have 41 tblp at sixth (or 47 at eighth) – as if their tblp followed the Battle-Priest life-scale.

Acknowledgements and Thanks

With a game that has been going as long as Labyrinthe there are far too many people to thank for their hard work and effort, but a few stand out and we would like to thank them for their efforts over the years to keep the game running.

The previous GSM's; Jan, Iain Knope, Bruno, MCC and Phil for their hard work in keeping a game running and expanding as it has.

Saint Tim Treadwell for his tireless work printing the books, and everything else, for Labyrinthe and keeping the lights on.

Each and every person that has ever Monstered, A-Reffed, Reffed, Desked, Armoured, Gophered or been a Taverner. Without all that effort things would have fallen apart years ago.

To the thousands of people that have put in points requests over the decades. Without the drive to break the system, the desire to build a "Folder C" and the cool ideas contained within them the system would never have evolved beyond the handbook that it started with.

Finally, as is fitting in a warrior book, a thank you to the brave souls that step up to play the healing pure priest, without them playing a warrior would be a short lived experience.
