Introduction

So a big change from the previous Evolution. Due to the growing number of advanced races and classes, the changing of the Source Books to include less stats and more background, and not to forget the famous and ever growing “All” table it has become necessary to split Evolution into two books.

What you have here is Evolution – Races. It details all of the readily available races within the game system: humans, elves, and the others, as well as those from lands outside the Empire; Ishma, Amles, and the Baronies. You will also find the Racial Tables, the ever-growing list of Multi-Races from the timeless favourite Elder-Fey to the new Titan race.

You will also notice a few changes to races, including the removal of height restrictions (accents still remain).

The changes, and additions, are hoped to bring the published system into line with what people have been applying for on Yellow Paper for years.

Standard Races

In previous rule books the standard, starting, races have been spread over several books, the Realm of Glass and The Land of the Seven Winds to name two. With these updates they are all being drawn into one place, here. Certain races will still be listed in the Handbook, but below is a complete guide of all the races that a character can start as.

Humans

The most common race on Primus, Humans are everywhere. They rule the Empire of Labyrinthia, have moved south into what is now called The Baronies, travelled the seas to Ishma and crossed great land bridges to Amles. In system terms Labyrinthian Humans have no specific stat bonuses, make-up requirements or costume requirements. Some specific types of Humans (Baronial, Ishmaic, and Amlesian) have slightly different stats and restrictions which are detailed later.

Most classes are available to Humans, and they have few restrictions to progression.

Halfling

Previously a scarce race, their tales are told in the Lands of Primus: Realm of Glass. Over recent years few have been seen. Now, after living in Imperial Cities and marrying with Humans, they travel amongst others, often confused for Humans.

Halflings tend to be short, though this is not always the case. They can only start as Pathfinders, but may multi-class as a Human. The exception to this is that should they enter the wizard bracket they only gain half their base mana (in a similar manner to a Dwarf).

Due to their hardiness they take only half effect from damaging magic and three-quarters the damage from poisons, and are paralysed for only 3/4 of the normal duration of a paralysis. Their small strength means they can never wield two handed weapons, pole-arms, or any weapon longer than a broadsword, nor may they acquire more than a single grade of strength.

They may only ever wear light armour.

Racial Abilities

Level	Ability
1	+1 DAC
3	+2 DAC (from +1)
4	May learn a cumulative Weapon Mastery in a throwing or machine propelled weapon

Dwarves

An ancient race that normally lives in the hills and mountains. Some live within the tunnels that stretch across Primus. They are a hardy people, and while often short and broad this is not always the case.

Dwarves are subject to the following restrictions:

- They can only wear metal armour, which must be master crafted.
- Male Dwarves have a beard, that somehow mystically re-grows in under an hour if cut off.
- They cannot use 2 handed weapons or any weapon held in two hands, e.g. war axe.
- They can only utilise (battleboard) 3 magical items at a time unless they are within the wizard bracket.

However, Dwarves are naturally magic resistant, so they take only half effect from all magic, resisting spells as if they were twice their level. As a result of this Dwarven wizards only gain half their normal base mana (e.g. 36 at level 8). At 3rd level all Dwarves obtain the skill - Evaluate (see 'At the Sharp End') however they can only evaluate jewellery, metals, precious stones etc. Dwarves are not adversely affected by the use of darkness or light designed to obscure normal vision. Specifically this includes the Darkness(self) and Darkness(ranged) spells and the Light spells (self) and (ranged) as detailed under the rules for wizards. If a Dwarf ever has a location severed it kills him outright. Dwarves, as a result of their stone-like constitution, take half effect from non-magical poisons and paralysis, so a ghoul's spiritual paralysis only lasts for 2.5 minutes.

Dwarves also follow different life scales to Humans, which are detailed in the relevant classes.

Note; the previous restrictions on Dwarven priests have been removed.

Ancient Folk

An ancient race which believes that it once ruled Labyrinthia, most Ancient Folk are now bitter wanderers who hate the upstart Empire and treat most other races with contempt. In all likelihood the Ancient Folk, as the citizens of Labyrinthia call them, are the result of Convergences where they were forced to drag their lands from other worlds which were on the brink of destruction to Primus.

Ancient Folk scholars themselves, whilst idly sifting through documentation written by their ancestors, have their own theory as to the ending of their Empire of Bright Lights: A great uprising of servants taught the arts of sorcery only to turn it against their masters. The resulting war tore the very nature of existence apart as ancient, unfathomably potent sorceries shook and reshaped the universe.

These scholars claim that from this chaos was created the world of Primus and, as its former masters, they are the only race which can ever fully control and govern it.

The fact that pacts and treaties still exist today binding Elves and Ancient Folk, but that no such exists for Humans, shows there was some contact between the ancestors of these two ancient races, though what and how this was achieved varies depends on who you speak to.

It is not surprising that the Ancient Folk are bitter; their memories tell of a time when they flew the skies upon the backs of the Dragons and commanded the obedience of entire peoples through the rituals and sorceries they mastered as easily as breathing and sleeping. Maybe the decadence of such power led them to their sorry state, a failure to learn the arts of their parents, but all they are left with are those pacts sealed by long-forgotten ancestors.

Whatever the truth behind their origin, the Ancient Folk now number very few individuals and, while there are rumours of a city-fortress somewhere in the swamps of the mouth of the River Vrospes and that great flights of winged draconic steeds bearing richly adorned riders were seen in the skies over the Empire in the last days of the Second Age, their only known strongholds lie in the Brandin Mountains and upon the Isle of Dragons.

Adventurers of a nervous disposition should be aware that the Ancient Folk do not like to consider that they are not the mighty lords they once were, and are likely to act as though they were indeed still the masters of the world, demanding obedience and subservience from those around them, races which they claim to have 'bred' for service, who in their eyes are little better than animals.

To play an Ancient Folk you must role-play a proud and arrogant individual. You must always wear an appropriate and superb costume, and all armour worn must be master-crafted. Ancient Folk will never use disguises or conceal their identity. Ancient Folk are outlawed across Primus and therefore may not buy equipment from the desk.

However, in recent times, some Ancient Folk have forged pacts with the Empire to remove this bounty. Indeed two Ancient Folk Houses (detailed below) have forged such a pact for all within their households.

Ancient Folk may be Warriors, Wizards, High Wizards, Spirit Warriors, Warrior Priests, Pure Priests or Sorcerers. They generally function in the same way as their Human equivalents except where described below – Ancient Folk have certain racial powers, and have lower life points than Humans. Ancient Folk priests may choose to join a Church or be a Hermit Priest as they wish. Ancient Folk must be C/N or Evil in alignment.

They however gain access to Ward Pacts, detailed below, that were forged in the years gone by.

Ancient Folk Houses

Over time two main Ancient Folk Houses have been established with slightly different stats to normal. The houses are:

The Cloud Way ~ Their great bastion sits in the Brandin Mountains and they have forged close ties with the Empire and the Baronies. The result is that those that choose to start as members of the Cloud Way are not Outlawed. However they are required to follow the traditions of the Way which means their basic pacts are chosen for them as Undead at 2nd level, Wyverns at 4th level, Dwarves at 6th level, and their 8th level pact may be selected freely.

Pacts with Dwarves and Wyverns function in the same manner as other pacts, with Dwarves covering all subspecies of Dwarf.

House D'treal ~ Found off the western coast of the Empire, this House has struck bargains with the Empress and the Throne of the Glass. The result is that members of the House gain Pact with Glass (as per the post 8th system) for free, though it takes a pact slot as normal. Members of the House must be Noble Exhumanitas (as detailed later), though it is possible to be a "Younger Sibling" to an already existing member of the House.

Ward Pacts

An Ancient Folk gains certain 'pacts' with other-worldly creatures as they gain levels. These pacts are gained at second, fourth, six and eighth level. They are gained at no cost, and once a player has chosen a level's pact it may never be changed.

For a pact to work against a specific creature the Ancient Folk must announce their pact clearly within hearing of that creature. They must loudly state their name, ancestry, and what they have a pact with.

If an Ancient Folk betrays a pact, by announcing it and then attacking that creature (except in purest self-defence), that pact is lost forever. The exact effect of a ward pact depends on the relative levels of the Ancient Folk and the creature. Pacts only fully affect creatures of the same or lower level than the user.

Creatures fully affected by an Ancient Folk's ward pact may not choose to attack the Ancient Folk, except in purest self-defence. They may be forced to do so if controlled by another, such as a controlled undead or elemental, but will be reluctant and attempt to choose other targets where possible. In the situation where an affected creature strikes the Ancient Folk by mistake, it should be considered that at the last minute the creature realised the nature of his target, due to supernatural forces, and pulled back so inflicting no damage.

Creatures of too high a level to be fully affected by a pact will still be aware of the nature of the pact, and will generally act in a friendlier manner towards the Ancient Folk - the exact actions taken dependent on the creature in question. This is only a 'role-play' effect, but should usually make a noticeable difference in attitude.

The ward pacts standardly available to Ancient Folk are listed below. It is possible for individuals to seek to forge other pacts, though these are individual and handled with points requests. The exception to this is the Pact with Glass as detailed in the post 8th tables later on.

Undead- This works on all forms of undead.

Elemental - There are six different pacts, Salamanders, Shades, Sprites, Sylphs, Gnomes, and Undines. Each pact only affects elementals of that element.

Supernatural Power - The Ancient Folk may select a specific deity. The pact works against supernatural minions of that deity. If a pact is taken with a Magical Dragon or Drake this does not grant a pact with elves or elementals of that colour. For example, a pact with the Lady of the Stars would not influence priests of the Lady of the Stars, but would affect her angels.

Elvenkind - May be any one of fire, air, earth, water, light, dark, drowe, winter, twilight or wood elves. Draves and Faeries may not be pacted, nor may Seasonal, Onyx or Jade Elves.

Post 8thLevel Development

The Ancient Folk are the product of an old and tired gene pool, and thus do not have the ability to acquire neuronics. In addition, all costs for acquiring additional life points or strength are raised by 50%. It is not possible for them to acquire +2 strength.

Further pacts can be obtained at the cost of 50 points each, however not more than one pact can be bought for each 300 points post-8th. A pact lost through betrayal can never be re-established.

Silver Folk

A dying race from across the worlds, these beings once travelled the planes seeking glory and conquering all before them. However, times have changed.

In the early part of the Third Age a great plague was unleashed on Primus targeting them. The plague spread rapidly, aided by ritual, and caused all Silver Folk to become sterile. The plague endures, and those Silver Folk that travel to Primus are quickly infected with it. The result is that those who travel to Primus are never permitted to return to their home world, for fear of spreading the affliction further. However a few have left Primus and so the plague has spread across the Exostance, touching every part of existence.

All Silver Folk intensely hate non-Silver Folk neuronics, and blame the Labyrinthian Empire for their downfall. They must always do their utmost to destroy such individuals and gain no points for an adventure in which they leave alive someone whom they know to have such powers. In cases where characters can draw on neuronics powers through artefacts or guild abilities, the Silver Folk will often be more concerned with the source of the power than the user. Silver Folk gain the use of certain neuronics abilities. Use of these neuronics innates costs life points in the same way as it would a neuronics class.

All Silver Folk are extremely evil, and are immune to all forms of alignment change.

Silver Folk are an outlawed race with all that that entails.

Silver Folk Racial Neuronics

Level	Ability
1	Detect Possible Neuronics Activity at will
3	Neuronics Penetration 1/level
4	Neuro-Synaptic Jump 1/4 levels

Post 8th Level Development

The threshold for Silver Folk buying neuronics abilities from Table 6 is only 200 points. Neuronics Penetrations may not be bought from this table, instead extra uses of these and Neuro-Synaptic Jumps may be acquired on Table 1 at the costs detailed in the table below, to a maximum number of extra uses as listed on the table.

Silver Folk may multi-class as normal to Wizard, Warrior or Spirit Warrior, and additionally may become Unholy Champions for the standard cost, gaining life points as Silver Folk Spirit Warrior.

Due to the loss of their ties to their home plane the cost of any post-8th ability (except those which are available to “all”, neuronics abilities and those which are available only to Silver Folk) is increased by 25%. This does not affect the cost of multi-classing/racing, and abilities that are on table 1 are also not affected.

Silver Folk of any class may skip some abilities on the active and passive neuronics trees and buy others at reduced cost due to already having limited innates of the ability. The following tables replace the standard active and passive neuronics trees for Silver Folk.

Active Neuronics Tree

Must be bought up in order.

Ability	Cost	Table	No. Uses
Auric Colour	50	2	At will
Neurobalance	100	2	At will
Artefact Study	100	2	At will
Neuro-Mastery	150	2	At will

Passive Neuronics Tree

Must be bought up in order.

Elysians

In the summer of IM 996 a band of courageous adventurers managed to rescue a few hundred people from a doomed world in another time and place, mere days before its destruction. These refugees are of the Elysian race - a race formed by the act of the goodly gods of their world sacrificing themselves and releasing their divine power into devout human worshippers, to create a truly good race to set against the evils of their world.

The Enoch-Khan caste, warriors of the Elysian race, were all destroyed when their world was annihilated, staying behind to hold open the inter-dimensional portals which allowed a scant few Elysians (and the adventuring group) to escape. The pacifist Elysians who remain are struggling to survive in an unfamiliar world.

Their task is made more difficult by the fact that the stress caused by the trans-dimensional passage and the final destruction of their godly forefathers has caused great mental trauma in the psychically sensitive race, resulting often in total amnesia. For this reason those few Elysians that have left their ghettos and mingled with Labyrinthian citizens often seem confused as to their past and history.

Due to their contemplative and peaceful nature, Elysians have developed a natural affinity for neuronics and due to the suffusion of their essence with the power of their gods they are naturally resistant to a number of things; however their passive, non-physical lifestyle means that their physical frames are very weak. All Elysians were marked by the touch of their deities, and have white skin with gold or blue markings upon it.

All Elysians are immune to alignment change of all forms, and all must be Lawful Good or Neutral Good. They gain half-effect poison, and against evil spiritual effects may double their resistance levels and halve the duration of any effect. Due to their weak bodies, all Elysians find strong medications and herbs difficult to ingest – they gain only half benefit from beneficial ingestive potions of all kinds, including healing potions.

No Elysian may ever wield any form of weapon, even purely supernatural ones. They have a strong repugnance for violence, and will only cause direct harm to others in self-defence - if they willingly do so they gain no level or points for the adventure.

All Elysians gain the following neuronic powers:

Elysian Racial Neuronics

Level	Ability
1	Detect Possible Neuronic Activity
3	Auric Colour
6	Telepathy x1/2 levels

Elysians may be Pure Priests, High Wizards, Vivomancers or Mind Weavers.

Post-8th Development

Elysians are naturally psychic, and may buy neuronics as listed below. They may never make use of or acquire any ability that would grant them greater than +1 strength, and pay an additional +50% on all abilities that grant them additional life.

Elysians of any class may skip some abilities on the active and passive neuronics trees, and buy others at reduced cost due to already having limited innates of the ability. These tables replace the standard active and passive neuronics trees for Elysians.

Active Neuronics Tree

Must be bought up in order:

Ability	Cost	Table	No. Uses
Neurobalance	100	2	At will
Artefact Study	80	2	At will
Neuro-Mastery	150	2	At will

Alfar

While similar to the Elves of Primus in appearance, Alfar are, in truth, the true children of Primus, created by the world spirit at the beginning of the Second Age to protect and guard the land. However, since that, much of what the Alfar once knew has been forgotten, little more than memories in the blood and soul of these much diminished guardians and keepers of the wild, untamed Primus. In a sense the Alfari failed in the task that they were set and so never grew to become the power that they might have been and were discarded by the Spirit of Primus as an experiment that never quite succeeded.

There are many theories as to why the Alfar are so diminished though it is possible that, as with many races, the Alfar's time has simply passed. Regardless, over the centuries that they have lived on Primus, the Alfar have spread far and wide, forming distinct 'tribes', each evolving to survive in different areas of Primus. There are four branches of the Alfar race known on this world, though it is possible that other pockets may exist, each wrapped around their own focus of power and particular landscape and terrain.

The most numerous of the Alfari tribes is the Löss Alfar, those who love the Sunlight and the wide spaces of the world. They dwell on the plains and the rich lowlands, often mingling with humankind, perhaps even interbreeding with them.

The Svart Alfar, the Alfar of Darkness, choose to make their homes in the tunnels beneath the land. However the struggle to survive beneath the surface of Primus has driven many races to adopt a more insular, violent and unpleasant way of life. So it is with the Svart Alfar who, much like the Drowe, are a dark, brooding and vicious people.

Rarely found within the Empire, the Alfamir, the Alfar of the sea, are, by and large, sailors. A tribe of wanderers, travelling to distant lands to see new things and, in nature, as strong and as fickle as the waters on which they live. Just as the sea always pounds upon the land, and the land always stands against the sea, so there has never entirely been peace between the Alfamir and their cousins.

The last, and least populous of the tribes, are the Fjell Alfar, the Alfari of the Mountains. Arguably closest to their people's ancient roots, it is among the Fjell Alfar that the last remaining Alfari wielders of Druidic power can be found. Fjell Alfar dwell in small tribes, little more than families, up high in the most remote crags and mountaintops. Fjell Alfar are generally pragmatic and balanced in their outlooks, though there are some among them famed for their ferocity and short tempers.

All Alfari are really tribes of the same race, their differences being a matter of temperament and upbringing, rather than blood. It is because of this that, rarely, an Alfar is born of the union of the branches of the race, pure blooded and made in the shape which Primus first intended; a potent guardian of nature, wielding great power.

Whilst all Alfar have a tendency to be tall and slim, and most have pointed ears, there are 4 sub-races:

Light Alfar live outdoors in the fields and meadows, they tend to have pale skin and often have fair hair.

Dark Alfar live beneath the earth, they are generally of dark complexion and dark hair.

Sea Alfar tend to come from coastal regions and have a greenish tinge to their skin,

Mountain Alfar are swarthy, with an earthen colour to them, though less heavily than would be seen in an Earth Elf.

The Sea and Mountain Alfar do not often become adventurers and are even more rarely seen than the other types, but all four sub-races may be played as characters.

There are no alignment restrictions on Alfar, except for those characters that choose to be wizards.

Light Alfar may only be white wizards as their starting colour, and thus must be goodly.

Dark Alfar must begin as black wizards, and so be evil.

Sea Alfar may only be green wizards as their starting colour and these must be goodly.

Mountain Alfar wizards must initially be brown and follow the appropriate alignment restrictions for that colour, being any form of neutral alignment.

Alfar wizards may second colour to any colour allowed by their alignment. Alfar who are become wizards by multi-classing are not limited in their choice of colour, other than by their alignment.

Alfar have only half a spirit, in the same manner as Half-Elves.

Alfar can be Archers, Druids, High Druids, Forest Guardians, Leywalkers, Pathfinders, Pure Priests, Rangers, Warriors or Wizards.

Alfar gain the ability to Recognise Earthpower within 1" range, at will, from 1st level, and from 3rd level no longer leave tracks or make sounds when moving in their natural environment (immunity to tracking and acute hearing) - outdoors in the wilderness for Light Alfar, underground in natural tunnels for Dark Alfar, on mountains and hills for Mountain Alfar, and on or near the sea or other large bodies of water [within a mile or so] for Sea Alfar.

All Alfar gain +1 DAC at 6th level.

Additionally once per day, when in their own environment [as described above], they may perform a “Draw on Earthpower” - spending one minute in inactive concentration drawing upon the natural force around them for assistance - this allows the Alfar to mimic any one Earthpower Evocation which is on the standard list (As detailed in The Druids Way) of their own level or below, using the appropriate gestures but without verbals.

Alfar must pay double cost for their equipment from the Desk, as a result of having it Alfar-made. This only applies to armour and weapons.

Post-8th Level Development

They may acquire innate standard Earthpower Evocations in much the same way as a Druid, paying 12pts per earthpower point of the evocation. When purchasing spiritual abilities they suffer the same cost penalties and restrictions as a half elf.

Additional uses of the once per day ‘Draw on Earthpower’ may be purchased at 80 points each; only one per threshold the character has achieved post eighth.

Ratfolk

The Ratfolk scurried into the Empire in the last years before the Final Dawn of the Second Age, claiming they were owed a city of their own after destroying an enemy of the Empire, a task known only to the then Gaius, Kith Kahan (himself an avatar of the Ratgod Slavik and subsequently declared renegade by the Lord Inquisitor Watching Owl). After a failed attempt to seize Thimon some of the Ratfolk allied with the Empire and others returned to their dark warrens to plot and scheme.

Rumours today say that they were created by a great ritual performed by Kith Kahan himself.

All Ratfolk must choose a Breed, and they may choose a Clan from those listed below. Ratfolk require obvious rat like make up that means they can be distinguished from an Elf or similar.

Breeds

The rats can be broken down into the following, some of which may be selected as player characters. Because of their wirey nature, all Ratfolk have the same life points as a Half-Orc of the equivalent class. Ratfolk are immune to the negative effects of disease, and will never die as a result of one; the Ratfolk can be diseased, they simply do not suffer disbenefits from being so. Ratfolk also gain a non-stacking grade of backstab at 6th level, or if that skill is already possessed, or subsequently gained, then they gain one use of the ability Force Majeure as per the post eighth development system.

All Ratfolk armour must be made specifically for the Ratfolk, which costs double to manufacture, and they may never wear heavy armour.

They are restricted on joining guilds, as detailed by their clan below.

Karras

Karras are larger, more intelligent versions of their smaller and normal cousins. In appearance, they resemble their verminous ancestors (although about twice the size). Karras understand speech but, due to their own physical constrictions, are only able to 'talk' in the language of vermin. Karras are able to spread disease without themselves suffering from the maladies they carry. The many and varied diseases can be conveyed through a bite, their bodily fluids, or more extremely and effectively via their own rotting corpses. Karras are not an option for player character Ratfolk.

Ourstlav

Ourstlav are the lowest form of the bipedal vermin and are the most common. They are of average intelligence and are used as workers and militia. Ourstlav are expert diggers and 'sniffers' and tend to hide by concealing themselves in covered holes in tunnels, leaping out to ambush their enemies with venom and disease. Ourstlav tend to follow whoever is powerful enough to hold their 'ownership' and are therefore often regarded as property by other breeds. Ourstlav may be Pathfinders, Archers or Leywalkers.

Rachatat

Rachatat are bred especially for conflict and war. Often used as overseers for the Ourstlav and bodyguards for their masters, the Rachatat are as strong and resilient as Humans and have sharp minds sufficient to elevate many of them to high position whilst remaining loyal to their masters. Rachatat are dark furred and wear armour either of treated hides or whatever they have scavenged from society. Those of renown wear hide plates enchanted by Horstval or even Rat-Kings, blessed by Slavik to be especially resilient to a certain type of weapon. Rachatat are allowed to keep booty taken from a foe in combat and thus are often very well equipped. Commonly they carry spears made of a silver alloy to keep lycanthropes in line - these weapons are of the 'trusty and old' variety and are gained automatically once the Rachatat reaches 8th level. Rachatat may be Warriors, Forest Guardians or Thugs.

Horstval

Horstval are marked at birth by Slavik, being slightly smaller than Ourstlav but very pale furred. Horstval are power users, either being elemental wizards or priests of Slavik - the more powerful being both. Horstval are extremely intelligent and often dress in the tattered finery discarded by humans, they like velvets, lace, silks - whatever looks rich. As Slavik's servants they are blessed with the ability to neuronically message other members of their clan on dungeon with them, thereby making it easier to carry out the Rat-God's will. There are not many high ranking Horstval as they are competitive and tend to kill rivals. Horstval may be Druids, Wizards or Warrior Priests. Horstval Warrior Priests either use the miracle list for the Church of Slavik (see the Almanac for current details of this church), or can create a miracle list in the same fashion as a Hermit Priest, but with only 40SP of Miracles upon the list, up to 10SP of which can be goodly if the priest follows the path of light.

Slav

Slav are as rare as Horstval being marked by their blotchy coats. Slav are used as spies, infiltrators and even assassins. Slav have the normal skills you would expect from such a type, but they also have certain neuronical powers (the only vermin to do so apart from the Horstval communication with their 'tribes'). These powers enable them to hide their appearance, to pass through crowds invisibly, to steal memories from a target and to strike fear into a target. Slav may be Psi-Masters (functioning as a human does, including restrictions), Spies or for those with no powers, Assassins.

Clans

When choosing to play a Ratfolk, you need to choose a Clan from which to have come. Each of these clans has their own advantages, reflecting the rich variance in the Ratfolk.

Caslevasp : (Longhairs)

The Caslevasp are a strong tribe and are the most peaceful of the vermin - believing that the settlements are big enough for both humans and ratkind. They are prone to diplomacy but will protect their family groups.

LRP Abilities: May join guilds as any other citizen of the Empire. Additionally they may choose when they are started to be "bound to Thimon". This means they gain Thimon Kallah benefits as a Kallah Beggar, however they may not join political guilds.

Hislehasp : (Tatterpelts)

The Hislehasp are extremists and militarily/magically strong. However, they have a healthy respect for the Caslevasp, who defeated them some years ago. Hislehasp dwell underground and are extremely proficient at trapping their territory.

LRP Abilities: Gains the pathfinder skill make and arm snap trap at 5th level. If they already have such a skill by other means, this adds 3 skill levels to their proficiency level. Hislehasp also gain the pathfinder skill of acute hearing. They may freely join professional and political guilds, but can only join Ratfolk social guilds.

Crepultaval : (Needlefangs)

The Crepultaval are a small tribe though they are extremely proficient in capturing and rearing slaves to do their work for them. They tend to avoid sunlight however. The Crepultaval are likely to side with whichever of the former two tribes show the greatest strength – during the Thimon uprising the Hislehasp paid them a LOT of money to side with them, but now they will fight for whoever their current employers are, should it come to conflict. Crepultaval take payment and agreements very seriously, and as long as they are not obviously betrayed will seek to keep their word on a deal more than any of the other tribes. Betray them however, and an employer would earn an eternal enemy.

LRP Abilities: +1 levels of effect when casting any form of domination effect. Spiritual Mastery is considered a neutrally aligned miracle for the purposes of creating a miracle list for one of this tribe, but it is in all other ways (including resisting its casting and removing it) considered an evil miracle – this could mean a goodly Hosrtval could cast this evil miracle, but if the target had a bonus resistance level to evil miracles it would still apply.

A Crepultaval in direct sunlight loses 2 points of dexterity armour class.

They may freely join professional and social guilds, but may not join political guilds.

Altunhust : (Stubbytails)

The Altunhust have a strong were-rat contingent and were present all over the Empire at the time of the Thimon Uprising. Due to their impure nature and the fact that they have no Rat-King they are considered the lowest of the tribes. They survive by facilitating trade.

LRP Abilities: May assume a human like appearance as a disguise which may not be penetrated by either physical or mystical means. Once this form is assumed (and the choice to do so must be done at the beginning of the adventure) they look and smell human in all ways, and no method will disprove this concealment.

This mystical protection also extends to their choice of name for the adventure, their alignment and their profession.

e.g. Hillis the Altunhust Horstval Druid of neutral good alignment takes a human form at the beginning of the adventure. To all means of detection he chooses to be Trewin, the Human Warrior and to appear to be Lawful Neutral in alignment. All spells, miracles and other powers as well as physical training will indicate this is the case. At the start of another adventure he could be completely different.

They may freely join guilds, however can only ever claim basic tier benefits from political and social guilds due to their continually changing appearance.

Gwavysvayne : (Winterscorns)

The Gwavysvayne dwell in the North and actually function perfectly well in the daylight. They are the most barbaric of the tribes and tend to dwell on the fringes of society - in old mines and towers in the North. They do not have a presence in the south.

LRP Abilities: Gains the tables ability of Immunity to Cold (1/2 damage supernatural cold, no disbenefits from Normal Cold) and +1 innate PAC from furs at 3rd, 5th and 7th level. However they may not wear armour. The Gwavysvayne may freely join a professional guild, and may join political and social guilds but can only claim as far as intermediate tier benefits from them.

Tribals

The tribes are made up of various races (detailed below) but all share some common ground. They gather in close knit families, sometimes numbering less than a hundred, other great tribes may reach as high as a thousand members. Most are led by a Chief and follow a Totem Spirit. Each tribe may have a single Shaman, Witch Doctor, and one Druid. Details of these classes are found within the relevant books. It is not normally possible to have more than one within a tribe, though they have been known to take on apprentices and train others to follow in their steps or aid the tribe when they are away.

A tribal creature can only belong to one tribe at a time, and it is not possible to leave a tribe without the permission of the Chief, Shaman, Witch Doctor and Druid, though there are certain spells and miracles that can remove this need. Tribes are normally formed along racial lines, though as the lands of the tribes are driven back it has become more common to see the remains of tribes forming together as a new tribe.

Barbarians

These are those who are descended from the first humans that refused to seek shelter behind the walls of the cities as they were formed. They held to the old ways, remembering the ancient truths, and passing them down through tale and song.

Barbarians can only be Warriors, Archers, Rangers or Pathfinders. As they are tribal they can have a Shaman, Witch Doctor and Druid. Barbarians may wear normal or master crafted armour or can skin monsters to use those skins as armour. Barbarian Warriors, Archers and Rangers cannot read any form of writing and will only respect runic writing as performed by their Shaman. A Barbarian Pathfinder can read if the skill read languages has been selected. Otherwise they are as Human.

Ogres

Ogres have little personal recollection of their history, often while able to remember the names of their parents they are normally stumped by anything older than that. Banded together into tribes, Half Ogres are an unusual sort of adventurer, not being motivated to risk their lives for the usual aims like getting lots of money and mystical items, but simply to get lots (and lots) of food. Any items and money found on a raid would be best given to the tribe's Shaman or Witch Doctor as they are the only Ogres cunning enough to know what to do with it, without being totally ripped off by the local traders.

Since Ogres do not have a consistent shape (excessive blubber) they cannot wear any armour other than skins from monsters like orcs, bug-bears, minotaurs etc. which the ogre can skin for himself if the hide is not too badly cut up from sharp weapons, this is why most Ogres favour weapons such as trees (physical representations permitting!) and war maces.

Ogres are big fat dense slobs, only interested in two things: finding food and eating. They only attack things that are edible or in self-defence. Ogres are subject to the following restrictions:

- a) They must appear to be over 15 stone in weight
- b) They may only be Warriors although they are tribal and can have a Shaman, Witch Doctor, and Druid as per the tribal rules.
- c) They can only wear skins for armour, for which they gain the skill to make such armour at 3rd level, which last for one adventure before falling apart beyond conventional means of repair.
- d) They are less intelligent than Humans, and even Orcs. They find complex ideas difficult to understand.

However Ogres do get + 2 life points on the abdomen and a grade of strength at 4th level, and Ogre Warriors gain a second grade of strength at 8th level.

Discern Nature of Edibility

Ogres can naturally tell if something is edible. The discern has 10ft range and will reveal if something is edible or not. It will not reveal if something has been poisoned (for example a chunk of beef would be edible even if poisoned) but would reveal if something naturally can't be eaten (e.g. a creature with acidic blood).

Troll

An old and powerful race that has lost much of what it once was. Descended from once great creatures that used to build bridges across the worlds, a cataclysmic event caused them to regress to little more than animals. No one can truly be certain what this event was but its effects are still felt by most of the race today.

The Troll or Half Troll is a strange crossbreed of Human and Troll. As it is very stupid normally it only has the capacity to be a Warrior however they are tribal, and may have a Shaman, Witch Doctor and Druid for each tribe. Trolls are often tall and make-up must be worn to produce a blotchy green/brown skin. A Half-Troll will not wear any physical armour, except skins. Any skins when worn by a Half-Troll last only one adventure, as Half-Trolls are too stupid to appreciate such things and are likely to chew on them when hungry, or try to hit people with them, generally damaging them more quickly than normal.

A Half-Troll constantly and slowly regenerates. It gets one total body life point and one to the most injured location back every five minutes of 'time in'. It cannot regenerate fire or spiritual damage however and neither can it regenerate once it is dead. Limbs will also regenerate if severed, after 12 hours. Additionally Trolls gain Skinning skill at 3rd level, a point of innate PAC at 3rd level, a second at 5th and third at 8th. Finally at 6th level they gain the first grade of strength. Troll Shaman and Druids cast at half their character level, and Witch Doctors are only able to cast up to 4th level spells.

Level	Ability
1	Regeneration
3	+1 PAC Skinning Skill
5	+2 PAC (from +1)
6	1 st Grade of Strength
8	+3 PAC (from +3)

Post 8th Level Development

Trolls are limited as to what they can multi-class to. They may only multi-class Berserker, Tribal Warlord, Fury Within, Juggernaut, Power House, Battlemaster, and Spirit Warrior (with Shaman's permission) from published classes.

Trolls are restricted on what they can buy post 8th:

They may not acquire more than +3 DAC, or beyond the 2nd weapon mastery in any weapon.

They may not acquire any form of make skill, beyond the Skinning skill.

They may not purchase Strike Death Blow, Counter/Contra Mastery, Flick of the Wrist or Daring Deed. Nor may they acquire the ability to teach anything.

They may not gain Weapon Master or Accuracy related abilities, nor may they purchase Unique Fighting Style or Force Majeure.

They may not acquire neuronics.

Finally if Immunity to Fire is owned then it only grants ½ effect to natural fire, and in no way protects against damage from supernatural fire, though does protect against other effects (Such as having the eyes burnt out component of an incineration). They may never gain better resistance than this.

Goblin

Often banished to the worst places, the swamps or harsh brutal lands across Primus. These poor creatures band together for protection, and to survive. Picked on by everyone, including their own kind, they are considered the whipping boys of society by almost everyone

Goblins are one of the smallest, weakest creatures available as a player character. As a Goblin, you are very unlikely to ever become powerful. You should wish to play a Goblin either to succeed as a weak character or for simple role-playing enjoyment -they should not expect to be as powerful as most other characters of their level. Goblins may be Warriors or Pathfinders and are tribal. They may have a Shaman, Druid and a Witch-Doctor for each tribe, as normal. In appearance they are usually small, with dirty brown, yellow, green or blue skin and a dirty, raggy costume. Goblins have lower life points than Humans, but gain certain abilities due to their race. At first level they gain + 1 DAC in Darkness, at second they gain double DAC whilst in full retreat, performing no action other than fleeing. At 3rd, 5th, 7th and 8th they gain a point of DAC (for 4 in total) and at 6th they gain the first grade of backstab. The backstab skill is as per assassin.

Level	Ability
1	+1 DAC in Darkness
2	Double DAC while Fleeing
3	+1 DAC
5	+2 DAC (from +1)
6	1 st Grade of Backstab
7	+3 DAC (from +2)
8	+4 DAC (from +3)

No goblin may wear armour heavier than light armour. Goblins are also too small and physically weak to wield two-handed weapons, including bastard-length, or even a weapon in either hand - they do not gain B or E skill as they normally would from their class, and may not use bastard weapons in one hand. They can use shields as normal. Goblins may never benefit from greater than +1 strength.

Additionally a Goblins base life may never be above 48 TBLP for the purposes of life capping.

Orc

Orcs are a disparate race. Some are cowardly and evil, others cruel and brutal, a few brave and heroic. While not as varied as Humans in their nature they are rarely the same. Due in part to their brutal upbringing, Orcs are less intelligent than humans, though may be as cunning. Reading, writing and counting are difficult for them, and in depth study of topics beyond most.

Orcs are sensitive to the light, perhaps from years of lurking in tunnels and other dark places. They suffer DAC penalties (or bonuses) as follows:

- In normal real world strong sun light	-2 A.C
- In magical light, or a normal sunny day	-1 A.C
- In candle or lamplight, or a grey overcast day	normal
- In almost total darkness	+1 A.C

They are not adversely affected by magical darkness, being able to see as though under the effects of a see through magical darkness spell.

A Half Orc's armour always loses two uses per adventure because of their careless and revolting nature. Half Orcs are tribal creatures and as such may have a Shaman, Witch Doctor, and Druid.

Half Orcs are generally Pathfinders or Warriors, though some variation within those classes exist as per the relevant publications.

Farfolk

Tales whispered around the small campfires in a harsh land tell the Farfolk of the deeds of their parents, a generation lost all too soon after arriving in this inhospitable place. Not many of the parents are still alive, the Isles of Bourthek, far to the west of the Ishmaic Confederacy are not a good place to live, filled with tremendous beasts, frozen tundra and worse. Tales explain why the northernmost Magiocracy fled Labyrinthia during the early stages of the Chaos Wars, allowed to escape the mage-war if they accepted exile to the place from where the Gods have turned their faces and the Shadow of the Dragons does not fall. Bourthek is accursed in the eyes of the higher ones, those who pose as gods in the stories of the Farfolk. The tales speak of the hellish boat journey, taking longer than the time required for a child to be brought to term, the shortages of food and fresh water, the desperate hunting of great whales and other sea creatures which could be slain by lance and axe, their forefathers not having taken fishing nets with them in the need for speed. The frozen tableau draws no divine attention, perhaps for reasons hidden amongst the bear cultists native to the place or maybe its proximity to the Edge of Things means its value as part of the Focus is irrelevant. The Isles tested the newcomers, unforgiving as only nature can be of the weak ones, those who relied too greatly on the powers taught to them from childhood, those used to a heritage of the use of the arcane. Those who survived were hardy and those with strength aided those with the one remaining power their parents had brought with them. Farfolk Awakeners came to stand as both priests and wizards for the second generation, for the only powers which could exist here were those of the will, focusing the psychic powers present within all of the learned ritualists of the Northern Magiocracy. Evolution threw down its heavy iron gauntlet at these unwilling colonists. Is it any wonder that those who survived react with force, react with speed and react with an eye for survival?

Now the children of the Northern Magiocracy and their children in turn have begun to return to the Empire. Rumours spread of the death of the Mad One and the great war-leader DuValan brought a war-band, seeking to reap vengeance for the crimes, real or imaginary dealt to his parents. However DuValan's war-band are not the only ones who seek to return to the place of their ancestors. Some seek to reopen the great iron citadel so far to the north, home of the Magiocracy which is their heritage, or so these explorers claim. Others seek to be amongst others, those not born in accursed Bourthek, those born within the gaze of gods, those whose birth was accompanied with an infusion of soul. Those who possess a spirit. Ultimately who can say why the children of the Northern Magiocracy return? Only one thing is certain. No one in their right mind would want to go back to where they have come from.

Farfolk share many traits of Humans but having been born in a place where no spirits tread, where no god watches over the people, none of the children of the forefathers possess a spirit.

Hospitality is a strange beast with these people, a camp is sacred to peace, and a common threat will join even enemies together in battle until the new intruder is dealt with. Then a time is agreed upon for both to recover before a renewal of hostilities.

The Farfolk arranged themselves in strong family units, caring for those around them meant that at least some would survive. The Farfolk Reeds or Clans each have a unique pattern of facial tattoos; no Reedsman would ever hide these, for they show strength, courage and commitment, all bywords of the Farfolk.

To summarise:

- Farfolk have no spirits, their life-force being maintained solely by their strength of mind.
- Farfolk will not fight in another's camp if invited to join first, except in self defence.
- Farfolk will not fight one who has joined their camp except in self defence.
- Farfolk must wear makeup to reflect the complex facial tattoos.
- Farfolk are tribal, but may not have a Shaman or a Witch Doctor.
- They may join professional guilds as normal. They may join a political guild, but gain the benefits 1 table later. The only social guild they may join is a Reed.
- They are incapable of ever acquiring magical talents, or using magical items of any sort.
- They are considered to be flesh and blood in the same way as Humans.

Farfolk Racial Neuronics

Level	Ability
1	Kin +(Neuronic) True Kin with members of same Reed
3	Clairvoyance x1/2 levels
8	Neuromastery x1/4 levels

The only classes available to Farfolk are Warriors (Raiders), Pathfinders (Travellers), and Awakeners.

The Pathfinders of the Farfolk tend to act as the physicians and healers of their reed, as well as performing the more familiar roles of tracker and scout. Farfolk Pathfinders cannot acquire the standard pathfinder skills of read glyphs and languages, nor the specialist pathfinder skills of recognise mana and recognise spirit. However, all gain an additional skill level in making healing potions when the skill is taken. They may also take the skill of Physician as a specialist skill at 7th or 8th, which functions exactly as per Monk Locational Curing, giving 1/3 of their TBLP to be used as healing massage. Each point used cures 1 point of locational (only) damage on the beneficiary. This takes time, and not more than 2 points of curing can be administered per second of phys-repping, during which both the healer and the recipient must be generally inactive. This ability is cumulative with First Aid if bought.

The Warriors of the Farfolk are their hunters and raiders, as is true for most tribal races.

Reeds

There are a number of Reeds sent to the Empire at this time. When a player plays his first adventure, he needs to select a Reed to be a member of. This may well be a new Reed here, and this may be the only character from it, and thus the tattoo design completely unique. The tattoo design for each Reed should have the same base for each member of the Reed. The makeup styles must be consistent. If there is more than one character of the same Reed present then each Reedsman gains the ability of True Kin (see development tables) with other Reedsmen on the adventure. It is not normally possible to change Reed.

Post-8th Development

Farfolk are considered tribal, except where this would preclude the buying of neuronics abilities. They may acquire certain neuronics abilities, listed in the table below. They may never become Priests or Wizards, or in any way learn to use spirits or mana. They may never use the ability Mind Bar, this would leave them unconscious and shortly after, dead as their mind would no longer provide the driving life-force for their body. They may skip Mind Bar when buying the ‘passive neuronics’ tree. Farfolk of any class may skip some abilities on the active and passive neuronics trees, and buy others at reduced cost due to already having limited innates of the ability. These tables replace the standard active and passive neuronics trees for Farfolk.

Active Neuronics Tree

Must be bought up in order:

Ability	Cost	Table	No. Uses
Auric Colour	50	2	At will
Neuronic Penetration	50+10/use	2	10
Neuro Balance	100	2	At will
Artefact Study	80	2	At will
Neuro-Mastery	150	2	At will

Passive Neuronics Tree

Must be bought up in order:

Ability	Cost	Table	No. Uses
Message	50	2	At will
Detect Possible Neuronic Activity	50	2	At will
Detect Lie	100	2	At will
Detect Inanimate	100	2	At will
Detect Mind	100	2	At will

Farfolk Advanced Neuronics

These need not be bought in order, but can instead be bought as and when desired.

Ability	Cost	Table	No. Uses
Clairvoyance	25	1	4
Psi-Scan	150	8	At will
Telekinesis	110	8	At will
Improved Message	80	8	At will
Invisibility	50	8	2
Auric Sight	40	9	2
Precognitive Flash	55	9	1
Mind Over Body	90	10	1

The Children of Magic

The Children of Magic come in many forms, from ancient Elves to chaotic Faeries, the younger Draves and the previously imprisoned Seasonal Elves. All share a heritage with the Mana Dragons and are racially magical.

All also share some common advantages and restrictions.

Magical Nature

Due to their magical nature they are unaffected by certain Flesh and Blood effects. They do not need to breathe and certain Earthpower Evocations (notably healing) do not affect them.

They are also, upon reaching 6th level, able to manufacture Lembas. They may make as many Lembas as they have levels. Each permanent Lembas costs 150 grulls to make while temporary Lembas (which will become stale and unusable after 6 days) are made at 100 grulls per biscuit. Each Elf creates their own type of Lembas and can use any of this type, so a Fire Elf can use Fire Elf Lembas made by anyone. Faeries can only benefit from Lembas made by themselves.

Lembas cure 3 TBLP and 1 point to the most injured location when eaten. It should generally be phys repped by a reasonable size biscuit/cookie or large crisp.

Half-Elves may eat and benefit from Lembas at a reduced effect, curing only 2 TBLP. They do not however gain the ability to make it.

Enchanted Equipment

All equipment used by elves must be specially constructed and enchanted. This special construction does not mean it is master crafted, and confers no benefits to the equipment except that it is suitable for use by elves. It costs double the normal amount to purchase elvish equipment from the desk, make costs for players are not affected by this. In addition elvish equipment must also be enchanted.

Deaths and Dispel

It should be noted that an Elf is held together by a spell of a mana level equal to half his current maximum total body life points. A Dispel "n" spell when cast at an Elf reduces its total body life points by 2 times "n" (So a dispel 5 inflicts 10TBLP), to which MAC does not apply.

When an Elf has a location severed the smaller section immediately turns into its original element. If an Elf dies it turns into a "lump" of its original element. This lump is totally inert and should be regarded as having limited appeal for future adventuring. Even Half Ogres will find it of slight interest.

Make Up Restrictions

Elves' skin is always the same colour as their element, and their hair is often also the same or similar colour. If you do not want to dye your hair blue (or whatever other colour) washable hair colour sprays are normally available. Generally an Elf wears colours appropriate to their element. Elvish ears are also sometimes on the large size.

Faerie are of unusual appearance - their hair and face colours must be of different colours, matching the colours of the innate spells they have chosen. If the Faerie's chosen innates are black and grey, the face must be grey and the hair black, to distinguish them from Drowe. They all have pointed ears. Their hair cannot be the player's normal colour.

A Seasonal Elf's nature changes with the seasons, so does their appearance. Keeping the characteristic elven pointed ears at all times, their basic make-up requirements vary as below. In all cases however, it is common to see tinges of the past season or approaching season in the make-up of the elf; so that in late summer a seasonal elf might begin to turn brown at their extremities, their ears and so on. This helps to distinguish seasonal elf from faeries.

Winter: White and light blue

Spring: Green and gold

Summer: Red and green

Autumn: Brown and red

A Drave must always wear pointed ears and complete facial makeup appropriate to their colour. In addition a Bronze Drave must have black hair whilst a Golden Drave needs white hair. All exposed skin, including hands, must be made up in their colour.

Drowe have black skin and have silver or white hair. Though often they dress in black, they may dress in any colour they choose, as long as it is tasteful and appropriate for their position.

Half Elves must cover at least half of their exposed skin in makeup of the appropriate colour to reflect their ancestry. This means that half of the face must be made up to the colour of the Elf.

Alignment Restrictions

The alignment available to Elves and Draves is restricted according to the nature of their Dragon or Drake.

Race	Alignment
Air Elf	Any Lawful
Aquatic Elf	Any
Dark Elf	Any Evil
Drowe	Any Evil
Earth Elf	Any Neutral
Ebony Elf	Any Chaotic
Fire Elf	Any Chaotic
Gold Elf	Goodly or LN
Ivory Elf	Any Lawful
Jade Elf	Any Goodly
Light Elf	Any Goodly
Onyx Elf	Any Evil
Seasonal Elf	Any
Twilight Elf	Any
Winter Elf	Any Goodly
Wood Elf	Any Neutral
Silver Drave	Any Neutral
Bronze Drave	Any Evil or CN
Faeries	Any Chaotic

Elves

Elves are creatures magically constructed from an element, and are immune to spiritual effects as they have no spirit. Inexperienced players should not play an Elf as their immunity to spirits means they do not benefit from priestly curing. This coupled with the low life points makes for a precarious existence.

Elven Abilities

Elves, because of their magical nature, have the ability to perform various magical feats. These often duplicate wizard's spells with the corresponding effect and dispel level. If they do not, then their dispel level is equal to the level at which the Elf first acquired the ability. Using an elvish ability does not incur any life point cost. The number of uses given is, of course, per day. Innates are recovered after a good night's sleep.

Affirms - This increases the Elf's magical armour class (MAC) and physical armour class (PAC) by 1 for 5 minutes. It can only be "cast" on the Elf himself and is usually called "Body of [element]". For example in a Light Elf the Affirm is called 'Body of Light' and the skin of the Elf is seen to be covered with a one inch thick layer of light. This light surface is however very diffuse and will not light a room, much as the air of an Air Elf's affirmation cannot be breathed, and an Earth Elf can still walk when covered with a Body of Earth. Regardless of the type of Affirm they are the same effect and as such do not stack.

The required verbal is "I affirm my nature as that of [element]".

Light Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Light 1/level
3	Light (r) 1/2 Levels
6	+1 DAC, a Dispel 6 removes effect for 5 minutes

Dark Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Darkness 1/level
3	Darkness (r) 1/2 levels
6	Shadowshift* 1/4 levels

* This is similar to the shade elemental shift except that the elf's personal possessions can be transported and the maximum range is five times the elf's level in feet.

Air Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Air 1/level
3	Jump (s) 1/2 levels
6	Walk on Air (s) 1/2 levels

Earth Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Stone 1/level
3	Chameleon (s) 1/2 levels (on Earth or Stone surfaces only)
6	Talk to Inanimate 1/2 levels (Earth or stone objects only)

Fire Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Fire 1/level
3	Shock 1/2 levels
6	Perm Walk Through Fire (s), A Dispel 6 removes for 5 minutes

Aquatic Elf

Level	Ability
2	Detect Fluid 1/level* Body of Water 1/level Unimpeded by Water
3	Rust (r) 1/2 levels
5	Walk on Water (s) 1/2 levels
6	Vanish 1/day

* As per Detect Inanimate spell, but for liquids/fluids only. It can determine specific types of potion.

 Aquatic Elves are unimpeded/not hindered by water. This means they may move freely under water, do not suffer adverse effects from the Drown or Water Cannon spells, and similar.

Twilight Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Twilight 1/level Detect Magic 1/level
3	Twilight (s) 1/2 levels
6	Silence 1/day, (effects at Elf's level)

Gold Elf

Level	Ability
2	+1 DAC
3	Shield (s) 1/ level
6	Strengthen (s) 1/2 levels

Ivory Elf

Level	Ability
1	Gains Ivory Code Restriction (see Ivory Wizards)
2	Mark Ally @ will Traitor's Shield @ will
3	Ivory Warrior (1 rune) 1/4 levels, may be cast separately or together
6	Mobility 1/day

Ebony Elf

Level	Ability
2	Confusion 1/day (effects at Elf's level)
3	Pain 1/2 levels
4	Spell Shield 1/4 levels
6	Pass Unknown 1/4 levels

Winter Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Ice 1/level
3	Immunity to all forms of cold which is not subject to dispel.
6	Javelin of Ice 1/4 levels*

* This has a range of 20' and does 8 hits to a monster or 24/4 points of damage to a character. The verbal for this ability is "Into my hand I call forth Ice.....Javelin of Ice!"

Winter Elves also gain the Skinning ability, but the only fur they will wear is that of bugbears. This does not prevent them from wearing other armour however.

Wood Elf

Level	Ability
2	Body of Wood 1/level
3	Warp (r) 1/2 levels
4	Entangle 1/2 levels
6	Talk to Plant 1/level*

* as per Talk to Inanimate spell but on plant life only.

Drowe

Level	Ability
2	Extinguish (r) 1/level
3	Darkness 1/2 levels
5	See Through Magical Darkness (self) 1/2 levels
6	Blindness 1/day (effects at Elf's level)*

* "By the shades of the dark I strike thee blind x levels" 20' range.

The 6 levels Blindness may be used to destroy a Fire Blade, 7 Levels a Sword of Power, and 8 levels blindness may destroy a Sabre of Light and Truth.

Blindness is in all ways similar to the spell Silence with regards to duration, dispelling etc.

In addition when slain a Drowe's magical essence lingers but only to wreak vengeance on his slayer. The Returner has 1 hit per level achieved before death (up to 8), and inflicts 1 point of damage with an unarmed blow per level in a like fashion (A/C applies as normal to this). The Returner may use any of the Drowe's innate abilities that it had left when slain. Drowe hate daylight and suffer a -2 reduction to their armour class in it.

Seasonal Elves

Trapped for millennia in a void-like prison, the physical forms of these elves perished leaving only their essence. As time passed, these merged together in an endless swirl of energy. In January IM 997, the door to this prison was opened by a group of Labyrinthian adventurers and the essence was released. It has now begun to coalesce into elven form. Seasonal Elves are constantly tied to the elemental magic of the seasons, and as the year changes so too do the elves. The seasons run as follows: Spring 1st March to 31st May, Summer 1st June – 31st August, Autumn 1st September to 30th November, and Winter is 1st December to the last day of February.

Level	Winter	Autumn	Spring	Summer
2	Body of Ice x 1 /level	Body of Autumn x 1 /level	Body of Spring x 1 /level	Body of Summer x 1 /level
3	Immunity to all forms of cold	Warp(r) x1/2 levels	Salmon Leap x1/2 levels	Scorching Heat x1/2 levels
4				Light(s) x1/2levels
6	Javelin of Ice x1/4 levels	Wither(t) x1/day	Sun's Healing	Summer Warmth x1/4 levels
Life	As Winter Elf	As Normal Elf	As Normal Elf	As Drowe

Seasonal Elf Affirms differ somewhat from normal Elven Affirms; as they are constantly influenced by magic their Affirms are less physical in nature, granting +2 Magical Armour Class, but no Physical Armour Class. As such they do stack with a normal Elven Affirm if such are acquired elsewhere.

Javelin of Ice is as per the Winter Elf innate above.

Wither (t) is a brown mana power which will magically wither the touched limb (not critical location) of a target, affecting up to the user's level only - so that at 8th level it will wither the limb of an 8th level target. The withering effect means that the limb is completely useless, although it can still suffer damage. It lasts 5 minutes, and the verbal is "By autumn's power let your limb shrivel away... Wither", and the caster has 5 seconds to touch the location after the incantation.

Salmon Leaps function as per the Jump(s) blue spell in the handbook, but are due to the sheer vitality bound into the Elf's body rather than overt magical force.

Sun's Healing allows the Elf to regenerate 3 tblp and 1 to the most injured location for every 5 minutes spent sitting inactive in direct natural sunlight.

Scorching Heat affects one target within 20' who is in direct natural sunlight, inflicting 18/3 magical heat damage, to which magical armour class and resistance to fire both apply. The verbal is "May the scorching sun's heat blister your skin..."

Summer's Warmth grants the beneficiary half-effect cold for the following 5 minutes, and additionally grants them immunity to all non-spiritual Freeze effects. The verbal is "Summer's warmth is shared with thee...". Seasonal Elves may be of any alignment. They may not be black wizards, nor may they be wizards of the new drake colours. There are no half seasonal elves at this time.

Seasonal Elf Post-8th Level Development

Seasonal Elves may acquire abilities in exactly the same way as other elves. However they may not buy additional spell innates of their own colour, as other elves can do, since they have no single colour associated with them.

Draves

As the Dragons have their servants in the form of the elves, so the Drakes have introduced their own living followers, known as Draves. Draves are similar in many regards to the Elves but with innate magical powers that reflect the Drake who is their master or mistress.

The rules for playing Draves are identical to those for playing Elves except where indicated below:

A Drave may be a Warrior, Archer, Pathfinder or Wizard. Wizards are limited to being of their own colour only, though they may acquire second colours freely.

Silver Drave

Level	Ability
2	Tell Wounds @ will
3	Tell Strength 1/level
6	Inquiry 1/2 levels

Bronze Drave

Level	Ability
2	Tell Strength 1/level
4	Limb Thrall 1/4 levels (effects at Drave's level)
6	Shudder 1/2 levels

Faeries

Faeries are cousins to the Ef family. The race is a magical one and its members do not have spirits (in the same way as elves). Unlike elves however, there is a near infinite variety of Faerie types - each Faerie has a unique collection of magical abilities chosen at 1st level. Faeries may be good, neutral or evil, but they are all chaotic as their natures are those of the capricious who have never felt the firm hand of mastery by a single Dragon or force.

Faeries are not the Tinkerbell-like, wand-wielding winged creatures of modern fairy tales. They are more akin to the wild, unpredictable fey creatures so feared in medieval times across Britain. All these creatures are very unpredictable and will likely have peculiar senses of humour. They may be Warriors, Wizards or Pathfinders. If Wizards they may not start as a colour that is opposite to either of their initial colours, but can freely be any other colour.

A Faerie gains the ability to cast certain spells as each level is reached, chosen by the player at the beginning of their career. From third level, they can cast any one standard 2nd level spell once per two levels. At sixth level they may cast a standard 3rd level spell once per 2 levels. These spells cannot be of the same colour, nor may they be of opposite colours. No Faerie of any class can wear armour heavier than light armour. They have life points identical to those of a Drowe of the same class. Faerie equipment must be made and enchanted in the same way as elven equipment, thus costing double the price from the Desk. They take damage from dispels in the same way as elves.

Faerie are of unusual appearance - their hair and face colours must be of different colours, matching the colours of the innate spells they have chosen. If the Faerie's chosen innates are black and grey, the face must be grey and the hair black, to distinguish them from Drowe. They all have pointed ears.

Post 8th Level development

As elves of the same class, except that their light frames preclude them from developing strength and their chaotic nature prevents them from acquiring neuronics.

Half Elves and Draves

A Half Elf often seeks to emulate the elven side of their ancestry. Thus they tend to dress in a similar manner to a full elf of the same colour. This means all their equipment costs are doubled. A Half Elf's skin tone will also indicate their elven component, with at least half of their visible skin that colour.

Half Elves have the same life points and statistics as Humans, except that they take half effect from spirits. This means they resist miracles at twice their level. However if a 2nd level Half Elf was halted by a fifth level priest the maximum duration of effect would still be 10 seconds, a fourth level priest would be unable, of course, to halt the half elf.

If they are priests they only receive half the normal amount of spirits. Half elven priests take twice as many adventures to advance their priestly level, twice as many points to purchase spiritual/priestly abilities post eighth and cannot cast eighth level miracles. This increase in cost also applies to spiritual abilities purchased as a Paladin, or similar.

Since a Half Elf only has half a spirit, the miracle Total Heal (and variants which perform a similar effect) only cures 72 points of total body life points, and 72 points of locational life points if calmly prepared (and 36 if not). Healing hand is limited to 36 points of damage if prepared, and wound staunch 72 TBLP.

Half Elves do NOT receive any of the elven innate abilities. Half Elves clearly do have a spirit.

Ishmaic

Ishma, the Land of the Seven Winds to the west of the Empire is a brutal land of sand and harsh desert. The people of the desert have been forced to adapt to survive in such a dangerous place, conquering nature rather than living in harmony with it. The Ishmaic peoples are used to the dangers that they face both in the blazing sun and beneath the dunes, and it has prepared them for the life of an adventurer more than most.

General Restrictions

All of those that call Ishma home have the same restrictions listed below. Some of the inhabitants may find additional restrictions due to their race.

The Spirit World

The people of Ishma are not commonly exposed to the Spirit World during their upbringing. As a result they must pay +50% cost for any of the following abilities (This includes if purchasing them as a Spiritless character):

Resistances to TOD and Suspend Life, Causing Miracles, Spirit Bolt, 1/2 effect Halt and Stasis, Immunity to Informational Miracles, Protection from Spirits, Strongholds, Bar Spirit, Level Drain, Voice of Power, Rune of Power, Resistance to Degeneration, Incarna Mortis, Destruction Miracle, Immunity to Bless / Curse, Diminish Spirit, Freeze, Paralysis, Petrification, Beguile Befriend and Spiritual Mastery, Foul Touch and Disease, Resistance to Soul Lance, 1/2 Damage Wards of Power, Resistance to Avenging Spirit.

Also, Ishmaic characters cannot multiclass to standard Spiritual classes unless, again, it is noted otherwise under their Clan or Class. Although there are very few neuronc classes available as a starting option to an Ishmaic, they may acquire such as normal to their class, or multi-class as normal to classes as would allow them access to such power.

Guilds

Ishmaic characters are restricted on the guilds they may join, but this is very much dependant on their initial race.

Armour

Metal is scarce in the Land of the Seven Winds and this has led to a cultural pride in the Ishmaic ability to use what they have in the best way they can. No Ishmaic character may normally wear metal armour, even studded leathers, and will have a low opinion of those characters from elsewhere who feel the need to do so.

Ishmaic Humans

All Human Ishmaic characters are hardy by nature and gain the following benefits:

From 1st level each character has both the Survival skill (as per a Ranger) and calculates their life as if they were one level higher, even when they have attained the 8th level of progression.

Ishmaic Human characters (bar Rainfinders) may carry a Glaive (a short sword like weapon) and if they are allowed sharp weapon use by their class restrictions then this may be used as a weapon. Even Wizards may carry such a weapon though this counts as their whole metal allowance.

All Ishmaic characters are well supported by their Clan. To this end they are supplied with normal weapons and armour as appropriate to their class. Ishmaic humans will normally be at least cordial to any Rainfinder.

Ishmaic humans may freely join professional and social guilds but they may not belong to political guilds unless they are specifically for Ishmaics.

Clans

Every Human Ishmaic character has grown up within one of the Clans that form the Confederacy. This Clan must be chosen at 1st level and is written on the card alongside race (i.e. Ishmaic Human (Benhai)). Each Clan grants certain benefits to a character and restricts the range of starting classes available to such a character. It is allowable to multi-class outside of those typically found in the Clan as normal - costs based upon the original class. Note however the restriction earlier about spirit-using classes in this instance.

Galahbhad

Permissible starting classes: Warrior, Wizard, Pathfinder, Thug, Hannot/Kallah Beggar, Archer, Pure Priest, Warrior Priest, Spirit Warrior.

Benefits: Any member of the Galahbhad Clan that is normally allowed to wear armour greater than leather owns a full suit of Laminar Armour. This armour may be 'phys-repped' by master crafted leather and has an additional +1 PAC to that of normal master crafted armour.

Additionally, Galahbhad characters are able to reach the Empire and have regular contact with that nation. To this end they are able to join a single political guild so long as that guild is in no way hostile to the Ishmaic Confederacy or demands loyalty to the Empire (e.g. They could not be a member of DORAC!). Clearly Beggars cannot benefit from this ability.

Buladajn

Permissible starting classes: Pathfinder, Assassin, Spy, Rogue, Thug.

Benefits: All Buladajn gain Disguise at 1st level. If the character is a Spy then their first level disguise becomes Change Appearance (See 'At the Sharp End') at 8th level. Pathfinder post 8th abilities that enable the character to pass more easily unseen are available 4 tables lower.

A member of this Clan gains Conditioned Heart Stop at level 5 with regards to information regarding the Clan. All Buladajn gain the ability Emotion Sensitive (All table 1 post eighth) usable 1/2 levels.

Benhai

Permissible starting classes: Ranger, Pathfinder, Rogue, Wizard, Archer, Wayfinder.

Benefits: All members of the Clan may disarm traps as a Pathfinder, at 3rd level a Benhai character gains Read Languages as per the pathfinder skill. If the character is a scout class they gain the standard scout skill Trap Wary at 1st level and may choose Tomb Robber as a tendency for 0 points rather than normal cost, if the character enters the scout bracket as a second class, they may acquire Tomb Robber tendency on table 9 for 80 points.

Salahmen

Permissible starting classes: Warrior, Pathfinder, Thug, Wizard, Warlock, Archer.

Benefits: Salahmen are adept at fighting the strongly magical Athfanal. As such they are immune to Supernatural Darkness/Blindness and spells which replicate such effects.

Post 8th immunities that act against effects that are normally stackable magical runes (such as Sleep/Catalepsy) are half normal price.

Harazaen

Permissible starting classes: Witch, Pure Priest, Spirit Warrior, Pure Priest, Wayfinder, Leywalker, Druid, High Druid, Ranger, Pathfinder.

Benefits: Harazaen are well adapted to the Land of the Seven Winds and the transfer of supernatural power through them is easily achieved. To represent this Spirit Using classes do not have to pay the increased cost for spiritual immunities that others of their nation do. All gain Spiritual Discern Insanity at will from 6th level, with a 1" range.

Rain

Permissible starting classes: High Wizard, Wizard, Warlock, Rogue, Power Master.

Benefits: The Rain are adepts of the Seven Winds - to this end they will always count as being two levels higher than they actually are for the calculation of damage taken from using magic.

Rainfinders

Additionally certain classes may choose to be a Rainfinder, a wandering judge within the confederacy. Rainfinders may only be Wizards, High Wizards, Druids or High Druids and may only use offensive magic versus supernatural creatures or in purest self-defence. Not strictly speaking a new class, a Rainfinder must be started as such at 1st level and although they were brought up in a Clan (and thus gain their benefits) they do not 'officially' belong to one anymore. Such a Clan must be one which allows them to be the class selected.

Rainfinders gain 'Detect Lie' x 1/4 levels based upon the power base they use as their first class. Rainfinders never use a physical weapon. They may Path if appropriate to their class. Rainfinders may only belong to professional guilds, and those tied to the confederacy.

Athfanal and Half Athfanal

Athfanal are indigenous to Ishma, here long before the people that formed the Confederacy arrived, and it is believed they lived here during the First Age. A brutal race of tribal elves they are, by and large, savage and only care for themselves and their Hetyans.

Athfanal

It is possible for a player to play an Athfanal, however it should be clear that Ishmaic characters quite often choose to fight such a creature on sight and great care must be made when making such a choice of character. It is possible that the Athfanal might be played by a group who decide to all play the race in which case the danger is, to a small degree, reduced. Athfanal are primitive and barbaric, subsisting on the mana that flows about the Land of the Seven Winds. Whether they are in the sands and steppes held by the Ishmaics or the forests and hills about the Afthash Ban Mir, or the great caverns which spread beneath both, they are able to subsist without food and water on the mana that they tap from the world around them.

Magical Abilities

Athfanal gain innates as per an Elf of the element they choose to be allied with (written on the character card at 1st level) - this may be any of the prime seven elements but they may not choose Drowe, Wood or Winter Elf abilities.

Alignment

Athfanal must be one of; Chaotic Evil, Lawful Evil, Neutral Evil, Neutral or Chaotic Neutral.

Flesh and Blood

Athfanal count in all ways as elves and use the same rules and restrictions on flesh and blood as do their Labyrinthian counterparts.

Make Up

It is important to note that whilst in the Land of the Seven Winds, Athfanal do not have to wear all covering face-paint and hair colour. They are required to have visible markings in the colour of their chosen element on at least half their visible skin (though these are not all covering). Athfanal are expected to look the part, their costume being of a light coverage and primitive in look with feathers and other 'totemic' accessories in great abundance. Should they adventure away from the Land of the Seven Winds then they will be affected by the make-up restrictions of the colour they are allied to as if they were an Elf of that element.

The Spirit World

Athfanal do not have a spirit in the same way as their Labyrinthian counterparts, the Elves, do not.

Elements

Each Athfanal is dedicated to an element and gains the abilities as would an Elf of that element. They may only choose one of the seven primary elements. If the element chosen requires the user to be goodly then the Athfanal must be of pure neutral alignment, but any spells that requires them to be goodly (such as Sabre of Light and Truth) are not available.

Guilds

Athfanal may join professional guilds with the guild master's permission, and they may only belong to Athfanal social or political guilds.

Legal Status

Athfanal are Ostracised by the Ishmaic Confederacy, as such, while within these lands, they are not protected by the law and may freely be killed. However killing them anywhere else is still an outlawing offence.

Culture

Athfanal are barbaric and can acquire abilities available to tribal creatures. This also means that abilities that are not available to tribal creatures are not available to them.

Armour Restrictions

They may wear no armour other than skins / furs and they gain Skinning at 6th level.

Classes

Athfanal may be Wizards, Pathfinders, Assassins, Warriors and Archers. Athfanal may be wizards only of their own racial colour or grey but may second colour to any colour appropriate to their alignment

Hetyan

Athfanal are tribal and must form a Hetyan as would barbarian players form a tribe. Each Hetyan may gain Guild Benefits and it may have a Vaidlemir (Witch Doctor) who is in all ways as a tribal Witch Doctor except they are able to choose any of the seven prime colours of magic as their colour although it must be their own racial colour.

Vaidlemir are able to absorb the mana from a fallen enemy/sacrifice such that they gain back 1 mana per level of the victim's base magical class (e.g. 8 from an 8th level wizard, 6 from an 8th level warrior who has multi-classed 6th level wizard) This takes thirty seconds of role played 'feeding' within a minute of the person being killed. This ability may be used once every three hours but has no gain from a victim/sacrifice that had no magic using ability.
(The definition of a mana user is a class or race with innate magical power.)

Life Scales

Athfanal have life as a Winter Elf of their class with Vaidlemir gaining life as a Wizard.

Post 8th Development

Athfanal buy as an Elf of their colour, they may also buy the Yashtar Domination glyph as listed under Crol later on. They may also buy relevant tribal abilities.

Half Athfanal

There are many amongst the Athfanal who have human blood, being born from slaves taken from both the Ishmaics and the First Comers.

Make Up

Half-Athfanal share the same appearance as full Athfanal (elemental markings) but do not gain any magical innates from that element. A Half-Athfanal away from the Land of the Seven Winds retains his normal appearance. They have half a spirit as with all Half-Elves.

Classes

Half-Athfanal may be any class allowed to full Athfanal plus they may also be Warlocks and Rogues. They may never acquire by points or otherwise the ability to use spirits in any form and they suffer the Ishmaic disability as regards buying spiritual immunities.

Guilds

Half-Athfanal may join any type of guild, but require the guild masters permission to do so.

Life Points

Half-Athfanal gain life as a Human of their class.

Legal Status

If a Half-Athfanal has decided to join an Athfanal Hetyan (tribe) then they suffer the same ostracism as an Athfanal. If they have shunned their Athfanal parents then they are not ostracised.

Post Eighth Development

Half Athfanal are tribal like their Athfanal cousins and this in turn means they can buy abilities available to tribal creatures of their class, and cannot acquire those abilities that are not available to tribal creatures.

In all other ways a Half Athfanal develops in the same fashion as an Ishmaic Human of their character class.

Calabrim

The cavern wights of the deep caverns are the abandoned children of the Athfanal who have shown an inability to consume the magic laden winds. Though the vast majority of these pitted-skinned individuals resemble the undead, they are not such, simply, on the whole, pitiful creatures to watch, and terrible to do battle with.

Most of the Calabrim are of poor or even animalistic intelligence, but every so often one rises from the caves with a sharper mind and a need to escape the harsh life of their people. Those Calabrim who are Player Characters are just such people.

The Spirit World

Calabrim have the equivalent of half a spirit, much as a Half Elf does. It may be this freak occurrence in their birthing amongst a race with no spirits which causes them their difficulty in feeding upon the wind. Calabrim suffer the same disadvantages in purchasing immunities to spiritual effects as described for Ishmaic Humans.

Nourishment

The Calabrim need to eat only once in any given seven days, but when they feed, they must eat the flesh of a magic using creature, even the essence of a dead elf would suffice, Since most adventures last less than seven days it is assumed that cunning Calabrim manage to feed outside of their adventuring times and those Calabrim of goodly moral fibre can often find ways of doing so which would not offend any other meat eating creature or person. It is rumoured that through such feeding however, more potent Calabrim can actually translate the food into innate magical abilities for their own later use. Calabrim are, however, flesh and blood and take full effect from potions / poisons

Alignment

Calabrim may be of any neutral alignment (NG, NE, LN, CN and NN).

Make Up Requirements

Calabrim need to wear make up in such a fashion as to appear sickly, diseased or of pitted complexion.

'The Touch'

Calabrim possess an ability they call 'The Touch' and it is this ability which paralyses a magic using creature. If the target possesses mana points, or magical innate powers it functions as a paralysis lasting 5 minutes. However the cost of using this ability is steep, the Calabrim is drained one level, which is recovered in the same fashion as a level lost to the touch of a wraith. However as it is a self-inflicted level loss immunity to level drain does not apply. If the ability fails in any fashion (e.g. the target is immune to paralysis, has no magical ability or uses a war cry to keep moving) no level is lost. In any event the touch cannot be used more than once for every two levels possessed in any given day regardless of success or failure.

Classes

The Calabrim have little opportunity for formal training, and as such may only begin as Pathfinders, Thugs, or Warriors, However once training has become available a much wider choice is available to them, the same options become available as if Half Elven.

Life Points

Life points are all as Human versions of those classes.

Guilds

Due to their isolated nature Calabrim are only able to join Ishmaic guilds until they reach table 3. At this point they may join guilds freely gaining basic benefits, intermediate benefits are gained on table 7, and advanced tier on table 9

Post Eighth Level Development

A Calabrim can multi-class with the same flexibility as a Half Elf, even to classes not listed above as available to the Calabrim race since their first choice of class is merely limited by circumstance, not by ability. Calabrim who multi-class to become members of the Priest class bracket suffer the same disbenefits as Half Elves. Calabrim who multi-class to become members of the Wizard class bracket cannot attain a class level of higher than 6th.

Calabrim 'Scratching Tongue'

The Calabrim have developed a written language to mark tunnels within their caverns, either declaring ownership, or for inscribing dire warnings of danger. This letter substitution code represents an entire language, and as such may only be translated by another Calabrim, or a character with the Read Languages skill, both of which may use a crib sheet as described in the Read Languages skill. Not all Calabrim can in fact read the Scratching Tongue, but to not be able to read it implies one is closer to the less intelligent Cavern Wights, and no Calabrim would ever admit to such a thing. (For reference this font is called Pictswirl, in case any player of referee or player would prefer to type props rather than by hand)

Samila

The power of the Seven Winds is not the only force at work within the Great Sink. Much as it does elsewhere, the Primal Spirit feels a need to assist its children. Samila are more closely related to the City Spirits of the Empire than its human population, born of the desire for Primus to express itself, the Samila are the spirits of the wide and empty places of the desert and the labyrinthine caverns beneath.

Thus events within their territory draw the attention of the governing Samila, producing the folk tales of robed strangers leading weary and parched strangers to hidden oasis, or in the case of the more malign Samila, offering promises of aid only to deposit the foolish wayfarer in the most inhospitable dustbowl which can be found.

Each Samila, when forming its sentience, lays claim to vast areas of land drawing on and complementing the intuitive wishes of the few creatures that live within those places. It is this territorialism, developed in the pre-sentient stage (called by the Samila their "Pulaim"), which breeds the lack of co-operation between them in later years.

Pulaic Samila (Pulaim) are less distinct in their appearance than their elder kin, often completely insubstantial and wielding wild Earthpower evocations without control or conscious intent, simply meeting its immediate needs. A Pulaim is a child without conscience, lacking more than a few words, but frightening in its command of the natural world.

Player Character Samila have achieved their adulthood (Iquish), and would be extremely wary of entering the territory of a Pulaim, knowing that the Pulaim will view this as a challenge, and, with its connection to the belief of the primal land it controls, it could best any lone traveller less potent than a legendary Samila.

The process of developing intelligence severs the power to use most of these abilities, making a newly created adult Samila the weakest it has ever been in the mystical powers it possesses, but now armed with a cunning and intelligence it never had before. Never armed, and without the strength to wear armour, the Samila are garbed in long flowing robes, ragged and torn by the sands borne upon the desert winds, they constantly travel seeking out lost travellers and wayward children, either to lead back to safety, or torment and drive mad in the deep wastes. Their lives are lonely ones, they have no need to meet others of their kind, their lives being created spontaneously in the caverns around the Great Sink by the raw Earthpower therein contained, and often two Samila will simply take a dislike to each other for no reason other than they are both Samila.

Samila may be Druids only, with the life points listed below (despite any references to High Druids).

Costume and Make Up

Samila always wear robes, but apart from the rather earthen faces have no other make up requirement. Their precise costume details should vary depending on the nature of the location they were created in, which should be built into the character background.

A large Samila may well have been created near a mountain and the props carried and colour of the costume may reflect that, whilst a slender and short Samila may well be from the deep desert and wear lighter coloured robes and have deep crow's feet around the eyes.

Guilds

Samila may freely join a professional guild, but may not standardly join any social or political guilds.

Innate Earthpower Talents

Samila gain the following abilities and life points as they reach each level, some of these abilities mimic magical spell innates but are not, they are, in fact, Earthpower abilities. They have no verbal but require an OOC declaration.

Level	TBLP	LOC	Abilities
1	22	7
2	23	7	Passwall 1/day
3	24	7
4	25	8
5	26	8	Earth Shift 1/4 levels
6	27	8	Passwall 2/day (from once)
7	28	9
8	29	9	Meld With Stone 1/day

'Of Strange Form'

The Samila has a strange form, physically frail, but strong with power.

- They have no spirit.
- They suffer only half effect from magic as per a Dwarf.
- They have no mind as such to be targeted or caught by neuronc abilities.
- They are however fully flesh and blood and effected fully by physical and Earthpower effects.

...But Frail Form

They may not acquire grades of Strength, nor may they wear armour.

Post Eighth Level Development

A Samila can acquire abilities as a normal 1st Class High Druid.

A Samila always uses their base life points as detailed above for the purposes of life-capping even if they multi-class or raise their base life points in any fashion.

They may never acquire the ability to use weapons of any type.

They may not leave the Druid bracket.

Crol

The Crol are a race of lizard men native to the lands of the Ishmaic Confederacy. Until sometime in the last Age, these huge, war-like lizard men lived in large temples and caverns beneath the deserts, emerging only to hunt the creatures native to the surface world and to perform their strange religious ceremonies to the Sun. During one such ceremony, a great many were set upon by the Athfanal, defeated and enslaved. For many Crol, slavery is the only life they have known.

The Crol vary in size and shape a great deal, although they are generally either short and bulky or tall and wiry. From birth they have tails but those Crol who are not enslaved have taken to cutting their tails off at their ritual of Maturity. Slave Crol however are easily identifiable by their reptilian tails. They all have scales and are frequently tattooed with bright colours. Their scales change colour as they mature but they start as being a yellowy green and darken as they get older. Their hair colour varies but is usually slicked back with oils and lightens to white as they age.

The Crol favour tridents and spears as their weapons and will duel only with them, though for hunting however any weapon will suffice. The Crol enjoy fighting, often doing so for fun as much as for practice but they are almost always ready for a fight (they are taught the errors of their past well). The Crol are a fairly short-lived race (on average they mature at 4 years old and will die of natural causes at about 16 (should any of them survive)) when their scales have blackened to the colour of ash and their hair an ivory white.

The Crol worship the Sun and the Moon, the Wind and the Desert (which they refer to as the mother) and they perform regular ceremonies to these things. To not do so at least once a week is considered blasphemy - a crime punishable by death. Their ceremonies involve a simple, song-like chant, taking perhaps 5 minutes after a period of fasting, followed by a period of meditation and then a meal in the name of the aspect worshipped. They are primarily carnivores as other sources of food are rare for them, although those enslaved by the Athfanal are often fed reeds and grasses to keep them docile. There are tales of the slaves desiring meat so much that they have resorted to eating each other, although this is probably only rumour particularly as their blood is, in most cases, mildly acidic making them unappetising at best.

The Law

The Crol have only one real law: You must not wrong the Crol. To do so is punishable by death. The decision of guilt or innocence is left to one person, the current Karak; if he deems the offender guilty he is also the executioner, although the guilty party does have the chance to defend themselves, albeit without weapons. The Crol tend to treat each other quite well because of this harsh judgment system – they rely on each other and generally respect another Crol's opinions. In general their temperament is quite passive and bland although they are known sometimes to fly into a rage at seemingly minor things. They tend to be quite stubborn and form impressions of other people quickly which they then keep to - first impressions last!

Castes

Kaerssor

There are three castes of Crol - They are lead by the Warrior Caste, called the Kaerssor.

This caste has a strict order to it and the strongest always rules with an iron fist. There is not much in-fighting but once a month there is a possibility to openly challenge the leader and fight them (to the death) to claim the position of Karak - Leader. They are trained from the age of two (or earlier if they are strong enough to hold a weapon before then) to fight and at four they are sent out into the desert for a week with only their trident and half a skin of water. If they survive this coming of age ritual they are given their first tattoo and are taken into the hunters to run with the others.

This practice of leaving their young in the desert has of late become noticed by the Athfanal and thus has become a lot more dangerous and young Crol are often being sent out in pairs to enhance their chances of survival. The Athfanal have however captured a lot of new young slaves recently.

Jaerseen

The second caste is the scholars and the wise folk of the race - the Jaerseen, these are the wizards and advisors. They are largely considered to be servants of the more aggressive warriors, both know that they are both needed but none have any doubt that the Kaerssor are essential - whereas the Jaerseen are, in some ways, a luxury. They are still taught to fight although they do not dedicate as much time as the others to it. Instead they undergo rigorous training about their arts and their customs. The species as a whole are worried about magic and have witnessed the evils of magic used against them (by the Athfanal) so their wizards are expected to know a great deal about their art before they cast any spells - foolish use of magic is a crime and is punishable by death.

Some of the Jaerseen's magics are tied into the tattoos worn by the Crol and their more skilled ritualists inscribe potent tattoos on the most powerful warriors.

Yashtar

The third caste of Crol is the Slaves - the Yashtar - those that have been born and bred in slavery to the Athfanal. They are treated incredibly badly and have a spell cast on them to dominate them into subservience. They perform all sorts of manual tasks for the Athfanal as well as guard duty and forming raiding parties. There is little to no resistance known of amongst the Yashtar as the spells that are cast on them are so potent - most of them do not even realise that they are slaves or that they could live in another way.

Live Role Playing Rules

No Crol can wear armour better than leather as it interferes with their scaly hides. Some of them do wear pieces of bronze metal but only for show not actually as armour.

Crol are only trained in using the following weapons - clubs, spears, scimitars, tridents and glaives, they have a maximum damage of triple with any other weapon.

Crol may only use Small Shields of at most 24" in diameter.

They may not acquire any form of neuronics.

Crol may join professional guild freely but may only join Crol related political and social guilds.

Crol gain no benefit from any form of potion as their physiology is just too different to drink them. They are also immune to poisons unless they are crafted specifically against the Crol race. Crol cannot acquire any form of immunity to cold and lose 4 DAC and 1 grade of strength (to a minimum of 0) in severe cold environments (ref's discretion) Crol are inedible as far as natural creatures are concerned due to their acidic blood, and their blood grants creatures drinking it no benefits if normally it would.

Yashtar

May only be Warriors, they gain 1 Innate PAC at 3rd, 2 (total) at 5th, 3 (total) at 7th and 4 (total) at 8th. They have the same life points as Half Ogres of their class.

Kaerssor

Can only be Rangers, Monks or Warriors, they gain 1 PAC at 5th and 2 PAC (total) at 8th. They have Human life.

Jaerseen

Can only be Wizards, Warlocks or Power Masters, they have to be of an elemental colour (Red, Green, Brown or Blue), they may not second colour and may not cast grey spells. They gain no Innate PAC. They have Elven Pathfinder life if a Wizard or Human Pathfinder life if a Warlock or Power-Master. They gain 1 casting level in their primary colour.

Talents

Each Caste has a range of options to choose from as they advance in levels - they gain a minor talent at 2nd, a medium talent at 5th and a major talent at 8th. These must be written on the cards when chosen. It is always possible to choose a lower level talent instead of a higher level one; it is only possible to choose a talent once however.

Yashtar

Minor Talents:

Toughened Feet
Large Lung Capacity

Medium Talents:

Insensitive Skin
Leg Sweep 2/day

Major Talents:

Stability
Immunity to Poison
Immunity to Disease
Immunity to Acid

Kaerssor

Minor Talents:

Large Lung Capacity
Discern Smell

Medium Talents:

Shed Skin 2/day ~ 12/2 cure which cures permanent and normal damage, but takes 10 seconds (e.g. may cure 12/2 damage which would otherwise be permanent as they lose the part of their body which is damaged)
Acid Potions 2/day ~ May cut palm for 1 loc and 6 TBLP that is then useable as an acid potion.

Major Talents

Bask ~ The Crol gains regen as a troll whilst they are resting in sunlight.

Potent Blood 2/day ~ the character may spit CV 6 at one target within 20' or when they have been struck, after the character takes the damage, the weapon they are struck with dissolves because of the acid (as disintegrate touch). The 'spit' must not be phys repped, it is deemed to automatically hit.

Jaerseen

Minor Talents:

Large Lung Capacity

Bronze Jewellery ~ Each piece of Bronze jewellery counts as a magical focus for a single spell, there must be one piece of jewellery per spell

Medium Talents:

Self Heal - 1/day ~ The Crol gains a Heal in their element but otherwise exactly as Power Master Self Heal*

Mystical Tattoos ~ The Crol gains 2 MAC vs. elemental attacks only

Major Talents:

Bask ~ The Crol gains regen as a troll whilst they are resting in sunlight

Elementalist~ Power Masters now calculate their mana as if they were a Warlock, Warlocks as if they were a Sorcerer and Wizards as if they were a High Wizard

* The Self-Heal ability functions as follows. Whilst in contact with appropriate element, which means underground for earth, in a strong breeze for air, up to the waist in water for water, and within or near a bonfire-size blaze for fire, this effect heals up to 36 TBLP and up to 36 locational damage. The phrase "[element] come unto me" must be repeatedly chanted for two minutes to achieve the effect. During this time the Crol cannot fight, cast spells, move etc or the process is interrupted and the innate is wasted.

The Athfanal Dominion

The Yashtar all have a magical glyph cast on them - it is an 18th level grey glyph which makes them obey the orders of any Athfanal. It also makes them obey the spirit of the order as well as the letter of it. They cannot attack, cause harm or provoke harm to any Athfanal while the glyph is active upon them (It is the spirit of this that is important - they are totally dominated by the Athfanal) If the glyph is removed / dispelled they will berserk rage gaining no benefit until 30 seconds after there are no Athfanal present.

Yashtar may only adventure if there is an Athfanal on the adventure with them. A Yashtar has 1st level resistance to Domination effects at all times but, if they are under the effects of the above glyph, can never be forced to attack an Athfanal

If a Yashtar is not dominated (i.e. has the above glyph dispelled) then they have brute level intelligence and will tend to follow orders shouted at them as they are used to it. It is assumed that in between dungeons the Yashtar is re-captured by the Athfanal and begins its next dungeon under the domination again.

Athfanal may buy the above glyph as an 18th level grey glyph with the verbal:

"You will do as your master commands. The Athfanal are your master. You are ours now."

It will only affect the Yashtar

Post 8th Development

Post 8th all the classes buy exactly as a Human of the same class but with the above restrictions. They are NOT tribal despite appearances.

Baronial

From south of the Brandins, and cut off for many years by Amora's rituals, the people of the Southern Baronies have developed a distinct and rigid culture, heavily influenced by the Dachtan and Voradal Magiocracies. Those from these lands differ slightly to those of the Empire, most notably power users. All characters from the Baronies MUST have a clear and appropriate accent (generally Germanic/Carpathian in nature).

Baronies Humans

Human characters have a different set of options to conventional Labyrinthian heroes. This is a cultural thing some of which can be overcome later in their career, but does limit the initial choice in characters they can play, and some of those characters have additional benefits and restrictions.

On the character card of such a character the race 'Baronies Human' should be written at 1st level. It is not generally possible to retroactively declare a character to be from the Baronies. Baronies Humans have close ties with their ancestors; this prevents them ever becoming immune to neuronics. Additionally unless they begin as a class with neuronics they must pay 50% extra for their neuronics abilities. However these close links allow them to call upon their ancestors. All Baronies humans can use the power 'Invoke Ancestor' once per day from 6th level. The exact effects of this depend on which ancestor they claim.

There are four significant figures in baronial history, and most human inhabitants of the Baronies are descended from at least one of them, although often indirectly. Any blood-kin link is sufficient to form the invocation, so anyone with training, sufficient force of will and a Baronies bloodline is capable. At 1st level, a Baronial Human may choose one of the four ancestors listed below as the ancestor with whom they have formed a bond, and this cannot be later changed. It is possible to choose to be unrelated to any of the four, but this also cannot later be changed, but they may (via points apps) develop a replacement ancestor.

To invoke any of the below ancestors' powers require 10 seconds prayer or invocation to the ancestor in question, spoken aloud. Any one of the following historical figures may be selected as an ancestor:

Duke Rhagrimm von Voradal, Master of the Bulaslavian Host

Invoking Duke Rhagrimm grants the descendant +2 resistance levels against magical effects, and 1 point of MAC for every 2 levels possessed (1st to 8th only, not multi-classes). These benefits last 5 minutes.

Issalania Sorrowsmith, Bringer of Troubles

Invoking Issalania allows the descendant to trigger turbulent and opposing emotions in one target within 20'. This is considered a magical and spiritual effect. At the user's choice the target is filled either with love or terror of them, either being Beguiled or struck with Fear at unlimited levels of effect. However, this influence lasts only five minutes, after which time the target is filled with hatred for the user, and gains a 25% rage against them if the target chooses to attack them.

Ulio the Corrascadant, Baron of Port Kinghaven

Invoking Ulio makes the descendant shimmer and disappear, albeit briefly. For 10 seconds the user becomes entirely invisible to any form of sight. However this invisibility is broken should they strike a blow, cast a spell, or use other innate abilities. The sensations involved in being clouded from men's gaze by Ulio are unpleasant, and the user suffers a -2 dexterity AC penalty for 5 minutes afterwards (cannot reduce dexterity below 0).

Duchess Eva Wyvett Veil, Mistress of the Lance

Invoking Duchess Eva fills the user with potent power, albeit temporarily, this grants them + 1 strength above normal maximums, and + 1 max damage vs. one chosen target. This lasts for a maximum of 1 minute.

Baronies Humans and Guilds

Baronial Humans are restricted on guilds. They may freely join professional guilds unless they are members of the Circle or Hedge. They may join any social guild but gain guild tiers a table later unless they are only for Baronial characters. They may only join Baronial political guilds.

Human Baronial Power Users

Power users must chose to be Hedge, Circle or, in the case of Priests, Talthar worshippers when they are started. Circle priests may not, initially, have goodly miracles upon their list. Druids (and Leywalkers) must always be Hedge

Class and Status Options

Below are a list of character classes open to Baronial Humans, and which status options they may take. The below categories apply only to Baronies Humans - not to other Baronies races, including the “Daemonkind” listed elsewhere in this book.

Characters with a “yes” in the relevant box may choose to be a member of the Ritter Ghrayve or Drachyul (as detailed below) when started and must buy the appropriate status (listed later). The choice can only be made when the character is started. Hedge characters may not be part of the Ritter Orders.

Class	Power User	Ritter Drachyul	Ritter Ghrayve
Warrior	No	Yes	Yes
Ranger	No	No	Yes
Archer	No	No	No
Valdstayn	No	No	Yes

High Druid	Yes	No	No
Forest Guardian	Yes	No	No
Mystic	Yes	No	No
Seer	Yes	No	No
Psi-Master	Yes	Yes	No

Circle and Hedge

Human power users have several options when started. They may be members of the Circle, Hedge, or in the case of priests Talthar Worshippers. Druids must always be Hedge.

Circle Membership

Because of their history the use of power in the southern Baronies is carefully monitored and controlled by a group called The Circle. Fearful of the bad old days when power used frivolously or maliciously smashed its way around the Baronies, the Circle recognises that such regulating of use is very important.

In addition the Circle offers an excellent range of tuition and political support within the Baronies, and as such the following modifiers are accrued by a character who is a Circle Wizard or a Circle Hermit Priest or similar. Circle Unholy Champions are not outlawed as they normally would be.

If a Circle member casts a magical spell, the casting damage for that spell is reduced by 1pt if the spell consumes at least one power point and is normally one point of TBLP damage. This does not help in the casting of cantrips or innate spells which cause casting damage as no power points are consumed.

If a Circle member uses a Neuronic power, they are assumed to have two more Neural Foci (as per Oraculum Insight) than normal, and take no life points at all when casting neuronics that would otherwise cost only 1 life point.

If a Circle member casts a miracle which is level based, then by doubling the casting damage taken in its casting, the miracle affects targets of 1 level higher than normal. If no damage is normally taken then normal casting damage is taken (if no damage casting was owned twice then this could be reduced to 0).

Censure.

Should a member of the Circle perform a mystic event which is in breach of the ethos of the Circle, then the above benefits are reversed until the end of the adventure. For example level based miracles have one less level of effect unless double casting damage is taken. Such acts would include acting against the Circle, drawing power from a God.

Inquisidore.

A Circle member should attempt to capture any Barony Human who is a Hedge Wizard as detailed below. Only Barony Humans can qualify as this as Labyrinthian Humans, even those who are travelling through the Southern Baronies, are normally granted honorary Circle membership by default. Once captured they should be taken to a Commissionaire of the Circle, one of these centres of the Circle exists in Takalia.

Circle members are expected to give absolute loyalty to the Circle - they are not permitted to be members of any other professional organisation, be it a guild, church or similar. Members of the Circle vary dramatically in moral and political outlook but all, when it comes down to it, support the basic political principles of the Southern Baronies. Circle members often find it simple to gain appointments as advisors to lords of manors both north in the Empire or south in the Baronies, but sometimes feel the need not to identify their nature to a Labyrinthian lord, too many years of bad feelings have left them concerned over what kinds of treatment they may receive, what bias or bigotry might be unleashed upon them.

Members of the Circle in full regalia, when displaying their post in the order of things publicly, often wear the symbol of the Circle (rather unsurprisingly a Circle) upon their garb. Often the colouration, size and pattern of the circle says a lot about the wearer a loud and boisterous magician might wear a gold scaled circle proudly upon his tabard, whilst a quieter Mystic might have a simple ivory badge an inch across over his breast.

Hedge Wizardry

Hedge Wizards are those Barony Humans who practise their magicks outside the protection of the Circle, and are actively hunted by Circle members when found. Hedge Wizards are normally followers of Earthpower, as the Circle does not regard such close tampering with the structure of Primus as a good thing, but can include many other professions as well. These renegades are normally self-taught and often quite well meaning in their actions, simply independent of the Circle.

Hedge Wizards are well advised to keep either their nationality or profession quiet depending on where they are adventuring, as members of the Circle are duty bound to bring them in to their masters. Such captured Hedge Wizards are never seen again, though there are strange and unfounded rumours that some Hedge Wizards are not simply burnt at the stake or hanged.

A Barony Human who is not a member of the circle and uses mystical powers has the word "Hedge" prefixed to their class name. e.g. Hedge Mystic, Hedge Rogue etc. Hedge Wizards are a little different to their Labyrinthian counterparts due to their self-taught nature.

Hedge gain power as a normal character (this is a change from previous rules).
A Hedge Wizard gains the scout standard skill of Disguise.

A Hedge Wizard gains Immunity to Informational Effects of their own primary power-base (not their own), and a cumulative resistance level to their own primary power-base, except when cast by themselves. This natural survival trait meant that the Vochstelen never found them when young to take to the Circle.

Due to the Hedge Wizard's hazardous life style, a Hedge Wizard gains an extra level of life, cumulative with other levels of life. Before 8th level, this means that their life is calculated as if they were one level higher.

A Hedge Wizard cannot join any organisation which specifically requires them to be a Barony Human, as they would be apprehended as a matter of course, and they may not join professional guilds. However they may freely join political guilds unlike other Baronial characters.

Hedge Wizards, rather surprisingly, are not bitter people driven by the fear of capture into slaying those of the Circle, but quiet revolutionaries, seeking alliances, and trying to draw members of the Circle into their own secret cults.

Matters in the south are seldom clear-cut, black and white, and few Hedge Wizards wish the attention of a hunt for the killer of a member of the Circle by the massed might of the local Waldgraf, or a determined band of Vochstelen.

Hedge characters are Ostracised within the Baronies, so may be killed freely.

Talthar

After years of fighting against the Spiter, the Circle has accepted worship of Talthar within the Baronies. While it may not be preached, and temples remain plain and unadorned the priests themselves are allowed to be.

Baronial humans may choose to worship Talthar, and thus be neither Hedge nor Circle. They may only belong to the Church of Talthar as a professional guild.

Blauz, Duidoin and Ggrutuck

There are a number of Daemonkind-descended races, now naturalised as denizens of Primus, who reside in the southern Baronies. They are generally referred to by their racial name, much as a Human or Elf might well be, as each is a distinct race in its own right. Although descended from true Daemonkind, those that now inhabit the Baronies have not grown up or been shaped in the same environment, and so will generally have more 'balanced' outlooks than might be expected of a true demon. Ggrutuck, Duidoin and Blauz have the following racial modifications:

Alignment

Baronial Daemonkind each have alignment restrictions.

Flesh and Blood

Ggrutuck, Blauz and Duidoin are considered flesh and blood creatures, however even though they are native to Primus, beneficial Earthpower effects like Druidic Heal, Cure Disease, Slow Poison and Neutralise Poison do not affect them as the power of nature still rejects them as unnatural to her realm. It may be that in time the slow-moving Earthpower will come to accept them, or it may be for some completely different reason that they have been as yet unaffected. It seems likely that the only people who will ever know the complete truth are the Daemonkind themselves...

Guilds

Baronial Daemonkind are able to join social guilds as Baronial Humans, and they may join political guilds that are open to Baronial characters. Each race has specific restrictions on professional guilds.

Planar Natives

Having been born on this world, Ggrutuck, Duidoin and Blauz are not susceptible to effects which target creatures from other worlds. Effects which target Daemonkind do not affect Ggrutuck, Blauz or Duidoin unless that ability specifically names their species in its description. They may look like daemons but they are natives to this world, second or later generation immigrants and as such the world of Primus does not rule them to be other worldly servants in any fashion, no more than an Orc, a Dwarf or a Human is.

Blauz

The Blauz are the slyest of the naturalised Daemonkind in the southern Baronies, even their visage is only just about discernible as not human, with tiny horns upon the forehead being the only clue.

The Blauz are perhaps the most diplomatic of the Daemonkind within the southern Baronies, and their species carved this role using their natural talents in concealing the truth and manipulating those with whom they are negotiating.

It would therefore be easy to dismiss the Blauz as completely untrustworthy and impossible to have any form of dealings with, if it were not for the fact that they do often hold information or objects, treaties or rituals which other groups would need and are capable of trading for them.

Blauz are clever, clever enough to know that mixing some truth in with the lies makes them much more dangerous, and much more difficult to dismiss out of hand.

Blauz may be Warriors, Assassins, Wizards, or Pure Priests. If Wizards, their statistics are exactly as normal Human Wizards, although they may not ever have a colour of Ivory.

Pure Priests may either be Hermit Priests that served the Spiter (and thus are Evil) but now have no god or serve Shining Rael (and thus are goodly).

With the shifting desires of the Blauz they have in recent years evolved and become dramatically opposed. Blauz may be either Goodly or Evil in alignment, they may not be Neutral. Existing characters are unaffected.

Professional Guilds

Blauz are generally untrusted and as such only gain professional guild tiers 2 tables later.

Racial Abilities

Level	Ability
3	Conceal Lie 1/2 levels
6	Beguile 1/4 levels
8	Terror Scream 1/day

The Conceal Lies ability enables the Blauz to lie to any ability which detects lies. It lasts for 5 minutes, and is considered to be both magical and spiritual in power - if the target is affected by either of these they are influenced by the ability, even if the Lie Detection power they are using is neuronc, for example.

The Beguile ability influences one target within 20' in a similar manner to the Beguile Spirit miracle. It affects any target with a resistance level of up to the user's own level, and is considered to be from a magical and spiritual source. The Beguile lasts 5 minutes, during which time the target must role-play as if the user is their closest and most trusted friend, despite any evidence to the contrary, and will generally do anything they can to aid the user. Their alignment is not changed, so that they may still find some acts repugnant, for example, and they are unlikely to be willing to commit suicidal acts, but will otherwise act to the best of their ability to do as the user wants.

The Terror Scream causes fear (in a similar way to the miracle) in all creatures of the Blauz's level or below for one minute. This effect is "physical" and does not affect mindless creatures, such as zombies or elementals. It will however affect non-physical creatures capable of hearing the sound, as long as they are not mindless. This scream does not affect other Blauz.

Note that the Disguise skill cannot remove the Blauz' characteristic horns from their heads, so elaborate concealments would be necessary to hide the assassin's race. Among the Blauz, this skill is most often used simply to disguise themselves as a different Blauz!

Ggrutuck

Ggrutuck are fierce, warlike creatures. They have green or grey skin, often with artistic designs tattooed or carved into it. They often have many protruding horns, teeth or tusks. Ggrutuck are known for their determined, one-track minds, which, once they get hold of an idea or a purpose, will not let it go until their final death throes. These are not stupid Daemons, Ggrutuck have a great capacity for admiring beauty and achievement, and can make formidable debating opponents when a passionate matter is at hand. The real problem is that they are powerfully strong warriors, and exceptionally developed culturally.

Ggrutucks may be Warriors, Warlocks (of colours permitted by their alignment), Artificers, and Warrior Priests. Warrior Priests must be hermits and may either be ex-servants of the Spiter, and thus evil and now without a god, or L/N in alignment as servants of UK.

Ggrutuck gain their first grade of strength at 6th level, and have life as their Human equivalent, except for Warriors. Ggrutuck Warriors have life as per a Half Ogre (except the additional life to the abdomen), however they may not utilise a shield.

Ggrutuck may freely join professional guilds as their class allows, they may also be any non-goodly alignment.

Duidoin

Duidoin have unnaturally pale skin slashed with dark 'tiger' stripes along the sides of their faces, arms and hands. They too are warlike, as is common to many Daemonkind, but unlike the Ggrutuck, the Duidoin aspire to beauty or grace and style in their acts, whether it be combat or otherwise. Their taste is often different to that of most others, and they are known for wearing bright, clashing colours which others consider gaudy. They may even paint their faces in this style to better match their attire. Although Duidoin tend to be tall, short members of their race are not unknown and there is no height restriction when playing a Duidoin. Duidoin may be Warlocks in the normal way (with life as per Human), of colours fitting their alignment restrictions, or Rovfugr (detailed in En-guard). All Duidoin gain innates of Consume Primal Vitae x1/2 levels. Duidoin may be any Evil alignment or CN, and due to their arrogance are unable to join professional guilds since they are above such things.

Consume Primal Vitae - requires 30 seconds physical contact with a helpless or willing, living, fully flesh-and-blood target. The touch draws the strength from the victim and gives it to the Duidoin, leaving the victim suffering the first, five-minute stage of Disease for 15 minutes (i.e. they are unable to run, shout, cast, use DAC or fight. They may still walk and talk). Immunity to Disease grants immunity to the effect, as does Immunity to Flesh-and-Blood effects, even the limited immunity possessed by elves. If the target is affected, the Duidoin is cured 3 total body and 1 to the most injured location for each resistance level possessed by the victim-this resistance level is taken to be the lowest of their resistance to magic and spirits. Temporary power-ups or resistances such as the gold Hearten spell do not increase the curing received. No target may suffer the effects of a Consume Primal Vitae more than twice in a 24-hour period.

Other Races in the Baronies

Other races can lay claim to the baronies as their home, but no benefits or restrictions (beyond accent) are gained by these creatures.

Tribal Creatures

It should be noted that there are no large numbers of tribal creatures in the southern baronies. It is permitted to play a 'Baronies tribal creature', but such creatures should be rare and far between. They function exactly the same as normal tribal creatures, and may not join Baronial guilds.

Magical Creatures

Those creatures that are Faeries or appear like Faeries (Elves, Draves and Faeries) will be treated very badly in the southern Baronies, as such figures are associated with the malign fey enclaves which trouble the humans so much. It would not be unusual for peons to flee in terror at the sight of an elf, or to raise a hue and cry reaching for pitchfork and burning brand when a Drave is seen at the edge of the village.

The People of Amles (Previously Orientals)

The recent upheavals in the lands to the east of the Labyrinthian Empire have brought many changes to their society, including an Emperor raised within the Labyrinthian Empire. However the core of their society remains unchanged. As such there are several rules for playing characters from Amles.

All individuals from Amles must have appropriate costume (free flowing garb and the like), and an appropriate accent (it should broadly be Far Eastern in nature, without being comical or offensive).

Humans

Humans from Amles may be any class they may normally be and be of any alignment. However due to the rigid Caste System individuals must, upon starting, select a Caste to belong to, and purchase the relevant ability post 8th as the first ability bought. Once selected an individual's Caste can only change as a result of a CC contract, or by becoming the head of an Amlesian Clan/Family.

Castes

Eta

The lowest of the low. They have no position, no honour, and no regard. It is impossible for one of this Caste to rise beyond their starting position. They perform the most menial of tasks.

Peasant

The class of the masses. Many fall within the Caste, even those with great talents. It is common, and although all but the Eta are above their station they are important within the social system.

Artisan

From a family of trade or talent the family will have money and some respect. They are rarely skilled in arms or the mystical arts, but they serve a valued role.

Mystical One

A Priest, Wizard or similar. They are respected for their wisdom and power, though seen as less important than warriors in a land dominated by martial talent.

Protector

The Warriors of the land. They serve and protect the people and clans. Their duty is to ensure the Empire remains intact and its power strong.

Samurai

The highest standing an individual can start with. They sit beneath the clan heads, and are considered the most honourable within the lands. An individual of Samurai standing is bound by the Code of Jade (below) and if they fail to fulfil it are expected to commit Seppuku (below). Those seeking to start at the Samurai caste must buy the Honoured One Status unless they are a warrior and have purchased the Samurai tradition.

Should an individual rise in social rank they must buy their new caste ability, but any points spent on previous castes reduce the cost of this (So a Peasant, 10 points, rising to Artisan, 20 points, would only have to pay an additional 10 points).

Outside the Caste System

Dishonoured One

These are people who have failed to adhere to the strict caste system of Amles and refused to submit to justice. They may be dishonoured warriors, rebel heroes, or bandits. Those choosing this route must purchase the Dishonoured One Status rather than a caste ability. Dishonoured Ones are all Ostracised within Amles.

Fortune

A servant of the Celestial Realms. An individual choosing this path must purchase the Fortune Status rather than a Caste. Fortunes often move through Amles keeping their identities a secret to avoid the Oni that hunt them.

Oni

A creature born from the Shadowlands. They purchase the Oni Status rather than a Caste. It is important to note that Oni are hunted within Amles and may be killed on sight.

The Jade Code (previously the Code of Bushido)

Those within Amles loyal to the Jade Empire strive to follow the Jade Code, a set of ideals that uphold the spirit of the Empire of Jade. The Code should be followed in spirit more than letter. Those with the Samurai Tradition or the Honoured One Status must follow this code, and to fail to do so means they must commit Seppuku before the end of the dungeon they break it on (see below).

- Always display your clan/family symbol
- Be honest throughout your dealings with all people
- Be true to your word
- Do not break the law of the Jade Empire
- Fight the most dangerous enemy present
- Show courtesy to all including your enemy
- Never let an insult go un-avenged
- Do not break a promise
- Never betray your Lord, Clan or friends

Seppuku

Where an individual bound by the Jade Code has failed to live up to its ideals they must commit Seppuku (ritual suicide) to purge the dishonour. This must be completed on the dungeon where the breach occurred. Individuals committing Seppuku permanently die, though they may rebirth.

Alternatively if an individual refuses to commit Seppuku they become dishonoured and must immediately begin purchasing the Dishonoured One Status. This will result in them being cast out of their Clans (including Guilds).

Other Races

Humans are not the only people that inhabit Amles. Players may also start the races below. These are not part of the Caste structure (so do not need to, and cannot, buy a Caste Rank upon beginning play).

Faeries

These are as per their Imperial equivalents. Born from the wild magic that can be found within Amles, some are benign, some dangerous, all unpredictable. They may choose to purchase the Oni or Fortune status if of the correct alignment.

Goblins

Again as per the Imperial equivalents. These however are always evil, and must purchase the Oni Status. Goblin Witch Doctors become Wizards, and Shaman Pure Priests.

Trolls

These function in a similar manner to the Imperial equivalents, but must be either Good or Evil, and purchase the Oni or Fortune status as relevant. Witch Doctors become Wizards, and Shaman Pure Priests.

Ogres

Within Amles there are three types of Ogres. First the Ogre Magi, these are as normal Ogres from the Empire but MUST purchase level one of the Ogre Magi multi-race as the first ability bought post 8th and they may not belong to a tribe. Next are those Ogres that are Fortunes, again requiring the purchase of the Fortune Status, and finally those that are Oni. Witch Doctors become Wizards, and Shaman Pure Priests.

Barbarians

These function exactly as per the Imperial Equivalent, including membership of tribes (though they must clearly be Amlesian tribes). They are considered raiders and dangerous by most within the lands of Amles.

Ratfolk

Unconnected to the Ratfolk of the Empire these are older beings, believed to have been infused with the power of their totem sometime in the mid-Second Age. Perhaps this is where Kahan found his plan to create them within the Empire. They function as normal Ratfolk except don't gain benefits from Breed or Clan. Instead they can join appropriate Amlesian guilds, but not the normal human clans.

Samila

Known by various names these strange creatures exist within Amles. They function as per their Ishmaic equivalent, and buy Samila related abilities as normal but not Ishmaic specific ones. They may not join any guilds at all.

Social Status

These represent an individual's social standing within a society, or perhaps even within a specific organisation. On reaching a new table post 8th the relevant status rank must be the first thing purchased. An individual may select as many relevant status as they wish, but must purchase all of them upon obtaining a new table. If they have several abilities they are required to buy then they may choose which they purchase first, but all must be purchased before any other abilities are. Should a character rise in points in such a fashion as to gain several tables in one adventure, each rank must be bought in order before any other abilities can be acquired. These status do not in any way count as multi-classes or races.

Imperial Noble

Available to characters from the Labyrinthian Empire.

An individual is free to start a single Noble of the Blood. If this character perm dies or otherwise ceases to be a Noble they may not start another. It is possible through points app or rebirth to have more than one Noble of the Blood however. Likewise they may only have one Noble Antiquitus. A player is free to start Noble Exhumanitas, Deed or Repudiare as often as they like. When starting a Noble character you should choose or create a Noble House to be part of, how to do this is detailed in The Realm of Glass.

It is possible for an individual to acquire the rank of Noble by Deed after starting play. This can be done via CC contract, or it is possible to receive it as a reward when the Senate's New Year's Honours are listed, or from other powerful Noble characters. In order to accept the Honour a character must purchase the Noble by Deed Status. To not do so represents a character refusing the Honour and being unable to use it. The choice should be made before the character is next played.

Noble Ranks

Only Humans may be Nobles of the Blood, and only Barbarians and Half Orcs may be Noble Antiquitus. Humans and Tribals cannot be Noble Exhumanitus. These are affected by the first purchase and this cannot be bypassed except through the purchase of the ability "Younger Sibling" detailed in Rank 2 of General Effects of Nobility.

A player who does not wear the required costume loses all benefits of ranks acquired, but retains all disadvantages for their character.

Rank	General Effects
------	-----------------

Rank 1	Character begins each adventure with a single set of armour as per the phys rep worn. This armour is considered adventure temporary.
---------------	--

The Noble must wear an excellent costume displaying their heraldry in full. This includes shields bearing the family emblem and full tabards or other formal dress. Nobles Antiquitus must be recognizable for what they are, but their heraldry can be a little more 'bizarre' as long as it is consistent and of equal or greater detail to that of other nobles.

Rank 2	Option – May elect to purchase the ability 'Younger Sibling'. Once this is done, the character cannot purchase any further ranks of Nobility until the older sibling (who must be a player character and who is written on the character's card) permanently dies without re-birthing, or has not 'been seen in many a year' in the opinion of the Game System Manager. Once this happens the next eldest sibling must then immediately begin purchasing any ranks they should now possess before acquiring any other abilities. Each Noble may only have one younger sibling, but in an extended family a younger sibling may well have another younger sibling in turn. The elder of the kinship must also sign the acquisition of the ability, thus confirming they have no other directly younger sibling.

Rank 3	A Noble of this rank has the right to peace knot their weapons rather than surrender them in the home of another Noble or any imperial agency, unless that location is the Inner City of Halgar. However enforcing this right is another matter. This is particularly true for Noble Antiquitus, since the Convention of Nobility seldom recognizes them as equals.
---------------	---

Rank 4	Knowledge of the Ruling Classes – The character gains Discern Noble Rank at will. This ability takes 30 seconds to use. During this time the two nobles in question should be discussing their names and families. At the end of the 30 seconds the STATUS rank of the nobles becomes apparent to each other (even if only one of them had the discern ability. This does not tell the user what type of noble they are, simply what rank in this noble status they have achieved. This ability does not indicate which is the social superior, that is determined by their rank (Squire, Baron etc)
---------------	---

- Rank 5 Righteous Indignation: +1 level of resistance to all Domination effects.
- Rank 8 If a Noble is charged with a crime, or standing trial for becoming an Outlaw, they can request Trial by Peers rather than the normal Covenant officials. If this is requested they are bound to accept the Trial's outcome, or they must forfeit all titles and are banished from the Empire and Ostracised by it. All benefits of their Noble ranks are lost.
- Rank 12 Speaking with Authority – Character gains +1 level of effect with all Domination effects, this only stacks with published increases.

Rank Noble of the Blood

- Rank 1 May chose to carry appropriate documentation to prove they are a Noble of the Blood.
- Rank 2 Privilege – Is permitted to enter the Convention of Nobility, and is entitled to speak and call forth issues for resolution.
- Rank 3 Benefits of Estates, Noble starts each adventure with an additional adventure temporary herbal 6pt healing potion for each rank achieved in this status.
- Rank 5 The character is now a Noble of the Empire. If they carry themselves with appropriate decorum, and uphold all aspects of the Great Freedom, will be considered by peons and lesser personages of the Empire with considerable respect.
- Rank 6 Gains Noble Society 1/day ~ Grants a 3 word answer on a matter that would be understood from a noble upbringing, moving in noble circles, a full and proper education and the like.
- Rank 7 Aptitude to Ritualism – Counts as a power user for the purposes of performing rituals. Only suffers ½ level loss from rituals, this would include restore life or similar.
- Rank 8 The Noble gains Befriend Peon of up to half the characters own level at will after 10 seconds introduction. There are no side-effects to this befriend, and it is considered to be an emotion effect.
- Rank 9 Knowledge of the Blood, gains recognize Noble of the Blood 3' range, Y/N only. This ability cannot be deceived, nor does immunity to physical informational effects apply. A specific immunity to this mystical informational effect may be acquired for 100pts on table 11.
- Rank 10 Recognize Primus. After 30 seconds concentrating the Noble can tell if they are on the plane of Primus and in which direction the Throne is located. If actually in Halgar they can tell in which direction the Throne Room is located. If the individual is also a Yeoman then they can generally find their way back to Primus when in the mittlenacht or similar.
- Rank 11 Gains a second innate Noble Society
- Rank 12 Knowledge of the Blood. A Noble of the Blood gains kin and true kin with all other Nobles of the Blood on adventure. Noble Society now gives full 7 word answers, and extras may be purchased at 40 points each.

Rank Noble by Deed

- Rank 1 May carry appropriate paperwork to prove the character is a Noble by Deed.
- Rank 2 Privilege – Is permitted to enter the Convention of Nobility, and is entitled to speak and call forth issues for resolution.
- Rank 4 Benefits of Estates, Noble starts each adventure with an additional 1 adventure temporary herbal 6pt healing potion for each rank achieved in this status.
- Rank 5 The Character is now a Noble of the Empire. If they carry themselves with appropriate decorum, and uphold all aspects of the Great Freedom, will be considered by peons and lesser personages of the Empire with considerable respect.
- Rank 6 Gains an innate of Daring Deed (as per the warrior ability) 1/day
- Rank 7 Gains an innate Intimidation (as bully boy) but it only functions vs. enemies of the Empire, this includes Outlaws.
- Rank 8 The Noble gains Befriend Peon of up to half the characters own level at will after 10 seconds introduction. There are no side-effects to this befriend, and it is considered to be an emotion effect.
- Rank 10 Inspiration –If during the course of an adventure any of the others present have acquired the ability 'Noble Families Retainer' with regards this Noble's family, then those retainers gain a single use of the War Cry ability. If no such individuals are present then one chosen individual may be inspired (taking 5 minutes) and they gain an innate war cry usable that day.
- Rank 11 Gains a second Daring Deeds innate.

Rank 12 Gains a Second Intimidation innate as rank seven.

Rank Noble Repudiare

Rank 2 The Noble Repudiare may use a plain black shield or a plain wooden shield in place of one bearing their familial heraldry. In a like manner they may wear a simple black tabard rather than one bearing their heraldry.

Rank 6 Cautious Approach – Acts as a physical psi scan 1/day

Rank 9 The Noble's membership of their family (including if it is part of the noble's name) is immune to informational effects unless the noble specifically chooses to allow them to function.

Rank 11 Gains a second use of Cautious Approach

Rank 12 Unspoken Approval – use of the Noble's family name no longer draws disdainful looks from other Nobles. The actions of the Noble have redefined the popular noble opinion of the family's status. This could make things even worse however...

If desired the Noble Repudiare may now purchase in rising order, the ranks of Noble by Deed up to Rank 11. They can miss any rank they do not wish to acquire, but having once done so may not return and purchase a skipped rank. It is expected the character will build into their characters profile why certain ranks were skipped and maintain internal logic. (e.g. a Noble Repudiare whose family estates were destroyed may elect to skip Benefits of Estates).

Rank Noble Antiquitus

Rank 6 Recognise Primus. After 30 seconds concentrating the Noble can tell if they are on the plane of Primus and in which direction the Nagrech Crystal (The Throne of Glass) is located.

Rank 7 "The Old Ways" Gains a lucky idea answer to something that has relevance to history. (Not "How do I kill this twisted one" but potentially "How were twisted ones killed in the past?")

Rank 10 Knowledge of the Blood, gains recognize Noble of the Blood 3' range, Y/N only. This ability will also recognize Nobles Antiquitus. This ability cannot be deceived, nor does immunity to physical informational effects apply. A specific immunity to this mystical informational effect may be acquired for 100pts on table 11 by a Noble of the Blood or Noble Antiquitus.

Rank 11 Gains a second use of The Old Ways, and both will now give a seven word answer.

Rank 12 Knowledge of the Blood. A Noble Antiquitus gains kin and true kin with all other Noble Antiquitus & Nobles of the Blood on adventure.

Rank Noble Exhumanitas

Rank 1 May carry appropriate paperwork to prove the character is a Noble of the Empire.

Rank 6 The Empire Defended 1/day – Gains a seven word answer regarding a broad course of action and how it impacts on the Empire.

Rank 7 Renown – Gains Ward Pact (as Ancient Folk) vs. members of their original race. This is at 4 levels, except for Ancient Folk when it effects at their normal pact level.

Rank 8 The Character is recognized as a Noble of the Empire. If they carry themselves with appropriate decorum, and uphold all aspects of the Great Freedom, will be considered by peons and lesser personages of the Empire with considerable respect.

Rank 10 Privilege – Is permitted to enter the Convention of Nobility, and is entitled to speak and call forth issues for resolution.

Rank 11 Gains a second The Empire Defended.

Rank 12 The Noble gains Befriend Peon of up to half the characters own level at will after 10 seconds introduction. There are no side-effects to this befriend, and it is considered to be an emotion effect.

Costs for Noble characters

These costs are a running total, not a cost for each level. As a note if an individual is already a Noble and acquires the ability to buy Noble by Deed then they may do so at half cost, however duplicated benefits are not gained.

Table	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11	12
Antiquitus	10	20	40	60	80	100	120	140	160	180	200	250
Blood	10	20	40	60	80	100	120	140	160	180	200	250

Exhumanitas	10	20	40	60	80	100	120	140	160	180	200	250
Repudiare	10	20	40	60	80	100	120	140	160	180	200	250

Yeoman

This status option is only available to normal non-tribal characters from the Labyrinthian Empire. Oddly Faeries cannot buy the status, nor may Elysians or other races not natural to Primus. Clearly Outlaws may not buy this status.

A player who does not wear the required costume loses all benefits of ranks acquired, but retains all disadvantages for their character. An Imperial Yeoman needs to have his race written on his card at 1st level as Imperial Yeoman, the Yeoman may not use a multi-race option under any circumstances, nor may they belong to any Political or Social Guild that is not tied directly to the Yeomanry. They may now join professional guilds freely.

Rank General Effects

- Rank 1 The Yeoman's costume should include either the Imperial Arrow symbol, the emblem of their home city or the coat of arms of a Major Imperial Noble house to whom they are either a member or a family retainer. Gains Rebirth.
Should an Imperial Yeoman become outlawed, they must hand themselves in at the end of the adventure, they have no desire to do otherwise. If for some reason they cannot, they will do so at the earliest opportunity and before doing ANYTHING else.
- Rank 2 Starts each adventure with a suit of adventure temporary armour equal to the level of the phys rep worn by the character. This armour is not transferable and no card is issued for it. High Wizards gain a specialist slot that is filled with an immediately available spell. Non-Armour wearing priests gain a handbook scroll of up to 3rd level, and neuronics classes unable to wear armour gain a focussing crystal (as the Make System, which grants + 2 Foci).
- Rank 3 Primal Stamina – Gains an Extra level of Life as per their 1st Class (for warrior subclasses this is 6/2 life) to a minimum of 4/1.
- Rank 4 Recognise Primus. After 30 seconds concentrating the Yeoman can tell if they are on the plane of Primus and in which direction the Nagrech Crystal (The Throne of Glass) is located.
- Rank 5 Knowledge of the Lines, gains recognise type of Noble 3' range after 30 seconds conversation.
- Rank 6 One weapon or other piece of equipment carried by the Yeoman is filled with the raw power of the Nagrech crystal, and considered 'Master Status'. Disarms still function as normal. Yeoman Wizards may instead chose to gain a small crystal that grants + 1 Level of Casting, Priests and Druids may gain a Major Prayer to the Throne about Spirit/Earthpower matters, and Neuronics classes may choose to gain a precognition.
- Rank 7 Patriot – Should a Noble of the Empire die or become incapacitated within their sight, the Yeoman gains the benefits of a War Cry and +6/2 life for the next five minutes as they seek to protect their fallen social superior. They do not gain these benefits for themselves.
- Rank 8 Strength of the Nagrech – gains an extra level of skill for power calculation and casting purposes if a 1st class power user or neuronics, so that priests cast as if 9th level in effect and gain one extra level of spirits and wizards calculate their mana and casting level as if one level higher. Neuronics calculate their innates as if one level higher and count as 9th level when using level based neuronics effects. Non 1st class power users now gain either a burst or strength, war cry or discipline once per 3 hours
- Rank 9 Primal Stamina – Gains an Extra level of Life as per their 1st Class (for warrior subclasses this is 6/2 life), again to a minimum of 4/1.
- Rank 10 Knowledge of the Blood, gains recognize Noble of the Blood 3' range, Y/N only. This ability cannot be deceived, nor does immunity to physical informational effects apply. A specific immunity to this Mystical informational effect may be acquired for 100pts on table 11 by a Noble of the Blood or Noble Antiquitus.
- Rank 11 Primal Stamina – Gains an Extra level of Life as per their 1st Class (for warrior subclasses this is 6/2 life), to a minimum of 4/1.
- Rank 12 Vitae of the Nagrech – should the Yeoman rebirth then an additional 10% of points are retained. Those points must be spent on this Status, and all Ranks (including this one) must be bought regardless of table – any excess points (if any) out of that 10% may be spent as the Yeoman desires.

Baronial Ritters

These knightly orders are only available to Barony Humans, and if a character is to be a member of one, this decision must be made before your first adventure. A member of one of these orders has the order name written on their character card immediately before their class name. E.g. a warrior of the Order of Ghrayve would be written down as "Ritter Ghrayve Warrior" and their race as "Barony Human". It is not possible to join one of these orders retroactively post eighth level. A player who does not wear the required costume for membership in the order loses all benefits of ranks acquired, but retains all disadvantages for their character.

Ritter Ghrayve

Ritter Ghrayve may not be chaotic in alignment.

Costume: Grey tabard, and must display a white circle somewhere on their person (e.g. on the front of the tabard). The Ghrayve are often poor and their costume can reflect this in its patched and worn appearance.

Rank General Effects

- Rank 1 Gains Recognise Mana as per Wizard, will not willingly allow spells to be cast on them. Will not willingly observe allies cast spells in a non-combat environment except where such spells remove a magical spell. May not cast magical spells, even from magical items.
- Rank 2 Gains +1 cumulative resistance level to listed magical Domination effects.
- Rank 3 If struck with a ranged magical damaging attack without a phys rep, casting stamina can be used to soak the TBLP damage. For every 6 points of TBLP damage soaked in this fashion, one point of locational damage to each location is also soaked. e.g.: a Storm Blast inflicts 12/2 damage. The Ritter Ghrayve has 6 Casting Stamina and uses this to absorb 6 TBLP and 1 point to each location, suffering only 6/1 'real' damage.
- Rank 4 Cleanse the Elements. By sitting before an ongoing static magical effect for one minute carefully examining the power, may cast a Dispel Magic of up to 9th level. This costs the Ritter Ghrayve 6 TBLP per mana point so dispelled. This can be used once per day per three tables acquired (round down - at rank 4 may use once a day).
- Rank 5 Gains + 1 cumulative Magical Armour Class which applies only to spells/similar and not purely magical weapon blows.
- Rank 6 If struck by a magical, non-damaging effect which targets the Ritter, rather than his possessions, the Ritter can instead choose to 'Shrug' the effect. This costs 6 TBLP per mana point of the spell, or 3 TBLP if the effect is not actually a spell. This negates the effect of the spell. This may be used once per day per three tables acquired (round down - at rank 7 may use 2). If the effect shrugged is a stackable glyph, life is only taken for 1 rune shrugged. Area effects may not be negated in this way.
- Rank 7 Gains +1 cumulative resistance level to listed magical Stopping Effects.
- Rank 8 Cleanse the Elements now effects up to 14th level spells, and the cost in life points is reduced to 3 TBLP per mana level so dispelled.
- Rank 9 Gains Magical Perception, as the Ranger ability Perception, but against magical effects only. May now buy resistances to mana colours from the tables at half the standard cost, for example buying "Immunity to Fire" for 50 points. In this case, these immunities apply only to magical forms of attack, not to physical or other power-bases.
- Rank 10 Deny Power, as the Grey glyph once per day, costing 18 TBLP.
- Rank 11 The Ritter can choose to delay the effects of a spell with a duration which targets them rather than their possessions or an area effect. The spell takes effect five minutes later, and could be dispelled in the meantime. The spell's duration is not otherwise affected, with the countdown for its effect beginning when it actually starts working rather than when it was cast.
- Rank 12 Cleanse the Elements now effects up to 20th level spells and the cost in life points is reduced to 1 TBLP per mana level so dispelled.

Ritter Drachyul

Fortified by the ancient powers of the Drachyul from Wallastovia, those that fall in battle serving the Barons, and Grafs of the Waldgrafine are often returned as Vampiric Undead to serve on.

Ritter Drachyul may not be Goodly or Lawful Neutral in alignment.

Costume: Crimson tabard or surcoat (plus makeup as below)

Rank General Effects

- Rank 1 The character must wear pale make up, with rich red lips and shadowed eyes.
The character gains +1 Strength as per the tables ability (max +3)
- Rank 2 Gains the skill "Discern Flesh and Blood Creature", a physical informational effect with a 20' range.
No longer benefits from conventional food, but requires 6TBLP of blood drunk from a willing or helpless target each adventure. If not done, the Ritter only gains half points for the adventure. On extended length adventures the Ritter is permitted to eat, but should role-play doing so only to be social and finding the whole experience exceptionally unpleasant. potions and poisons still influence the Ritter at this stage.
- Rank 3 Gains +1 Dexterity AC, except in sunlight.
- Rank 4 Gains Immunity to Ageing and Ageing effects.
Now is and discerns as a level 1 Undead, name "Minor Drachyul". Gains no undead immunities bar those listed here. May be dismissed, controlled or destroyed as an undead. Is harmed by holy water as an undead.
- Rank 5 When on "Holy Ground" (referee's discretion) the Ritter suffers -2 maximum armour class from the discomfort. The area of effect of a Rite of the Bright God (see Words from Above) counts as holy ground for this purpose. Is now a level 2 Undead name "Minor Drachyul"
- Rank 6 Gains immunity to flesh and blood effects, bar those to do with the consumption of another person's blood. A Ritter Drachyul's blood if drunk by another yields no power. This is particularly relevant with regards the 7th rank ability, meaning no other Ritter can now feed off this character. Is now a level 3 Undead name "Lesser Drachyul"
- Rank 7 May drink the blood of a living, willing or helpless flesh-and-blood target. This heals 12 TBLP and 12 Loc damage curing the most damaged locations first. This can be performed once per day per two ranks achieved, rounded down (e.g. 3 times at rank 7). The damaged target suffers 24 points of TBLP damage during this process. Takes 5 seconds to perform. Is now a level 4 Undead name "Lesser Drachyul"
- Rank 8 Gains Lightning Reactions - grants immunity to any melee attacks which take place in a time freeze situation. Celeritous Movement - once per two ranks per day may move exceptionally fast - counts as a Salmon Leap but cannot bypass areas with no floor to walk upon. Is now a level 5 Undead name "Drachyul"
May not take any multi-race bar approved vampire-related races. May purchase the standard Undead: Vampire multi-race at half-cost, undead level and name are replaced by the ones listed in this status. This may be taken even if not evil. Now receives only half benefit from goodly spirits.
- Rank 9 Gains +12/4life points. This replaces the ability to acquire extra levels of life in any fashion that is outside of the warrior bracket. When in direct sunlight now additionally suffers the effect of a Diminish Spirit miracle, to which the Ritter may not be immune. Is now a level 5 Undead name "Drachyul"
- Rank 10 Gains +2 Strength from + 1 Strength (maximum +3 Strength) May not cross running water which is broader than 10 feet and deeper than 1 foot unless at least five times as high above water as the water is broad. Is now a level 7 Undead name "Greater Drachyul"
- Rank 11 Gains "Fearsome Aspect" which causes physical fear in all normal and giant animals within twenty feet of the Ritter unless they cannot smell him. Rank 9 life is now increased to +18/6. Is now a level 8 Undead name "Greater Drachyul"
- Rank 12 If the Ritter dies, and 500 TBLP of fresh blood of sentient creatures who would have counted as at least heroic status (i.e. those with 8th or higher resistance levels, not peons, cattle or simple citizens) is spilt upon his body, this acts as the miracle Restore Life in all ways bar the alignment of the recipient. The blood must be from either living creatures, or recently dead (within the last hour), and all must be poured on the body within the same hour period. If a further 500 TBLP of blood is spilt during the process the Drachyul returns fully healed. Is now a level 9 Undead name "Greater Drachyul"

Ishmaic Status (Djinn)

Many Athfanal seek to become stronger over time, eventually attaining the status of Djinn or an Efreet. This growth is a choice made very early on in an Athfanal's life, in game terms once they reach 8th level. There are seven Status options which make up becoming a Djinn, an Athfanal may choose not to take one of these status or may choose to take one or even more. If a character takes all or even many of the Djinn Status then they will not have many points to spend on other abilities for their character until they are quite well developed. You have been warned.

A player who does not wear the required make up loses all benefits of ranks acquired, but retains all disadvantages for their character. An Athfanal cannot take the Djinn status option for the colour opposite to their own aligned colour unless it is the seventh status they take.

Life from the Djinn Status does not stack with other Status Life, but will stack with life from each other.

Resilience

The ability 'Resilience' is a numeric damage reduction which applies whenever damage is taken which includes the stated element, even if the damage is not magical. If damage is taken to a single location or not spread evenly over the body, then apply the resilience in full to that location. If blast damage is taken, then every 6 points of Resilience (round up) reduces the locational blast damage by 1 point. Since Resilience reflects the structure of the Athfanal, not a layer of armour, attacks which ignore armour are still reduced by the resilience - it can be considered as lacing the body of the Athfanal.

For example Illia has 4 points of Fire Resilience, and has no other defences. If she is struck with a Fire Blast, then she suffers 12-4=8 TBLP damage and 1 per location. If struck with a firebladed sword for 6pts of damage she still gets to apply her 4 points of resilience, even though the damage comes from the steel, the fire is her ally.

Two different types of resilience do not stack always assume the highest is in effect, e.g. if a weapon is enchanted as a +0 weapon (a grey spell) but has a flaming aura, then either the Twilight resilience or the Fire resilience is applied, but not both. Resilience is a numeric damage reduction and is not cumulative with other numeric damage reductions.

Pasha of Fire

Rank	General Effects
Rank 1	1pt of Resilience to fire or heat
Rank 2	Recognise Red Mana @ will (Y/N answer only)
Rank 3	Total of 2pts of Resilience to fire and heat.

Djinn*

*This cost is not actually used, since each Status is bought separately, but is for ease of reference for a player considering taking all seven status and would be curious as to how the costs total! It works out that you have no option to choose an ability which is not a status until table 9 is reached!

Amles Status

The following are available to characters from Amles (previously the Orient). They follow the normal rules on Status and each rank must be purchased upon reaching the relevant table. Existing characters that fit with a relevant status may purchase it with GSM approval.

It is equally possible for individual characters to obtain non-standard versions of these status to represent their own characters development, the below are broadly "The norm".

Fortune

The Fortune Status must be chosen when the character is started. It is available to Goodly Humans, Ogres, Fairies, Trolls, and Goblins. The Status represents the character being a spirit/soul reborn from the Celestial Empire, or sent to the world in semi-mortal form, here to guide and help the mortals that live within the land.

Characters may choose to never benefit from Social or Political guilds and buy this Status at half cost.

Rank	General Effects
Rank 1	If the character was tribal is no longer considered so and gains human intelligence. Is now considered Angelkind. Gains the Disguise skill. Additionally while in Amles can now appear human.
Rank 2	Mantic Bless 1/day
Rank 3	Tell Fortune 1/3 ranks - With 30 seconds of revealing one goodly person's fortune it then grants them live to minus 6 the first time it is needed each day.
Rank 4	Now gains Change Appearance (as scout skill)
Rank 5	Fortune's Favour 1/day - Grants one dead, goodly person Immunity to Slayer, Fortified Spirit and Fated Hero. Costs a level to use.
Rank 6	Gains a 2nd Mantic Bless each day.
Rank 7	Can cast a published self only spell or miracle on someone else goodly, usable 1/4 ranks.
Rank 8	Now gains Greater Change Appearance (as scout skill).
Rank 9	Fortune's Favour may now be used at will. Still costs a level per use.
Rank 10	Can now change their form so they are effectively shape-changing into the chosen race. This allows them to answer physical discerns as the chosen race.
Rank 11	Fortune's Favour no longer costs a level to use.
Rank 12	Gains a 3rd mantic bless.

Oni

The Oni Status must be chosen when the character is started. It is available to Evil Ogres, Fairies, Trolls, and Goblins. The character may be a reborn soul of someone that died in dishonour and was claimed by the Oryx totem and the hells. Or they could simply be a Demonic Spirit sent to the mortal world to further the war between the creatures of the Shadow Lands and the Celestial Empire. In any event if their nature is revealed they are likely to be killed.

Characters may choose to never benefit from Social or Political guilds and buy this Status at half cost.

Rank	General Effects
Rank 1	If the character was tribal is no longer considered so and gains human intelligence. Is now considered Demonkind. Gains the Disguise skill. Additionally while in Amles can now appear human.
Rank 2	Gains a mantic See through Magical Darkness 1/day
Rank 3	Gains a Mantic Curse 1/3 ranks
Rank 4	Now gains Change Appearance (as scout skill)
Rank 5	Mantic Shadowshift 1/4 ranks
Rank 6	Gains a 2nd mantic See through Magical Darkness
Rank 7	Dishonourable Death 1/4 ranks - Acts as per a mantic Slayer.
Rank 8	Now gains Greater Change Appearance (as scout skill)
Rank 9	Gains the ability to see through all supernatural darkness at all times.
Rank 10	Can now change their form so they are effectively shape-changing into the chosen race. This allows them to answer physical discerns as the chosen race.
Rank 11	Now gains Senseless Vision (as Black Wizard ability)
Rank 12	Return to the Shadowlands - Acts as a mantic Word of Recall, but may be triggered OOC (including while dead).

Honoured One

This Status is available to those of high social standing within the Empire of Amles. A player may only have one character with this Status at any time. It may either be purchased from first level, acquired through a CC contract, or if an individual becomes the Head of a Clan they may purchase it. Individuals that start with this Status are considered to be of equivalent rank to a Samurai. It is intentional that the benefits are tailored to martial characters as those without martial skills often find it more difficult to gain social standing in a system dominated by the Warrior.

It should be noted that unless the character has the Samurai Tradition then this Status is required to hold social rank. If a Clan Head does not have this status (or the Samurai Tradition) they will be viewed as weak and socially inferior.

-------------	------------------------

Rank 1	The character gains well equipped with a suit of armour as per the phys rep worn. If a character ever gains 3 Notoriety (CC effect) within Amles in the same year they are immediately considered dishonoured. They may either chose to commit Seppuku or they must immediately begin buying the Status "Dishonoured One" with points spent on this status. Should an Honoured one ever be in a situation when they would be required to commit Seppuku they may choose not to, lose the benefits of this Status and immediately have to purchase the Dishonoured One Status.
Rank 2	Gifts of the Estates - Is well equipped with one 6pt healing potion per rank of Status obtained
Rank 3	Is now well equipped with a single Apprentice Crafted weapon, as per the makes system.
Rank 4	Amlesian peasants instantly recognise the Honoured One's standing and will treat him with the respect his Status warrants.
Rank 5	Rite of Law - Can now Judge those of the Peasant Caste for crimes within the lands of Amles.
Rank 6	The armour gained at rank one is now considered Apprentice Crafted.
Rank 7	My Honour is my Word - When within Amles the Honoured One's word will be taken as truthful unless there is evidence to the contrary. If they are ever found to have lied when using this ability then they automatically gain Notoriety (CC effect) within Amles (which should be noted on the debrief sheet).
Rank 8	May now use the Rite of Law to judge members of up to the Artisan Caste
Rank 9	Armour and weapons from this Status are now considered Journeyman Crafted.
Rank 10	Armour and weapons from this Status are now considered Master Status.
Rank 11	The Honoured one may now judge anyone below the Samurai Caste.
Rank 12	Should the Honoured One commit Seppuku then they gain an additional 10% of their points when they rebirth. They must however buy as many ranks in this status as possible to gain this benefit (up to and including this rank, even if they could not normally do so due to table).

Dishonoured One

Again this may be purchased from first level if desired, via CC contract, or if an Honoured One ever refused to commit Seppuku when required. Dishonoured Ones maybe local heroes fighting corrupt and unfair lords, heroic figures seeking a just and fair society without the Caste system, or disgraced Samurai who have failed their lord, or even bandits or other villains. It is intentionally broad and people should use the abilities within to fit their character.

-------------	------------------------

Rank 1	Is now considered Ostracised while within the Lands of Amles. Gains well equipped with a suit of armour as per the phys rep worn.
Rank 2	While within the lands of Amles the Dishonoured One is always able to find a way to flee. As such if they are out of real world sight of anyone not using this ability for 15 minutes they are considered to have escaped off dungeon and are safe.
Rank 3	Gains the Disguise skill as scout.
Rank 4	May reveal themselves to peasants within Amles 1/4 ranks. This will act as either a physical befriend or a physical cause fear (chosen by the user) vs. a single group.
Rank 5	Ear to the Ground 1/day - Acts as a physical Comm 2 about events in Amles, or a single Major Prayer about events elsewhere. This is used before the adventure and the information will generally be useful.
Rank 6	The rank two ability may now be used anywhere on Primus, or any reasonable other plane (e.g. yes on a world with normal people, but probably not on a demonic hell).
Rank 7	If the Dishonoured One has fled using the rank two ability then they gain immunity to all informational effects used to find them/where they have fled to.
Rank 8	The Disguise skill is upgraded to Change Appearance (as scout skill).
Rank 9	"I will return" - If executed for their crimes within Amles they gains an additional 10% of their points on being reborn, but they must re-buy this Status.

- Rank 10 Gains immunity to informational effects if the user is not within line of sight. May buy the tables informational immunities at 3/4 cost.
- Rank 11 Rank 9 'I will return' now applies as long as the Dishonoured One dies with res chance remaining. It must be used at the end of the dungeon the person died on.
- Rank 12 Glorious Death 1/day - When engaging someone from Amles that holds Samurai or greater status in combat the Dishonoured One gains the benefits of a final stand. If they die while using this ability then their death is permanent, but they always gain the benefits of I will return (even if they had no res chance remaining).

The Warhaft may command those who acknowledge his leadership as though they were Spiritually Mastered by him though no alignment modifications are imposed, and Immunity to Domination or Spiritual Mastery does not apply as they have willingly accepted his leadership. A Warhaft may accept their own leadership to gain the above benefits. If two Warhaft meet, they must fight to see which has mastery over the other, for the duration of that adventure. The first to surrender accepts the leadership of the victor, as do all the members of his host (albeit probably unwillingly!)	300

Spiritless Post 8th Abilities

Spiritless immunities and resistances below are all available to creatures without spirits (standardly; Elves, Draves, Faeries and Farfolk). Should the character acquire a spirit in any way, such as by multi-racing, any of these abilities bought become obsolete and cannot be used- points spent on the lost abilities are not refunded and may not be re-spent. These immunities are to effects that are usually 'spiritual' and as such are only likely to affect an elf by being 'mantic' or non-standard.

Harazaen Clan member	Following the Wind Trail 1/day - Through the use of a brief ritual of casting stones, tracing lines in blood or the similar, lasting no less than 1 minute, the user can ask three questions to be answered by the referee using no more than seven words for each answer. This is a magical informational ability.	80*
Any Ishmaic	Imbue the Winds unto the Glaive – Allows the character to inflict magical (Grey) damage with any glaive they wield.	275
Samila	Perception – As Ranger ability, but only functions in natural environments, not built up areas.	80
1 st Class Ishmaic Archer	Gine Bow Mastery – Gine laced bows are of superior quality to their imperial equivalents, and Archers taught to maintain them from a young age. The bow is considered to be a + 1 physical bow, and is immune to destruction effects. If lost somehow the Character gains no achievement points for the dungeon, but gains a new bow for the next adventure.	80

Table 10 (3000 pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Ishmaic) Table 10	Cost
All Ishmaics	The Second Wind (From the Third Wind) – Is now deemed to have as many levels of resistances as required to resist any magical level based effect. Mana users may not benefit from this.	+180
Calabrim	The Rending Touch – One use of The Touch also prevents the target from using magical abilities or mana points for 5 minutes. This does not affect on-going spells already active or the animance of an elf/similar. Immunity to non-published dispelling effects grants immunity to this.	100
Rain Clan Member	Ending the Power 1/day - By touching an ongoing spell, including elementals and elves, and speaking 'I End this power' the spell is dispelled. If the spell has only a mana level then the user suffers 6 TBLP damage for each level of the spell which has been dispelled. In the case of a magical creature harmed or negated by dispels, the user of the ability suffers 30 TBLP of damage and the victim of the ability suffers 30 TBLP (10 hits) of damage. Resistance to dispels applies vs. the damage, immunity to non-published dispelling effects grants complete immunity.	40*

Available To	Description ~ (Ishmaic) Table 12	Cost
All Ishmaics	The First Wind (From the Second Wind) – May now choose whether to be affected by a non-level based and non-damaging magical effect. If the effect has a damaging and non-damaging component this can be applied to the non-damaging aspect. If the effect has additional power bases then this may only be applied IF the owner is immune to the other power bases. Mana users may not benefit from this.	+130

Baronial Post 8th Abilities

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 1	Cost
Baronial Priests	Light of Glass - The Priest's alignment becomes Neutral from Evil. In addition the previous miracle list is discarded and a new one is created which complies with a neutral alignment as per the rules for Labyrinthian humans. Any innates of miracles bought before this ability was acquired are retained even if they are no longer on the characters miracle list or if the miracle was of evil alignment. If an evil miracle innate is used, then the character cannot use any goodly aligned miracles for the rest of the day, as the spirits of light turn their face from this troubled priest, however the cost of this ability is multiplied by the highest table from which the Priest can buy abilities E.g. if the Priest can buy from table four, this ability costs 120pts'	30
Blauz	Additional racial Beguile innates.	50*
Blauz	Additional racial Terror Scream innates	80*
Baronial Character	Baron – The individual is a Baron within the Baronies with the rights it bestows. The status must be acquired via CC contract.	20
Baronial Character	Graf (From Baron) – The individual is a Graf within the Baronies with the rights it bestows. The status must be acquired via CC contract.	+30

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 2	Cost
Ggrutuck	Leathery Skin - A Ggrutuck's tough, leathery skin is almost as good as armour. Once this ability is bought the character's skin is counted as innate PAC 2 which however does not stack with any armour worn.	40

Table 4 (275pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 4	Cost
Blauz	Liar – Now has a Conceal Lie (as racial ability) active at all times.	80
Blauz	Gains the first grade of backstab, as Assassin ability.	45
Baronial Human	Strengthening the Blood Ties - Some have closer levels of kinship with their powerful ancestors than others; each purchase of this ability grants one more daily use of their ancestor's power as gained at 6th level. It may only be purchased once for every 1000pts or fraction thereof the character possesses.	50*

Table 7(650pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 7	Cost
Duidoin	Additional uses of Consume Primal Vitae	25*
Blauz	Loud Screamer – Terror scream ability is no longer level based.	60
Ggrutuck	Mighty Thews – The Ggrutuck are a strong and naturally resilient race. Once purchased a Ggrutuck's locational life is calculated as half their permanent TBLP (before Items and temporary abilities).	80

Table 8 (1000pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 8	Cost
Duidoin	Snatched Vitae - A single Consume Primal Vitae may now be used with a single non-damaging blow, rather than with 30 seconds contact.	30*
Baronial Human	Wider Blood Ties - Those with enough power may find themselves eventually able to exploit even tenuous and distant links to their ancestors, Purchase of this ability must name a single ancestor of the four which are available as a choice to Barony Humans, and gives the buyer recognised kinship with that ancestor also, granting one use of their ability. The character also becomes capable of buying more innate ability uses as per strengthening the Blood-Ties as above, although they may never have more uses of their secondary ancestor's abilities than their primary ancestor's. This ability may only be bought once, granting a secondary ancestral relationship	60

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 9	Cost
Duidoin	Richness of Vitae – Consume Primal Vitae can now cure the user from any amount of disease or poison they are suffering, or it may cure 6/2 per level of resistance of the target. This may not be used in conjunction with Snatched Vitae.	60

Table 10 (3000pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Baronial) Table 10	Cost
Duidoin	Pillage of Vitae (from Richness of Vitae) – Consume Primal Vitae may now be used to cure 6 TBLP and 6 points of locational damage (spread as desired) per resistance level of the target. This may not be used with Snatch Vitae.	+100
Blauz	Master – Acts as a Mantic (Bronze and Evil Spirit) Spiritual Mastery effecting 8 levels and below, however it only lasts 5 minutes. Requires 30 seconds talking to the target to trigger.	90*

Amlesian (previously Oriental) Post 8th Abilities

Table 1 (0pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Amlesian) Table 1	Cost
ALL	Caste Eta – The lowest of the low. Below even peasants. Members of this Caste will be avoided by most. One of this Caste can never rise above it, no matter how glorious their deeds.	0
ALL	Caste Peasant – Born to the most common Caste. Heroes often rise from this Caste to glory. Unlike the peasants of the Empire they are sometimes infused with vitae. A person choosing this can either retain their res chance, or gain benefits as per the “Peon” ability.	10
ALL	Caste Artisan/Merchant – Born to a family skilled in a craft or trade. While not amongst the wealthiest in the Empire, or the most influential, you are still above the simple Peasant.	20
Wizard Subclass or Priest Subclass	Caste Mystical – The ability to manipulate Magic or Spirits sets you above the masses. While not as respected as powerful warriors, you accorded respect by many.	30
Warrior Subclass	Caste Protector – Charged with serving in the Armies of the Clans and the Empire. You are bound by the Code of Jade and have a duty to protect the people of the Empire.	40
ALL	Caste Honoured One – A member of the Samurai or higher Caste. You are accorded great respect within the Empire. You must purchase the Honoured One Status earlier in the book or if a warrior you may purchase the Samurai Tradition instead.	0
ALL	Caste Dishonoured One – You have taken an action against the Laws and accords or the Empire. You will be hunted and maybe even killed for your status. You must purchase the Dishonoured One Status earlier in the book.	0
ALL with Utilise Shield skill	Trained from Youth – Loses Utilise Shield Skill and may never recover it. Gains Forearm parry as Monk skill	100
ALL	My Code is my Honour – Can never be dominated to break the Jade Code. If ever breaks the Jade Code then must either commit Seppuku immediately or becomes Dishonoured having to buy the appropriate status.	50

Available To	Description ~ (Amlesian) Table 3	Cost

Samurai/ anyone with Honoured One Status	Do Not Fear While I Stand With You – Acts as per a Discipline innate, but can only be used on someone from Amles of lower social standing that is within 20ft. 1/day	50*, Max 3

Table 7(650pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Amlesian) Table 7	Cost
ALL	Speak to Ancestral Spirit. As Major Precognition (e.g. it is a neuronc talent and does cost life) usable 1/day	100
ALL	Duty and Honour – If defending a fallen (unconscious, incapacitated or dead) individual of a higher social caste gains +6/2 life and a War Cry, lasts 5 minutes or until the individual recovers. May be used once per day per person.	100
ALL	Take Killing Blow – Allows the user to take the effects of a weapon blows that would kill a member of their own clan. Damage is suffered as per the person being saved. Must be used at the time of death. Cannot stop the Rite of Seppuku.	100* Max 2
ALL	Take Killing Blow (above only) may now be used for effects as well as blows.	50
ALL	Twins Protection – If a user would die from use of Take Killing Blow (above only) then instead falls unconscious for 5 minutes.	50

Other Races Post 8th Tables

Table 1 (0pts)

Available To	Description ~ (Other) Table 1	Cost
Alfar	Tribal Heritage. Character now counts as tribal and can benefit from a Shaman/Witch Doctor as per tribal rules. May now buy abilities available to tribal characters but loses access to abilities denied to tribal characters.	0
Alfar	Tell Time - in own environment only	20
Ancient Folk	All Ward Pacts act at 9 levels of potency	90
Ancient Folk	Ward Pact with Glass: Is no longer outlawed by Race, this does not remove any class restrictions, or outlawhoods separately received. This ability additionally costs a Ward Pact.	25
Dwarf	Sturdy Stock – The Dwarf now calculates their locational life as half their permanent TBLP (Before items and temporary abilities)	40
All Primal Humans	Pure Humanity 1 - Acquisition of this ability precludes the purchase or possession of a multi-race, even a multi-race which is a 'pure' or 'enhanced' version of basic humanity. The ability is bought in three stages, and must be bought before other abilities are acquired once available. Should the character have several abilities with this requirement, then they may be bought in any order desired. With each acquisition of this ability the character gains +1 level of resistance to stopping effects of a Physical, Magical, Earthpower or Neutronic nature, but not against a Spiritual source. The character also gains one use of the War Cry ability per acquisition of Pure Humanity. Also a character with Pure Humanity gains the benefits of Fated Hero (As table 1 ability)	75
All Primal Non-Humans	Scion of Primus 1 –Restrictions as per Pure Humanity, benefits: With each acquisition of this ability the character gains +1 level of resistance to stopping effects of a power base for which racial innates are gained from 1st to 8th level as well as physical resistance levels. e.g. an Elf would apply this to Magic and Physical, a Farfolk would apply it to Neutronics and Physical. In the case of a race with no racial innate abilities (e.g. an Ogre) the benefit applies solely to Physical stopping effects but grants +2 resistance levels. Additionally all gain a use of the War Cry ability per acquisition of Scion of Primus. Also a character with Scion of Primus gains the benefit of Fated Hero (as per the Table 1 ability).	75
Any Non-Noble Human	Peon- This must be the first ability bought post 8th. If other abilities have been selected which must also be the first ability bought post 8 th , then you may choose which order to purchase them in as long as all are bought before any other abilities are purchased. The character loses all restore to life chance remaining to them, no longer able to hold the vitae of Primus within themselves. May not rebirth or have been rebirthed. The character is so entwined with the fabric of Primus that should they be separated from Primus for more than fourteen days their memories twist and turn such that their new plane of existence appears to have been their home for as long as they can remember. To return to Primus does not cause a return of these lost memories, simply substituting another new set. Effectively the personality dies and is replaced with a new one, not played by the same player. If a peon achieves table 7, they may buy 20% vitae (restore to life chance) for 60 points, once for each table reached from table 7 upwards (i.e. a table 10 peon could have acquired 80% vitae). Such restorations must take place on Primus. It is not envisaged that many characters will take this option, but it is included here for completeness sake. Alternatively the character (as all conventional peons do) can choose to have 'peon' added to their race from 1 st level, only paying the 10 points if they reach 8 th level, at which time it must be the first ability they buy.	10
Imperial Character	Position of Power – The individual has acquired a position of power (through CC contract, previous dungeons, being awarded it or similar) and can produce documents to prove such. If the character loses their position then the ability becomes redundant until the gain a new one. One purchase of this ability covers as many positions of power as owned.	25

All Primal Non- Humans	Scion of Primus 3 – See Table 1 for description	+75

Multi-Race Rules

Little has changed in the rules for multi-racing. A character is only able to multi-race once, so choose wisely. They may take their race to 8th level, though 7th and 8th level of a race are currently specialised and obtained via yellow paper.

A character can commence a published multi-race on reaching 8th level. To start a non-standard multi-race they must first reach 1000 points post 8th.

While progressing through a standard multi-race it is possible for a character to multi-class freely. The same is true for non-standard races unless noted otherwise.

It should also be noted that certain published races have the ability to take another published race as a class using their 'multi-race to 8th level slot'. This is where there is a clear line of progression (e.g. an Angel becoming more spiritual in nature) and where the abilities in the second race would commonly form part of the 7th and 8th level development. It should not be, and indeed will not be, a basis for everyone to be able to take a race as a class.

Finally when beginning a published race it is possible to change the name to reflect the character's development. The new name must be in theme for the race, and agreed with the GSM although it does not require a points request (a simple email approval is enough). Possible examples include using Primal Soul as a base to be a were-creature, or changing the type of golem you are. Stats will remain unchanged so a Demonkind will still be a Demonkind.

Multi-Race Options

Aligned Elf

While the Elves were all formed differently they all, to a greater or lesser degree, contain most elements within them. Sometimes these powers flow to the surface and the elf's very nature is changed. The result is they end up becoming attuned to a second magical power. Effectively this race allows an Elf (or Drave) to multi-race to another type of Elf (or Drave). It may not be their opposite, and they must be of the appropriate alignment to be the new elven type. Post-6th, may buy apply x2 and x3 Elf innates if bought to both elf-types for the same cost (i.e. if has bought x2 elven innates, both original and new innates are doubled).

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	All abilities by level as the new chosen elf type of multi-race level. Must wear makeup of both elf types, with new colour predominant.
2	As above.
3	As above.
4	As above.
5	As above.
6	As above, but now calculates innates as if 8 th level.

Angel of Mercy

Although many Goodly Churches and religions are warlike, there are often individuals who are not willing or able to fight alongside their brethren. For these an accepted role is that of the healing priest who try their best to keep the life-force of their allies strong against all opposition. When such an individual is chosen for the honour of ascension to the ranks of the Angels, the powers granted them differ subtly from those given to their warlike comrades.

This race is available to any Goodly aligned Priest.

Characters with half a spirit pay double for this race.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now fully Immune to Flesh and Blood Effects of all sorts (inc. all potions, pain etc.). Counts fully as Angelkind. Their skin is often marked with lines of goodly power, white and gold being the most frequent.
2	May Walk on Light(s) spiritually x1/2 levels, otherwise as per wizard spell (40,∞).
3	May shed Spiritual Light in a 10' radius for five minutes, x1/3 levels (40,∞).
4	May cast a Shield of the Angels x1/3 levels - in all ways as Spirit Shield, except that it only stops evil spiritual damage, and instead stops the first 36 points of such damage (45, 4).
5	May Walk through Walls for five minutes x1/3 levels, as per miracle (80, 2).
6	Touch removes Fear from non-Evil targets with a spirit, for 3 TBLP, at will.

Angel of War

Many are the Goodly Gods who preach that the only way for peace to prevail is with the death of evil. Their followers tend to be of a martial nature and those who earn themselves the greatest favour of their deity are sometimes chosen to join the ranks of the heavenly Host of Angels that do their god's bidding. These favoured mortals naturally tend to be priests, but it is not unknown for an especially devout lay believer to be chosen for this honour. This race is available to all goodly, non-elf/draive/faerie classes. Characters with half a spirit pay double cost to purchase it. Tribal characters of a tribe with an evil Shaman may not purchase this race. Characters who are neither Priests nor Paladins must purchase the Devout Believer multi-class to level six before they can purchase beyond level one in this race.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now fully Immune to Flesh and Blood Effects of all sorts (inc. all potions, pain etc.). Counts as Angelkind. Their skin is often marked with lines of goodly power, white and gold being the most frequent.
2	May Fear all Evil of 6th level (18 hits) and below for five minutes, x1/2 levels (50, 3). This affects undead creatures.
3	May shed Spiritual Light in a 10' radius for five minutes, x1/3 levels (40, 6).
4	Hand of Purity as per tables ability x1/day (70, 2).
5	May Walk through Walls for five minutes x1/3 levels, as per miracle (80, 2).
6	May summon a purely Spiritual weapon of their choice which only they may wield x1/day. This weapon is +0/+2 vs. Evil and cannot harm the Good aligned, lasts 15 minutes (60, 2).

Angel Touched

It is not uncommon for the Gods of Light to watch over those that serve them, or for people to be born to both Human and Angel. Or even to be infused with the spirits of light. Whatever the reason, some are touched with the powers of Angels.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now suffers ½ effect from all Flesh and Blood Effects (Includes potions, poisons, and pain).
2	May select a Minor Power from the list below.
3	Gains Immunity to Ageing.
4	May select a Medium Power from the list below.
5	Divine Insight 1/day – Acts as a Mantic Major Prayer but can only be used to find out how to help others/defeat evil.
6	Gains a Major Power from the below list.

Minor –

- Gains complete Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects.
- Spiritual Light Range 1/2 levels – As per a Minor Angel.
- Halo of Light 1/2 levels - Fear Evil 3 levels and below, lasts 5 minutes. This specifically affects undead based on their dismiss level.
- Angelic Shield 1/2 Levels – Grants the user ¼ off all damage from an evil source (this includes effects cast by an evil individual). Lasts 5 minutes.

Medium –

- Walk through Walls (As Wayfinder ability) 1/3 levels
- Halo of Heaven 1/3 levels - Fear Evil 6 levels and below, lasts 5 minutes. This specifically effects undead based on their dismiss level.
- Angelic Armour 1/3 Levels – Grants 1/3rd off all damage from an evil source (this includes effects cast by an evil individual). Lasts 5 minutes.
- Summon Angelic Blade 1/3 Levels – Summons a +2 pure spirit weapon that can only harm evil. Lasts 15 minutes.

Major – May choose one from:

- Angelic Halo 1/day - Fear Evil 8 levels and below, lasts 5 minutes.
- Gains 12 goodly spirits usable on handbook goodly miracles. These are separate to other spirits and can only be regained by a good night's sleep.
- Angelic Warding 1/day – Grants the user ½ effect all damage from an evil source (including effects cast by an evil individual). Lasts 5 minutes.
- Gain a permanent Enhance Spirit.

Post-6th: May buy one additional Minor Power for 100pts, one additional Medium Power for 150pts and one additional Major Power for 200pt.

Can buy Spirit Sight innates as per a Paladin.

The Angel Touched may also buy Utilise Good Spirit Item for 100 points.

Child of the Pines

It is known that some who call themselves human are not wholly so; all know of the half-elven, who cannot often hide their heritage thanks to the physical marks they carry from their forebears. However, not so many are aware that in the veins of some human lines runs the blood of fey creatures. The fey are so many and varied that it has been suggested that they are, in fact, many different races themselves - one of the most well-known types of fey is that known as dryads, or People of the Trees, or other names given them by superstitious wood-cutters and village-folk. They are very beautiful to look upon, and when one should have a child by some human lost in the woods, if that child should show too many human features it is left to be found by villagers. Still, it is not unknown for the offspring of such unions to begin to show signs of their parentage in early adulthood...

This race is available to Human, Half-Elf, Half-Drave, Alfar or Halfling who has an aspect of Neutral in their alignment (NG,NE,NN,LN,CN only).

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must wear appropriate brown/green tree-like makeup. Immune to all Flesh and Blood Effects, including potions and poisons, except that they still bleed sap and are affected by Earthpower Flesh and Blood Effects where appropriate. May never use or benefit from red mana.
2	Now has a permanent Barkskin granting +1 PAC (stacking with other Barkskins). May spend 5 minutes in unmoving contact with 'fertile soil' (entirely at ref's discretion, a place where plants could grow) to be healed 1 tblp and 1 to worst loc. It is permissible to talk, cast and even fight during this period as long as contact with the earth is not broken, even for a split second.
3	Now takes x2 damage from fire after all other calculations. If Immunity to Fire is possessed still takes ½ damage from normal fires. May never acquire complete immunity. May Meld with Trees x1/2 levels, as per Meld with Stone. However, takes 1pt per grade of damage inflicted on the tree, and should tree be destroyed completely is left on 6/1 life. May end prematurely if desired (50,∞).
4	Permanent Barkskin now grants +2 PAC from +1. Now takes x2 damage from axe-blows after all other calculations. Healing Sap - if deliberately cuts self to draw forth 3 tblp of sap (and 1 pt to the cut location), a flesh-and-blood drinker is cured 6 tblp and 2 to each loc. If applied as a balm to a Wood Elf or a Child of the Pines (including self) will be cured 6 tblp and 3 to that location. This can be done x1/level (10, ∞)
5	Forest-Shift x1/3 levels, as druidic evocation but no verbal required (75, 4). May be used with no tree present but takes 30 seconds to 'plant themselves' on appropriately earthen ground.
6	Now takes 1/3 rd less damage from blunt weapon-blows, due to woody consistency.

Demon Bound

With the mystical nature of Primus many are touched with Demonic Power. Some are born that way, or as a result of Demonic pacts. Whatever the case the powers they exhibit are all infernal and evil. To take this race a character must have a spirit and be evil.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now suffers ½ effect from all Flesh and Blood Effects (Includes potions, poisons, and pain).
2	May select a Minor Power from the list below.
3	Gains Immunity to Ageing
4	May select a Medium Power from the list below.
5	Feed the Soul 1/day – Takes 30 seconds over a recently (this day) dead body with a spirit. Acts as per the ability Slayer on the body, but also cures the user 12/12 via evil spiritual means.
6	Gains a Major Power from the below list.

Minor –

- Gains complete Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects.
- Infernal Armour 1/2 Levels – Grants ¼ off weapon blows for 5 Minutes.
- Honeyed Words 1/2 levels – Allows the users to Mantically (Evil Spirits/Black Mana) Beguile others by gaze at will for 5 minutes. This beguile effects those with 4 level resistances or less.
- Demonic Deception 1/2 Levels – Allows the user to answer one informational effect used about them as they wish. The answer must be plausible and the user must be aware the effect has been used about them.

Medium –

- Body of War 1/3 levels – Grants the Demon 6 points off weapon blows that have a physical component. Lasts 5 minutes.
- Infernal Shield 1/3 levels – Grants the user 1/3rd off weapon blows for 5 minutes.
- Mantic Beguile effecting 8 levels and below 1/2 levels.
- Hidden Form – Allow the Demon to alter their form to pass through the world. This acts as per the Altunhurst shape shifting ability but allows them to transform themselves into any standard race.

Major –

- Feeding the Soul now becomes usable 1/30 minutes.
- Infernal Body 1/day – Grants the user 1/2 effect weapon blows for 5 minutes.
- Cloak of the Unholy 1/3 levels – Grants the user Demonic Deception (as per the basic talent) at will for 5 minutes.
- Dark Compact – May write an agreement between the writer and one individual. The agreement must be understood by both parties. If signed, it acts as per a Demonic (Black/Red/Evil spirit in colour) Oath (as per the Ivory spell) with 6 additional mana in it. This may be used at will, but each use costs the writer a level (as per a level drain, but immunity to level drain does not apply).

Post-6th: May buy one additional Minor Power for 100pts, one additional Medium Power for 150pts and one additional Major Power for 200pt.

Demonic Infusion – Allows the user to either inflict Demonic (Black/Red/Evil spirit) damage with one weapon for 5 minutes, or allows them to cast a single evil handbook miracle mantically (Black/Red/Evil spirit). These cost 60 points each, and 3 may be purchased.

The Demon Bound may also buy Utilise Evil Spirit Item for 100 points.

Elder Fey

It is hard to think of the Elder Fey as a composite race, and indeed they may not be one. The members of the Fey vary as much from individual to individual as do members of quite different races of the modern world, and it may be that what we call the Elder Fey are in fact a number of different remnants of ancient races who have grown together over the millennia. Extremely rare, not least because they cannot always be identified, the only things that unite this group as a race are the great age of their ancestry, their possession of half a spirit (by today's standards), and the wild and unpredictable powers they evince.

This race is available to any character, following the strictures outlined below.

Elves/Fairies may choose to purchase this race and not gain any benefits from level two. In this case it is purchased at the same cost as a Half-Elf.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must wear (non-standard) impressive makeup and costume at all times as appropriate to the powers gained. +1 DAC.
2	Character now has half a spirit as per Half-Elf in all ways, Eves are no longer harmed by Dispel and leave a body on death (but retain their 'non flesh-and-blood' nature).
3	Gains one Minor Talent as below - to be written on card at time of purchase.
4	Now Immune to Ageing effects.
5	+2 DAC (total).
6	Gains one Major Talent as below - to be written on card at time of purchase.

Each Elder Fey has one Minor and one Major Talent, which must be selected from the options below. The Minor and Major Talents may not be selected from the same category. Mana-users and characters who were originally Elves may not select Spiritual Talents unless they have Pathed then they may choose talents of the appropriate alignment. Priests may not select Magical Talents unless they have Pathed, and then only of the colour of their Path. Characters prohibited from acquiring Neuronics may not select Neuronic Talents.

Post-6th, the Elder Fey may acquire a second Minor Talent, which may not be in the same category as his original Minor Talent, for 50 points. Once this is bought, they may acquire a second Major Talent, which may not be in the same category as the original Major Talent, for 100 points.

One Elder Fey might have Acute Hearing and Probe three times a day, and elect to make themselves up with large pointy ears and a pale skin, while another may have six innate Control Animals and PAC 5, painting their skin in heavy brown, green and black colours - both are acceptable.

Minor Talents:

Magical

- Any 1st level standard spell innate x1/level (10, ∞).
- Any 2nd level standard spell innate x1/2 levels (20, ∞).
- Any 3rd level standard spell innate x1/3 levels (30, ∞).
- Any standard 0 mana cantrip at will for 1 TBLP per use.
- Enhanced Recognise Mana at will, 1" range - as Recognise Mana but also tells colour of any mana present.
- Affirm x1/level, grants +1 MAC and +1 DAC, verbal "I affirm the power of my blood". Otherwise as Elf Affirm in all ways (15,∞).

Spiritual

- Any 1st level handbook miracle of own alignment innate x1/level (15,∞).
- Any 2nd level handbook miracle of own alignment innate x1/2 levels (25,∞).

- Any 2nd level basic evocation innate x1/2 levels (20,∞).
- Any 3rd level basic evocation innate x1/3 levels (30,∞).
- Recognise Earthpower to 20' range.
- Double effect Druidic Heal evocation only (now cures 24/24) with 30 seconds concentration. In the case of elves taking this talent, they now take normal (12/12) effect from Druidic Heal, and ½ effect from other druidic healing which would otherwise not affect them.
- Neutrality to Plants of all forms.

Neuronic

- Auric Colour x2/level (to at will for 20 points).
- Neuronic Penetration x1/level (15, 8).
- Neuronic Blast x1/2 levels (35, 6).
- Detect Inanimate x1/2 levels (35, 6).
- Forget x1/3 levels (50, 4).
- Recognise Neuronics as tables ability.

Physical

- Acute Hearing.
- Locational Sniff.
- Salmon Leap x1/level (15,∞).
- +2 innate PAC.
- +3 DAC for five minutes x1/2 levels (30, 8).
- Perception as per Ranger.
- Mindblock at all times.

Major Talents:

Magical

- Any 4th level standard spell innate x1/2 levels (40,∞).
- Any 5th level standard spell innate x1/2 levels (50,∞).
- Any 6th level standard spell innate x1/3 levels (60, 6).
- Any 10th level standard spell innate x1/day (100, 6).
- 1/3 effect neutral purely spiritual damage (not cumulative with having half a spirit).

Spiritual

- Any 4th level handbook miracle of own alignment innate x1/3 levels (60,∞).
- Any 5th level handbook miracle of own alignment innate x1/3 levels (75, 6).
- Any 6th level handbook miracle of own alignment innate x1/day (90, 6).
- Fear creatures of opposite alignment (select Good/Evil if Neutral) of 6th level resistance and below at will.
- 25% off purely 'mantic damage only, at all times.

Earthpower

- Any 4th level basic evocation innate x1/2 levels (40,∞).
- Any 5th level basic evocation innate x1/2 levels (50,∞).
- Any 6th level basic evocation innate x1/3 levels (60, 6).
- Neutrality to Plants and Animals (including Giant varieties).
- 6pt damage reduction vs. non-supernatural wooden weapons at all times.

Neuronic

- Neuronic Bolt x1/3 levels (75, 2).
- Displacement x1/3 levels (75, 2).
- Psychic Crush x4/day (30, 6 for single uses).
- Neuro Sight x1/2 levels (40, 3).
- Psionic Probe x1/2 levels (50, 4).

Physical

- 50% Rage x1/day (100, 2), 25% rage x1/day (50, 2).
- Assisted Climb at will.
- 3pt damage reduction vs. purely magical or spiritual weapons at all times.
- Enhanced Mind Block.
- +5 innate PAC.

Elements Bound

Some Wizards use the arts of embodying an elemental, but some bind elemental power closer to their form. Often used in Ishma, the practice has begun to spread to the Empire and beyond.

This class is available to anyone in the wizard bracket.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Gains Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects as Elf (Elves gain full Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects). May select an Elemental Colour (not grey) that may not be the opposite of any owned. Now has faint mystical lines of power of their chosen colour.
2	Gains a Minor Talent below. Gains Elemental Resistance (as Power Master) vs. own colour.
3	Elemental Sight (as per Wizards Grimoire advanced spell) 1/3 levels.
4	Now gains a Medium Talent
5	Destroy Elemental by touch 1/3 levels. Effects up to Elemental Champions.
6	Gains a Major Talent from below.

Minor –

- Gains Full Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects (Including potions, poisons, and pain).
- Gains a standard innate (chosen when selected) of own colour up to 5th level 1/2 Levels (50, ∞)
- If casting Embody Elemental for own colour then no longer needs to summon an elemental to embody it.
- May cast own colour cantrip at will for 1 TBLP.
- Empower Weapon (as advanced spell) of own colour 1/2 levels (40, ∞).

Medium –

- Gains a standard innate (chosen when selected) of own colour 1/3 levels. (100, ∞)
- Elemental Shift of own colour 1/2 levels. (60, 6)
- Gains Elemental Resistance (as Power Master) to opposite Element.
- Neutrality to Elementals of own colour.

Major –

- Embody Elemental (As spell, for own colour only) 1/3 levels (100, ∞).
- 1st time it is needed each day gains Magical live to minus 6 TBLP stacking with other live to minus.
- Gains complete Immunity to baneful effects of own element.
- Invoke the Magic Within 1/day gains the ability to cast a published spell of chosen colour. The spell still costs mana as normal.

Post 6th: May now learn Embody Elemental, Bind Elemental and Arm Elemental as spells of own racial colour, even if not a wizard of that colour.

May buy an extra Minor, Medium and Major Talent for 50, 100 and 150 points respectively.

Warding against the Elements 60 points – May cast Bind Elemental (of racial colour) on self, gaining full benefits from it as if an elemental. This may be used while embodied despite normal restrictions.

Fire Daimon

Many are the dark powers that bide their time in the nether planes, waiting for some foolish mortal to call upon them. It is easy for the foolhardy, desperate or simply power-hungry to make pacts with these forces - but the price is high... Although the friends and colleagues of the unfortunate mortal may suspect something is wrong, it is usually not until the body bursts irrevocably into flames that never consume it that the truth is finally realised. Nevertheless, it remains the mind and thoughts of the supplicant which direct this fearsome combination of mortal man and denizen of the underworld. This race is available to any Evil non-Elven character. Half-Elves and Half-Draves need pay only normal cost to purchase this race.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must now wear red/black, 'flaming' makeup at all times. May Ignite by touch at will as per the Red cantrip. Now gains ½ Effect Supernatural Fire, and Immunity to Natural Fire. Counts fully as Daemonkind in all ways.
2	Mantic Shock x1/2 levels, inflicts both magical and evil spirit damage (30,∞). Now gains complete Immunity to Fire of all forms. Must have bought the tables ability "Immunity to Natural Fire" before buying this level but this is upgraded to Complete Immunity to Fire.
3	Mantic Fire Blast x1/3 levels, inflicts both magical and evil spirit damage (40, 6).
4	May invoke the fires of evil to surround their body such that all non-supernatural weapons striking them are burnt or melted entirely as per an aura of melt. Unarmed damage is reduced by one grade unless the user is immune to normal fire. This lasts five minutes, and is usable once per day (80, 2).
6	Mantic Disruption x1/day, inflicts both magical and evil spirit damage (95, 3).

Post-6th: May buy Immolation x1/day, for 100 points. All creatures within 20' receive 24/4 mantic flaming damage, and the Daimon is healed 36pts of damage to TBLP and loc. (cf. Heal).

Frost Giant (Northmen)

Far to the north of the Empire, beyond the desolate plains of ice, lies the old homestead of the Northmen and Frost Giants. Tall men and women, often six foot or more in height, their physical prowess sent tales into the south making them out to be even taller than they are in reality. Their cities and civilisations crumbled at the end of the Second Age of Primus however knowledge of their nature has led a number of 'large' individuals in the south to trace this heritage in their blood line. This multi-race can be purchased by any race which is at least in part human, typically Humans and Half Elves. Whilst most native Frost Giants are of a darker moral path, those raised away from their Queen in the north can in fact be of any alignment path.

A mana user who selects this option loses half their mana after all calculations have taken place, due to the naturally magic resistant nature of the Frost Giant Folk.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	The Northmen as descendants of the Frost Giants are all large individuals often appearing over 6' or 20st in size. They must incorporate white or 'frost' motifs into their makeup. Base life now calculated as if one level higher for all purposes, i.e. increased by one level of life.
2	Can see through all forms of supernatural darkness at all times. Resistance level to level-based magical spells is doubled.
3	May only wear armour forged by a character with the appropriate skill, and this costs twice the normal amount. A Frost Giant's locational hits are calculated as ½ the amount of their permanent TBLP allowance. However should a location suffer damage as to cause it to be severed, then the Frost Giant dies.
4	Suffers only half damage from purely magical damaging blows or effects.
5	Gains Immunity to Cold as per the post eighth tables ability, if the tables ability is owned then now gains complete Immunity to Cold. Also gains +1 stacking strength, to max +3.
6	From level 1 & 4 abilities, now takes only half-effect magic in all ways, as per a Dwarf.

Full Elf

Many Half-Elves (and Half-Draves), dissatisfied with their mixed heritage, spend their lives struggling to take after their elven parents.

Those that succeed in fully emulating their elven forebears usually benefit greatly, as they maintain the more naturally hardy nature of their Human blood. This race is available to any Half-Elf.

Obviously, a Half-Elf may multi-race only to the type of Elf that matches their elven half.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now suffers full make-up requirements appropriate to the type of elf.
2	Gains innates and immunities specific to the type of elf, of level equal to multi-race level.
3	As above.
4	As above.
5	As above.
6	Loses spirit and all spiritual abilities - is now treated as an Elf for purposes of all abilities and restrictions - however retains human base TBLP and loc. as before. Is now injured by Dispel, etc.

Post-6th: Buys as elf.

If Full Elf innates were bought previously, they are not cumulative with the innates and abilities granted by this multi-race until 6th level is reached, at which point they replace the tables Elf ability Double Elven Innates entirely (which ability may not then be bought).

Golem

There are many ways of using supernatural power and artifice to enhance and even replace the body of a willing creature. The changes to the form tend to strengthen it in similar ways, although the power used can vary. In all cases the character is assumed to have undergone a voluntary process, probably with outside assistance, to transform themselves.

Characters who choose this race become similar to the more common golems encountered while adventuring but retain their own intelligence, and therefore are not quite identical.

This race is available to any character with magical power, either from their class or from their race. Unlike normal multi-classes and races, magical power acquired from multi-classing is sufficient to meet the prerequisites – so a warrior multi-classed to warlock would be eligible for this class.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must select one of the below ‘construct types’. Immunity to all Flesh and Blood Effects, including potions, poisons, and pain. Must wear makeup of the appropriate style/colour. Life-points by level are calculated as on the below chart, dependent on original class’s life scale. May not have more than DAC 6, ever. May not use Sniff or Locational Sniff skills.
2	+1 PAC innate due to dense form. May not travel at greater than $\frac{3}{4}$ speed, should be role-played in a lumbering heavy way. Combat and weapon blows are not affected, but clearly this would prevent use of forearm parry. Minor Power as below – though to gain it must possess the listed prerequisite.
3	Medium Power as below.
4	+2 PAC total.
5	Now completely Immune to Aging. Major Power as below.
6	+3 PAC total. Now requires 5 grades of strength to move physically if dead, unconscious or helpless. May not use physical Jump abilities.

Life-Scales

ORIGINAL LIFE (@8 TH LEVEL)	NEW LIFESCALE BY LEVEL OF GOLEM
32 tblp or less at 8 th	As Battle-Priest (41/14 @ 6 th)
39 tblp or less at 8 th	As Thug (48/17 @ 6 th)
47 tblp or less at 8 th	As Spirit Warrior (53/18 @ 6 th)
56 tblp or less at 8 th	As Warrior (60/20 @ 6 th)
Higher than 56 tblp at 8 th	As Ogre (68/23 @ 6 th)

Construct type options

Iron – prerequisite ‘MAC 1’:

- Minor: May bond a metal weapon to them so that it becomes ‘part of them’ for the purposes of spells and effects. This means that the weapon cannot be removed from their grip by any means whatsoever, and is immune to effects which would destroy it, even Grand Shattering Blow or similar. To use this ability requires the weapon to be held and concentrated on for 30 seconds. To remove the weapon from the character’s grip similarly requires 30 seconds of concentration.
- Medium: +1 stacking Strength, max +3.
- Major: 66% Berserk Rage x1/3 levels only usable when in the presence of magic cast by someone other than themselves. In this state the caster of the magic is the first choice of target, and any others who act in a hostile or threatening fashion must be attacked.

Stone – prerequisite ‘Stability’ – may not be a blue mana user:

- Minor: Statue x1/day. May instantly enter a ‘statue’ form in which is invulnerable to all effects and damage, but may not take any action whatsoever in this form bar observe surroundings. May be ended prematurely, otherwise lasts 15 minutes.
- Medium: Now takes 1/4 less effect from sharp weapons of all sorts (not purely supernatural weapons).
- Major: May inflict Knockback by weapon blow at will, costing 6 tblp for each such blow struck if +2 or greater strength is possessed, 9 tblp per blow struck otherwise however.

Ice – prerequisite ‘Immunity to Cold’ – may not be a red mana user:

- Minor: Refract Light x1/2 levels – one light-based attack (such as a Laser Bolt, or a single blow from a Sabre of Light and Truth) has no effect.
- Medium: Complete Immunity to Cold, as Winter Elf.
- Major: May inflict damage as per Snowball, 12/12 magical cold damage, by touch at will for 6 TBLP per touch. This damage is not cumulative with unarmed combat damage however.

Bronze – prerequisite ‘Stockiness’:

- Minor: +0/3 locational life per 2 levels (i.e. +0/9 total at 6th)
- Medium: Now takes 1/4 less effect from all solely physical damage.
- Major: Immunity to Bruising and may round fractions down rather than up when calculating damage suffered.

Greater Ogre

Many Half-Ogres take more after one parent than the other - and Ogre nature being what it is it is commonly the ogre side that dominates. Greater Ogres are, if possible, even bigger, greedier and stupider than their half-breed children. This race is available to any Half-Ogre.

CLASS	ABILITIES
1	Ogres will always perceive any who give them existing food as friends, unless they or their tribe-members are attacked by them. +6/2 life. This life is stacking with all other published life-points abilities unless they specify otherwise, but not with non-standard abilities which do not specifically mention this life.
2	+1 PAC (total).
3	Immunity to all Domination effects. +12/4 life (total).
4	+2 PAC (total).
5	+18/6 life (total).
6	+3 PAC (total). +1 Strength, stacking to +3 maximum.

High Elf

Although it is generally accepted that elves are created by the mana dragons, there is some confusion as to their origin. Further confusing the issue are the High Elves - rarely seen, these creatures are often confused with half-breeds, but instead seem to be elves who have somehow achieved a different, more spiritual state, usually by some form of religious devotion (though not always). The Lady of the Stars in particular is known for granting elves who dedicate themselves to her High Elf status. This race may be purchased by any Half or Full Elf or Drave, including Drowe and Faeries.

Note: Faeries pay the same cost as Drowe, Ivory Draves as Winter Elves.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now has a half-spirit, as Half-Elf. Is no longer injured by Dispel. Still Immune to Flesh and Blood effects to which an Elf is immune. Half Elves taking this option are now Immune to Flesh and Blood effects to the extent of an elf.
2	+1 DAC.
3	Gains Rebirth at 8 th level (must have already bought Rebirth).
4	+2 DAC (total).
5	May now Rebirth at 8th keeping 1/3 of original points - must purchase High Elf first on rebirthing.
6	Those that were full Elves now have human life of same base class. Those that were Half Elves may now buy as full elf of their type. All elven handbook innates become mantic, so that affirms grant SAC additionally, etc.

It should be noted that High Elven Drowe returners stay solely magical. However for 40 points post-6th level they may be enhanced to be mantic, inflicting both spiritual and magical damage by purchasing Enhanced Returner.

Hob-Goblin

The biggest, most powerful Goblins naturally lord it over the smaller members of their race - Goblins have never been known for their compassion, and bullying comes naturally to them.

The biggest and most belligerent of Goblins are suspected by those who study such matters to be an entirely different breed, cousin not brother to the normal Goblin that most people know. These larger, nastier Goblins are called Hob-Goblins. This race is available only to Goblins.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Base life gained from this race is equal to that of a Half-Orc of equal level to multi-race level. (e.g. 6th level Half-Orc life at 6 th). If the life from the Goblin's base class now exceeds 48 as a result of this then it does increase their base life for life capping calculations.
2	May now wear any armour permitted for a Human of same class (No change for Shaman/Witch Doctor).
3	+1 PAC, gains 'B' skill and loses Goblin weapon restrictions, and E-skill if acquired may be used with any weapon the Hob-Goblin may use.
4	Loses Goblin racial Backstab skill - now inflicts +6 pts of base damage on blows where Backstab would normally be usable (may still acquire Backstab in other ways).
5	+2 PAC (total). Now has Insensitive Skin as tables ability.
6	Taunt x1/day - after spending 30 seconds verbally taunting and not fighting a target who understands their language, while continuing to do so the Hob-Goblin takes only 1pt of damage per grade inflicted by blows from the target, regardless of all other reductions including AC (cf. Rockskin), for a maximum of 5 minutes, or until taunting is stopped, whichever is shorter (50, 3).

Post-6th: May buy Immunity to Poison and Immunity to Disease at half cost. May buy ½ Orc racial abilities as a ½ Orc can (except Human Heritage), and may buy Strength ignoring Goblin restrictions.

Immortal

Some individuals are just powerful and filled with mystical energies. The Mortal World is beneath them and they are touched by the mystical.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Suffers 1/6 th less damage from physical attacks per level of this race (e.g. at 6 th level is Immune to Physical Damage). Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects (Including Potions, Poisons, and Pain).
2	Immortal Defence 1/2 Levels - Gains ¼ off all damage with a physical component. (75, 3)
3	Immunity to Ageing. Now only receives half effect from beneficial physical effects.
4	Empowered Defence 1/3 levels – Upgrades an Immortal Defence so that it grants 1/3 off damage. (25, 2)
5	Form of the Immortal 1/day – Grants complete Immunity to Physical Effects. Lasts 5 minutes.
6	Immortal Armour 1/day – Upgrades an Empowered Defence so that it grants a “Rockskin” style reduction vs. all damage with a physical component. (25,1)

Post-6th: True Immortal – Gains complete Immunity to Physical at all times. 100 points.

Mind Over Reality

Those capable of controlling the powers of the mind to manipulate themselves sometimes advance so they can truly adjust how reality functions for them, twisting and changing their bodies to become impervious to the world. To buy this class must have Neuro-Mastery at will.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Gains 1/6 th off all bar Physical and Neuronics per level. May never leave/buy as outside the neuronics bracket. May never Mind-Bar/become Immune to Neuronics. Must have at least 2 permanent (not items or focussing crystals) Neural Foci per level of this race purchased.
2	Reality Controlled 1/2 levels – Gains complete Immunity to Magic or Spirit for 5 minutes.
3	Can only be killed/have a location severed by Physical or Neuronics means. Now requires at least 3 permanent Neural Foci per level of this race. Gains immunity to beneficial effects that are not Neuronics or Physical in nature.
4	Disperse Mind 1/3 levels – Allows the target to enter a diffuse state. This acts as per a gaseous form except the user is only harmed by neuronics rather than miracles.
5	Forced Reality 1/day – 1 st time it is used each day gains a stacking live to minus 6 that is neuronics only.
6	Alter Reality 1/day – Counts as being in a Purity of Mind vs. one effect that just targeted them. Costs a level to use and must be declared within 2 seconds of suffering the effect. Must now have 4 permanent Neural Foci per level of this race (i.e. 24 to buy this level).

Post 6th may buy resistances as a spiritless creature.

Ogre Magi

Although Ogres are regarded as incredibly stupid and this is generally true, a rare few specimens naturally inherit genes of a magical nature, from a time in the distant past. Thought to be the product of some magical accident or ritual, Ogre-Magi are born with an innate natural, feral cunning far greater than that of their brothers, and an aptitude for magic that cannot be explained.

It is assumed that whoever was responsible for the creation of the race was a blue wizard, as their talents lie mainly in the blue mana area. It is actually true, however, that there are other versions of the Ogre Magi in the world aligned to the other elements. Those tied to blue mana are more commonly encountered though since they can use their talents to travel far and wide.

This race is available to any Half-Ogre who has not entered the priest bracket (e.g. any shaman). There is no alignment requirement.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Has greater cunning than previously possessed, in general intelligence is now roughly equal to that of a Half-Orc warrior. Gains Recognise Mana at will. May adapt verbals for spells in the same manner as a shaman or witch-doctor, as appropriate. Must now incorporate blue woad like markings into their makeup.
2	Puff of Air at will for 1 TBLP per use, Detect Magic x2/level innate (5,∞).
3	Shatter(r) x1/level innate (20,∞).
4	Storm Blast x1/level innate (30, 12).
5	Walk on Air(s) x1/2 levels innate (30, 12)
6	Lightning Bolt x1/3 levels innate (55, 6). Now completely Immune to all Electrical Attacks.

Post-6th: Ogre-Magi can additionally buy innates of other standard blue spells of 6th level or below at a cost of 10 points per mana point (e.g. 20 points for an innate Mend(r)), to a maximum of 3 of any one spell. May acquire a second colour from red, green, grey, black or white (alignment not relevant) for 50 points, may then buy innates of standard spells of that colour in the same way as blue above.

Primal Soul

A surprisingly common phenomenon throughout Labyrinthia and Primus is the creature which shares aspects of its own race and those of another, typically animal in nature. Sometimes whole settlements or tribes of these beings develop, but just as often they are individuals who grew up normally in their own society before realising there was something unusual about them. Sometimes mistaken for were-creatures, in fact these people are simply touched by the soul or essence of a natural race. This race is available to any race native to Primus (not Blauz, Ggrutuck, Duidoin, Elysians, Silverfolk – at this time none of these are fully accepted as part of Primus).

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must select a creature which matches one of the below race types to represent the character's primal soul. For any choice other than Primal Bound, makeup/costume reminiscent of an appropriate creature of this type must now be worn. Primal creatures should be excellent examples of their race. +1 Dexterity AC.
2	Minor Power as listed below for type.
3	+2 Dexterity AC total.
4	Medium Power as listed below for type.
5	Discern Own Kind – at will by sight may recognise creatures of the race (not race type) chosen. So a Primal Soul Wolf could identify all wolves, and so on. This is a physical discern, and gives a Yes/No answer, and additional information about the target's race at ref's discretion – e.g. dire wolf, winter wolf, only part wolf, etc.
6	Major Power as listed below for type.

Race choice (where there is more than one ability listed in a category, the character must select one of the abilities, recorded on card at time of purchase of the correct level):

Primal Bound: [Initial Race]

In this case the character is in some way a ‘superior’ creature of their race, quicker of thought and act than a normal person.

Minor –

- +1 Dexterity AC cumulative with the racial DAC above
- Lucky Idea x1/day

Medium –

- Lucky Idea x1/3 levels
- Lightning Reactions
- Physical Light-Step (as glyph but no verbal) x1/3 levels
- Regeneration: Character heals at 1tblp and 1pt to the worst location per 5minutes whilst on Primus

Major –

- Max damage Quin with B class weapon wielded in two hands, if previously had max damage Quad.
- Domination effects of all sorts last at most 30 seconds on character, or half previous duration if less.
- Gains Immunity to Poison and Disease

Predator

This option covers most predatory animals in style, such as wolf, bear, or even shark. Innates chosen should be appropriate to the specific creature chosen – for example a hawk soul might well fly, while a wolf soul would not.

Minor –

- Acute Hearing
- Sniff and Locational Sniff
- Tracking as Ranger
- Flight – x1/3 levels for 5 minutes, may fly as per Walk on Air if on Primus, borne aloft by their primal nature rather than actual wings. (40, 3)
- Gains Unarmed Combat with claws
- Jump x1/2 levels (20, 3)

Medium –

- Perception and Supernatural Perception
- Snarl x1/3 levels – acts as a physical Cause Fear to one target, and additionally causes fear in all normal animals within ear-shot. (50, 3)
- +1 max damage first blow of combat, no preparation required, stacking with other first-blow abilities such as tables 30 second concentration ability
- Regeneration: Character heals at 1tblp and 1pt to the worst location per 5minutes whilst on Primus

Major –

- Lightning Strike x1/3 levels – may call Time Freeze to strike one blow on a target within reach, to which they are immune if they have Lightning Reactions. (80, 1)
- Sense Motion as pathfinder, must have all prerequisite abilities to use.
- Now inflicts ‘through PAC’ damage with unarmed combat at all times

Prey

This option covers most animals hunted as prey in style, such as deer, rats and bats. Innates chosen should be appropriate to creature selected, as above.

Minor –

- Acute Hearing
- Sniff and Locational Sniff
- +1 Dexterity AC in addition to the race DAC above
- Flight – x1/3 levels for 5 minutes may fly as per Walk on Air if on Primus, borne aloft by their primal nature rather than actual wings. (40, 3)
- Jump x1/2 levels (20, 3)

Medium –

- 6th Sense.
- +2 Dexterity AC in addition to the race DAC above, but non-cumulative with Minor Power.
- Perception and Supernatural Perception
- Physical Chameleon(s) x1/2 levels (40, 3)
- Lightning Reactions
- Regeneration: Character heals at 1tblp and 1pt to the worst location per 5minutes whilst on Primus

Major –

- No max AC and x2 Dexterity AC when doing nothing but flee (non-cumulative with Goblin racial ability)
- +4 Dexterity AC in addition to the race DAC above, but non-cumulative with Minor or Medium Power.
- Physical Light-Step (as glyph but no verbal required) x1/level, which may not be used to approach an enemy.

Post-6th: May buy one additional Minor Power for 50pts, one additional Medium Power for 100pts and one additional Major Power for 150pt. That must be chosen from the same grouping as previous choices.

Rock Troll

Those Half-Trolls who are descended from the hardier Rock Troll branch of the troll families are prone to their trollish nature being dominant over their human side. Rock Trolls are well-known for their slow, simple nature - almost as well known as for their incredible durability.

This race is available to any Troll.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now immune to Flesh and Blood Effects, including ingestion (no longer affected by any form of potion). Must now incorporate stone and rocky complexion in to makeup worn.
2	+1 PAC (total). Gains an additional 3 points of live to minus, cumulative with all other live to minuses, per level of this multi-race (so at 6th level the troll gains an additional live to -18). Regeneration now heals a base of 1 TBLP and 1 to every injured loc, per 5 minutes.
3	+2 PAC (total).
4	+3 PAC (total). Regeneration now heals a base of 2 TBLP and 2 to each injured loc, per 5 minutes. [note this is a +1x rate increase thus if triple rate was owned the total would be x4 rate not x6 rate].
5	+4 PAC (total). All stone weapons striking the troll inflict damage as if the troll were benefiting from a Rockskin spell, at all times (i.e. 1pt per damage grade ignoring AC and all other reductions). Innate PAC may always be applied to all weapon-blows with a physical component.
6	+5 PAC (total). Regeneration is now enhanced as follows: for warriors, permanent damage can be healed by natural regen only, except for that from fire or spirit; for shaman, spirit damage can be healed as normal by regen; for Witch Doctors, fire damage can be healed as normal by regen.

Servants of the Spirits (Previously Balance)

The Gods of Neutrality have as much need for loyal minions as any other, and the majority of these are, naturally enough, their priests.

Those high in their God's favour are sometimes transformed to better enable them to act out their deity's will.

This class is available to any neutrally-aligned Priest who has bought the ability Passive Spirit Sight from the tables.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Is now Immune to all Flesh and Blood effects (inc. potions, pain, etc.). Counts in all ways as a Supernatural Neutral Creature From Another Plane. Requires silvery /grey swirls and/or runic markings over exposed skin.
2	Touch reads surface thoughts, as spiritual Psi-Scan, at will for 1 TBLP. Detect Spirits Nature at will, using full verbals as normal.
3	Detect Lie at will, for 3 TBLP (full handbook verbals).
4	Insight of the Spirits 1/day – With 30 seconds concentration can gain the ability to cast any one published neutral miracle for the remainder of the dungeon. The miracle must be one that could normally be learnt (sphere wise etc.) (75, 2).
5	Commune with the Gods x1/day (140, 2)

Shadow Daimon

While the Lords of the Hells are well known for their use of the destructive power of fire, many prefer to use more subtle powers to bring woe to their enemies. The users of shadow and stealth are less flamboyant than Fire Daimons, but their might is as great nonetheless - and the pacts they swear to gain their power are just as damaging to their souls. This race is available to any evil non-elven, non-tribal character. Half-Elves and Half-Draves may purchase this race at normal cost.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Must wear dark/black makeup at all times covering at least ½ of exposed skin. May Extinguish lights within 10' at will, with full verbal as per the cantrip. Now has a permanent mantic Ally Darkness (see Wizard's Grimoire) except it does not grant the ability to see through darkness. Counts as Daemonkind in all ways.
2	May Shadowmeld x1/level when not within 5' of a light-source or in direct daylight or supernatural light, as per Chameleon(s). Once used is broken by the presence of supernatural light, but not natural light-sources (25,∞). Must purchase the ability "See Through Supernatural Darkness at all times" before buying this level.
3	Mantic Darkness(s) x1/2 levels (40, 6).
4	Mantic Shadowblade (see Wizard's Grimoire) x1/3 levels - blade inflicts magical and evil spiritual damage when used by the Daimon or any person able to use Evil spirit weapons, otherwise inflicting magic mantic damage only (75, 4).
5	Cloak of Darkness x1/3 levels. As Invisibility, with the additional restriction that it cannot be used under the conditions listed for Shadowmeld above - immediately goes down if within 5' of any light-source (80, 2).
6	Shadowshift x1/day as Wizard's Grimoire spell (60, 3).

Post-6th: may buy:

Magical Shadows: Whilst using Cloak of Darkness or Shadowmeld, becomes Immune to Mana and Elemental Sight if has Immunity to Informational Spells. Cost: 80 pts.

Spiritual Shadows: Whilst using Cloak of Darkness or Shadowmeld becomes Immune to Spirit Sight if has Immunity to Informational Miracles. Cost: 90 pts.

Snaga Hai

These are those Orcs who have hearkened back to their dark roots, following in the footsteps of their ancestors who lived deep in dark tunnels, emerging only at night to steal livestock, slaying from behind without ever being seen. This race is available only to Half-Orc scouts and assassins.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now always counts as if benefiting from the black Ally Darkness spell - Darkness(r) spells targeted on the Half-Orc move with them. May now see through all forms of supernatural darkness. Must now incorporate black shadows/woad into make-up worn.
2	Now gains +2 DAC (total) in darkness.
3	Unassisted Climb - all Assisted Climbs used now need only two points of contact, last as long as the character keeps climbing, and may be at full speed (no running or fighting however). +1 stacking Backstab skill, stacking only with published Backstab.
4	Now gains +3 DAC (total) in darkness.
5	Bladelick x1/day - after licking the blade of a physical edged weapon, the next blow struck with that weapon within the next 5 minutes will inflict a physical Disease, otherwise as the Cause Disease miracle (50, 3).
6	Now has Sense Motion skill except in direct daylight or magical light. Must possess Perception and Supernatural Perception to use this ability.

Post 6th: Snaga Hai can purchase Backstabs as a 1st Class Assassin. If already a 1st Class Assassin they can buy them 1 table earlier.

Spiritual Vessel

The priest begins to embrace the spirits within them, strengthening the power they have over them, and abandoning the physical world.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	1/6 th off all bar Spirit per level. Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects (including Potions, Poison). May never leave the priest bracket.
2	Immunity to Ageing
3	Can only be killed/have a location severed by spiritual means. Gains immunity to beneficial effects that are not spiritual in nature. May no longer cast Spiritual Invisibility or otherwise become Immune to Spirit.
4	Immunity to non-damaging effects which are not spiritual in nature.
5	Can only be knocked unconscious/have a location stop working through spiritual means
6	Is now completely immune to all bar spirits.

Post 6th: Spiritual Nature- Gains ½ effect all magic based mantics (e.g. a mantic disruption). Cost 200 points
Formless Being – No longer suffers damage to locations. Effects that inflict damage based on locational life (e.g. Sever) are calculated as if a person's locations were 1/3rd of their TBLP. Now has a maximum permanent TBLP ever of 48 with any above this becoming live to minus. Cost: 250 points, table 10.

Titan

The Champions of Combat. Bound to battle the Titans stand head and shoulders above most men. They walk the line between Mortal and Immortal on the battlefield.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Immunity to Pain in all forms. + 1 Stacking Strength (Max +3)
2	+3/1 Base life. Form of the Titan 1/2 Levels – Grants +36/12 temp life for 5 minutes, does not stack with supernatural temp life but does with physical temp life. (65, 2)
3	1/6 th off Weapon Blows. This will stack with the Battle-Master abilities. Greater Blade Fury to 1/4 off and with Eye for an Opponent 1/3 off weapon blows.
4	+6/2 (from 3/1) Base life. Titan's Strength 1/day – May remain conscious while in live to minus (providing some is owned) while in combat. Lasts 5 minutes. (50,1)
5	Immunity to Supernatural Ageing effects. 1/4 off weapon blows (from 1/6 th). Greater Blade fury now grants 1/3 rd off and Eye for an Opponent 1/2 effect.
6	+9/3 (from 6/2) base life. Titan's Endurance 1/day – Locations will continue to function until severed while in combat. Lasts 5 minutes. (75,1)

Post 6th: Titan's Stamina – From Sleep off Perm. Permanent/incurable wounds can now be healed normally. Cost: 100 points, table 11.

Titans Body – Now gains 1/3 off weapon blows. Greater Blade Fury will stack with this to 1/2 effect weapon blows and Eye for an Opponent grants a Rockskin style defence vs. the chosen opponent. Cost: 250, table 10.

Undead

There are many reasons why adventurers turn to the power of undeath, but the problems they experience and the advantages they gain are generally the same. Voluntarily selling one's soul to dark powers for the sake of undeath is generally a gradual process, as the body slowly decays with the tainting of the spirit. This race is available to any evilly aligned non-Elf/Drave or Faerie.

Post-6th, buys as a full Undead, and see below.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Now discerns as (and is, for all purposes) a Level 1 'Type Unknown' undead, dismiss name 'Lesser XXX'. (Must select Undead type from Ghoul/ Mummy/Wraith/Wight/Vampire). Is now immune to: Repel and Attract Life, Restore and Animate Life, Discern Nature of Wounds. Requires appropriate make up to the type of undead chosen, e.g. rotten and fleshy for Ghouls, pale and ethereal for Wraiths.
2	Is now a Level 2 'Minor XXX' as above. Now Immune to: Ebony spell Pain, Words of Pain and other effects which duplicate or are similar to it in effect (it is still possible however for undead to feel pain from weapon blows and similar), all forms of Disease, Adrenal Surge. May buy 1 st innate from chosen tree, and the appropriate 'curing' ability (each as many times as desired).
3	Is now a Level 3 'Minor XXX' as above. Now immune to: Stunning Blow, Vicious Strike, Aging, Flesh and Blood effects. May buy 2 nd innate from chosen tree.
4	Is now a Level 4 'XXX' as above. Now immune to: Repel and Attract Edible, Empathic Healing. May buy 3 rd innate from chosen tree.
5	Is now a Level 5 'XXX' as above. Now immune to: Neuronics, physical Sleep. May buy 4 th innate from chosen tree (if appropriate).
6	Is now a Level 6 'Greater XXX' as above. Now immune to: all miracles not listed as affecting the undead.

May Increase Dismiss Level to 7 for 80 points. May buy Immunity to Dismiss miracles for 150 points. May buy Immunity to Undead Destruction effects (not Hand of Purity or Dismiss miracle), for 80 points.

All (t) abilities are undead touch effects, and the effect of that single touch lasts 5 minutes unless this would be inappropriate (e.g. Level Drain is permanent until regained, Disease duration is as Cause Disease)

Ghoul Ability	Cost
1 - Paralysis(t) x1/day as Ghoul	40*
2 - Blindness(t)x1/day	50*
3 - Petrification(t) x1/day (the target is turned to stone temporarily, taking no harm from solely physical weapons)	50*
Cured 12/12 by use of one above ability per day	30*
Mummy Ability	Cost
1 - Disease(t) x1/day as Mummy	40*
2 - Contagion x1/day - for 5 minutes touch causes Disease at all times	100*
3 - Contagious Disease x1/day - a Disease(t) where the target additionally Diseases everything they touch until the Disease is cured. Target may not be Immune to Disease, nor the user of the ability	100*
Healing Putrescence x1/day - one Disease ability from above used cures user 1/1 every minute the primary target is suffering from it (to a max of 1 hour)	40*
Wight Ability	Cost
1 - Freeze(t) x1/day as Wight	50*
2 - Numbing Cold x1/day - 2pt Dex drain lasting 5 minutes unless target has Total Immunity to Cold. (4 hits to monsters). If target reduced below 0 Dex AC, is unable to wield weapons/run.	50*
3 - Planeshift x1/day - as Wight.	100*
Cured 12/12 by the use of one Freeze(t) or Numbing Cold per day	30*
Wraith Ability	Cost
1 - Fear(t) x1/day as Wraith	30*
2 - Level Drain(t) x1/day as Wraith	60*
3 - Strength Drain(t) x1/day - drains target of one grade of strength (minimum 0) for five minutes. If target falls below 0, unable to move or speak for duration	75*
4 - Walk through Walls x1/day for 5 minutes as Wraith	80*
Cured 12/12 by use of one Level Drain(t) or Strength Drain(t) per day	30*
Vampire Ability	Cost
1 - Beguile Spirit x1/day	35*
2 - Double Level Drain(t) x1/day - drains 2 levels at once	90*
3 - Gaseous Form x1/day for five minutes as Vampire	80*
Cured 24/24 by drinking blood from one living target once per day (inflicts 24 TBLP/8 hits to target). Takes 5 seconds to perform.	40*

Uruk-Hai

This is the race of Black Orcs, those Orcs tougher and meaner than others in a fight. They are naturally feisty, substantially more aggressive than their weaker cousins.

Uruk-Hai require 'dirty' makeup, an exaggerated version of the normal Half-Orc make-up requirements. This multi-race is available only to Half-Orc warriors and thugs.

LEVEL	LIFE	ABILITIES
1	33/11	May now see through all forms of supernatural darkness at all times.
2	40/13	+1 PAC. Detrimental effects whose penalties are incurred over a duration, such as Disease or Words of Pain, take twice as long to affect.
3	47/16	No longer suffers DAC penalties in light.
4	54/18	+2 PAC (total).
5	61/20	May never be reduced below +1 strength (must have at least +1 strength to benefit from this ability).
6	68/23	+3 PAC (total). Black Fury - 50% berserk rage which also grants immunity to listed stopping effects for the duration of 5 minutes x1/day (100,2).

Vessel of the Dead

A few poor souls are naturally tied to the Netherworld. While not undead themselves perhaps in a past life they were, or their bodies have once been tainted and the darkness never faded. Whatever the case they can oddly become undead while still alive.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Is not tainted if raised as undead. If raised as undead then retains own personality.
2	Twist the Form 1/2 levels – May have a published raise undead miracle cast on self (by self or another) that requires a body. This allows the user to become that undead (hits, powers, undead nature etc. effectively they are that undead's stats rather than their own) for 15 minutes or until the undead is slain. They are controlled by the individual that raised the undead as normal. If the undead is slain in that time then the person is halted regardless of resistances and effectively "appears" where they are. If the Undead is dismissed (or similar, including being controlled to return to their own place) then the user dies. (60,3)
3	Death's Form 1/3 Levels – Acts as per an Incarna Mortis, but on self only. Does not suffer the normal "Kick out" (80,3)
4	Undead raised into the Vessel may now benefit from the physical armour and any grades of strength owned by it.
5	Death's Form may now be used in response to an attack (Declared within 2 seconds) but it only applies to that single attack if used in this way.
6	Can now be animated as a zombie (as per Twist the Form) while alive once per hour.

Post-6th: May upgrade level six ability so that it can be used 1/ 30 minutes on table 9 for 100 points and to 1/15 minutes on table 10 for a further 100 points.

Vessel of the Dragons

As Wizards begin to master the elements of the world some seek to devoid themselves of their physical forms and instead become a thing of pure magic.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	1/6 th off all bar Magic per level. Immunity to Flesh and Blood Effects (including Potions, Poison, and Pain).
2	Immunity to Ageing.
3	Can only be killed/have a location severed by magical means. Is now harmed by Dispel as an Elf and as such may no longer cast Mana Shield or otherwise become immune to magic, doing so results in death. Gains Immunity to beneficial effects that are not magical in nature.
4	Immunity to non-damaging effects that are not magical in nature.
5	Can only be knocked unconscious/have a location stop working through magical means.

Post 6th: May buy Resistance to Dispel as an Elf/Mantic Effects as an Elf.

Formless Being – No longer suffers damage to locations. Effects that inflict damage based on locational life (e.g. Sever) are calculated as if the character's locations were 1/3rd of their TBLP. Now has a maximum permanent TBLP ever of 48 with any above this becoming live to minus. Cost: 250 points, table 10.

Winter Barbarian

Winter elves, unlike most other elven races, spent the childhood years of their race isolated from the rest of the world, living alone in the icy wastes which best suit their nature. As any who have encountered one will know, they have still not entirely overcome their barbaric nature, but some groups still function entirely as barbarian tribes, to as great an extent as any other tribal community. Individuals who favour this view of life are called Winter Barbarians. Wizards who buy this multi-race become Witch Doctors of level equal to their base wizard level immediately on buying 1st level Winter Barbarian, as explained below. This race is available to any Winter Elf.

LEVEL	ABILITIES
1	Counts in all ways as a Tribal character from this point; may join a Winter Barbarian tribe only. Life now as Human of same base class by level, so at 6 th would have 6 th level Human life.
2	Gains Survival as Ranger in cold environments only.
3	Gains one innate Slip x1/2 levels (30,∞).
4	Gains one innate Wall of Ice x1/3 levels (40, 6).
6	Gains innate Freeze (t) x1/day as per non-level based version of the Freeze glyph at touch range (50, 3).

Post-6th: Winter Barbarians now buy as tribal creatures. May gain life as 8th level Human for 100pts.

Witch Doctor Winter Barbarians are able to draw mana from all non-Drowe & Dark Elves (not Draves or Faeries), on adventure with them, at a rate of 2 mana per wizard level. This is enhanced to 4 mana per wizard level if the Elf in question is a Winter Barbarian in their tribe.

Winter Barbarian Witch Doctors may buy Fetches for mana, each granting 2 mana per wizard level, in the same way as other Witch Doctors.

Multi-Race-Tables of Costs

Acknowledgements and Thanks

So a massive thank you to all those that assisted with this book. The desire to explore new and interesting races and combinations has meant that the tables and Evolution have grown beyond the simple stapled A4 sheets they began as.
